

IN THE NAME OF ALLAH
THE ALL-BENEFICENT, THE ALL-MERCIFUL

ڈ ڈ ژ ژ ر ر ک ی ک

Indeed, Allah desires to repel all impurity from you, O People of the Household, and purify you with a thorough purification.
(S£rat al-A/zjb 33:33)

History of Islam

Upto the Demise of the Prophet

قَالَ رَسُولُ اللَّهِ ﷺ: 3
إِنِّي تَارِكٌ فِيكُمْ الثَّقَلَيْنِ: كِتَابَ اللَّهِ
وَعِثْرَتِي أَهْلَ بَيْتِي، مَا إِنْ تَمَسَّكْتُمْ
بِهِمَا لَنْ تَضِلُّوا بَعْدِي أَبَدًا، وَإِنَّهُمَا
لَنْ يَفْتَرَقَا حَتَّى يَرِدَا عَلَيَّ الْحَوْضَ.

The Messenger of Allah (ﷺ) said:

“Verily, I am leaving among you two precious things [Thaqalayn]: The Book of Allah and my progeny [Itrah], the members of my Household [Ahl al-Bayt]. If you hold fast to them, you shall never go astray. These two will never separate from each other until they meet me at the Pond [ʿawḡ] (of Kawthar).”

Some of its references (with little difference):

Al-ʿajkim an-Nayshābūrī, Al-Mustadrak ʿalā al-ʿaʿayn (Beirut), vol. 3, pp. 109-110, 148, 533

Muslim, Al-ʿaʿ, (English translation), book 31, ʿadeths 5920-3

At-Tirmidhī, Al-ʿaʿ, vol. 5, pp. 621-2, ʿadeths 3786, 3788; vol. 2, p. 219

An-Nassāj, Khaṣṣ ʿAlī ibn Abī ṭlib, ʿadeth 79

ʿImād ibn ʿanbal, Al-Musnad, vol. 3, pp. 14, 17, 26; vol. 3, pp. 26, 59; vol. 4, p. 371; vol. 5, pp. 181-182, 189-190

Ibn al-Athār, Jamīʿ al-Uṣṣal, vol. 1, p. 277

Ibn Kathīr, Al-Bidʿyah waʾn-Nihʿyah, vol. 5, p. 209

Ibn Kathīr, Tafsīr al-Qurʿān al-ʿAʿm, vol. 6, p. 199

Najīr ad-Dīn al-Albanī, Silsilat al-Aʿdeth aṣ-ṣaʿah (Kuwait: Ad-Dar as-Salafiyyah), vol. 4, pp. 355-358

HISTORY OF ISLAM

UP TO THE DEMISE OF THE PROPHET

BY:
Mahdç Pishva'i

Translated by
Dr. Mahmoud Farrokhpey

نام کتاب: تاریخ اسلام تا رحلت پیامبر (ص) نویسنده: مهدی پیشوائی
مترجم: محمود فرخ بی

HISTORY OF ISLAM UP TO THE DEMISE OF THE PROPHET (S)

Author: Mahdç Pishva'i

Translator: Dr. Mahmoud Farrokhpey

Editor: Badr Shahin

Project supervisor: Translation Unit, Cultural Affairs Department /The Ahl al-Bayt ('a) World
Assembly (ABWA)

Number of pages: 367

ISBN:978-964-529-257-5

Publisher: The Ahl al-Bayt ('a) World Assembly
First Edition 2007

Printed by: E'timad Press

copies: 5000

RIGHTS RESERVED FOR
THE AHL AL-BAYT (A. S) WORLD ASSEMBLY

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Preface	15
SECTION ONE
INTRODUCTORY THEMES
CHAPTER ONE
THE ARABIAN PENINSULA	19
Divisions of the Arabian Peninsula	23
Division on the Basis of Natural Conditions	23
Life Conditions in the Southern Section	24
A Prosperous Civilization in the South of Arabia	25
The Destruction of Ma'rib Dam	28
The Effects of the Fall	30
The Conditions of the Northern Section	31
Nomads	33
The Tribal Order	35
Racial Affiliation	35
The Tribal Chief	36
Tribal Zeal and Devotion	37
Tribal Revenge	39
Tribal Rivalries and Boastings	40
The Significance of Parentage	41
Tribal Wars	45
Manslaughter and Plunder	47
The Forbidden Months	49

Women in the Arab Society	50
The Tragedy of Women	51
CHAPTER TWO
MORAL FEATURES OF THE ARABS	57
Opposing Traits	57
The Roots for the Arab's Good Manners:	58
Ignorance and Superstition	59
Arab Sciences and Arts	60
An illiterate nation	61
Poetry	61
Arabs and the Neighboring Civilizations	62
The Arab's Inferiority vis-à-vis Iran and Rome	64
Imaginary Pride	66
The Ignorance Era	67
CHAPTER THREE
RELIGIONS IN THE ARABIAN PENINSULA	71
Monotheists	71
Christianity	73
Christianity in Yemen	74
Christianity in °Crah	75
Judaism	76
Jews in Yemen	78
The Sabians	79
Manichaeism	80
Star Worshipping	82
The Worshipping of Jinn and Angels	83
The Appearance of Mecca	85
The Remnants of Abraham's Religion	86
The Beginning of Idolatry Among Arabs	87
Did Idolaters Believe in Allah?	89

The Chaotic State of Religion	92
Drastic Changes	94
The Development and Significance of Mecca	96
The commercial position	96
The Holy Kaaba	98
Trade and Custodianship of Quraysh	99
Quraysh's Power and Influences	102

SECTION TWO THE PROPHET FROM BIRTH TO PROPHETHOOD

CHAPTER ONE

ANCESTORS OF THE HOLY PROPHET	105
Muḥammad's Lineage	107
ʿAbd al-Muṣṣalib's Personality	109
The Household of Monotheism	110

CHAPTER TWO

CHILDHOOD AND ADOLESCENCE	113
The Birth	113
Infancy and Childhood	114
His Mother's Demise	117
ʿAbd al-Muṣṣalib's Demise	118
Journey to Damascus	119
Historical Distortions by the Christians	121

CHAPTER THREE

THE PROPHET'S YOUTH	127
ʿĪlīf al-Fuṣṣal	127
Second Journey to Damascus	129
Marrying Khadījah	131
Installation of the Black Stone	132
ʿAlī in the School of Muḥammad	134

SECTION THREE

FROM PROPHETHOOD TO EMIGRATION

CHAPTER ONE

PROPHETHOOD AND PROMULGATION	141
On the Threshold of Prophethood	141
The Start of Prophethood	143
An Untrue Account	145
Criticism	146
Secret Invitation to the New Religion	151
The First Muslim Woman and Man	152
The Reasons Behind ʿAlī's Taking the Lead	153
The Pioneer Groups in Acceptance of Islam	157
A) The youth	157
B) The Deprived and the Oppressed	159
Inviting His Relatives to the New Religion	161

CHAPTER TWO

THE PUBLIC PROPAGATION	165
The Start of the Public Invitation	165
Struggle with Quraysh	166
Abī-ṣalīb's Announcement of Assistance	167
Motives of Quraysh's Oppositions	167

CHAPTER THREE

CONSEQUENCES OF OPPOSITION	175
Torturing Muslims	175
Emigration to Abyssinia	176
The Birth of Fiṣmah	179
The Night Ascension	180
The Evaluation of the Narrations on miʿrāj	181
Economic and Social Boycott	182
The Death of Khadījah and Abī-ṣalīb	185
The Role of Khadījah	186

The Role of AbĒ-±ilib	187
AbĒ-±ilib's Faith	187
(1) His Poems and Statements	188
(2) His Protection of the Holy Prophet	189
The Prophet's wives	191
Ummu-°abċbah	193
Ummu-Salamah	194
Zaynab bint Ja sh	195
The Holy Prophet's Journey to ±i'if	198
Did the Holy Prophet seek Refuge?	200
Attraction of the Holy Qur'in	202
Accusation of Magic	203
Inviting the Arab Tribes to Islam	204

SECTION FOUR FROM EMIGRATION TO UNIVERSAL INVITATION

CHAPTER ONE

EMIGRATION TO YATHRIB	209
The Basis of Islam's Influences in Yathrib	209
The First Muslim Group of Yathrib	211
The First Treaty of `Aqabah	212
The Second Treaty of `Aqabah	213
The initial Stages of emigration to Yathrib	214
Conspiracy of murdering the Holy Prophet	215
The Prophet's Migration	216
A Great Sacrifice	217
The Prophet's Arrival at Qubi	219
Arrival at Yathrib	220
The Start of the Hijri Calendar	221

CHAPTER TWO

MAJOR PROCEEDINGS IN MEDINA	225
-----------------------------	-----

The Construction of a Mosque	225
The `uffah Followers	226
General Treaty	226
A Brotherly Contract	228
Nonaggression Pact	231
The Hypocrites	233

CHAPTER THREE

CONSPIRACIES OF THE JEWS	235
The Jews' Sabotage	235
Motives of the Jews' Oppositions	237
Changing the kiblah	239

CHAPTER FOUR

ESTABLISHMENT OF MUSLIM MILITARY FORCES	243
Formation of the Islamic Army	243
Military Maneuvers	245
The Prophet's Objectives of Military Maneuvers	246
The Expedition of `Abdullih Ibn Ja sh	249
The Battle of Badr	251
Factors of Victory	254
Results of Muslims' Victory	256
Breach of BanĒ-Qaynuqi` Treary	259
The Marriage of Imam `Alċ and Lady FiSimah	261
The Battle of U ud	262
Muslims' victory at the first	264
The Enemy's Victory	265
Consequences of the deafeat at U ud	268
The Unsuccessful Attack of BanĒ-Asad	271
The Event of Bi'r Ma`Ēnah	271
Campaign against BanĒ'l-Naċr	272
The Battle of the Ditch	275

The Treason of Banī-Quray'ah	278
Reasons of the failure of the Allies	279
(1) Disagreement of Quray'ah and the Allies	280
(2) The killing of `Amr ibn `Abd-Wudd	280
(3) Divine Assistance	282
The War of Banī-Quray'ah	284
Analysis and Criticism	285
The War of Banī'l-Muṣṣalaq	288
The Journey for `Umrah	289
The Rīwāḍin Allegiance	290
The °udaybiyah Truce	291
The Prophet's Prediction	292
Bearings of the °udaybiyah Truce	293

SECTION FIVE FROM UNIVERSAL INVITATION TO DEPARTURE

CHAPTER ONE

UNIVERSAL INVITATION TO ISLAM	299
The Holy Prophet's Universal Mission	299
The Start of the Universal Invitation	300
Conquest of Khaybar	301
The Fate of the Jews of Khaybar	307
Fadak	308

CHAPTER TWO

SPREAD OF ISLAM	309
The war of Mu'tah	309
The conquest of Mecca	312
The Quraysh breach of truce	312
The Prophet's General Amnesty	315
The Outcomes of the conquest of Mecca	317
The War of °unayn	318

The War of Tabūk	322
Imam `Alī; the successor in Medina	324
Hardships and obstacles on the way	327
Treaties with local governors	328
The consequences of the war of Tabūk	328
The spread of Islam in the Arabian Peninsula	329
Disavowal of Unbelievers Announcement	330
General treaties	330
Long-termed treaties with Arab tribes	330
The Prophet's special envoy and representative	331
Announcement of Disavowal and Warning	332
Mutual Cursing with the Najrīn Christians	333

CHAPTER THREE

THE FAREWELL PILGRIMAGE AND THE DEMISE OF THE PROPHET	337
The Farewell Pilgrimage	337
The Prophet's Historical Sermon	339
A great virtue	340
The Event of Ghadīr	343
Witnesses and signs	353
The Brigade of Usimah	359
The Prophet's Supreme Objective	361
The Unrecorded Will	363
The Demise of the Great Leader of Islam	364
A Perspective on the New Community of Muslims	365

PUBLISHER'S Preface

O

In the Name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful

The precious legacy left behind by the Holy Prophet's Household [ahl al-bayt] (may peace be upon them all) and their followers' preservation of this legacy from the menace of extinction is a perfect example of the all-encompassing school [madrasah] that embraces all the different branches of Islamic knowledge. This school has been able to train many talented personalities by quenching them with this gushing fountain. This school has given scholars to the Muslim ummah who, by following the Holy Prophet's Household (a.s), have done their best in order to clear up the doubts and skepticisms put forth by various creeds and intellectual currents both inside and outside the Muslim society. Throughout the past centuries, they have presented the firmest answers and solutions to these doubts.

Anchored to the responsibilities upon its shoulders, the Ahl al-Bayt (a.s) World Assembly has embarked on defending the sanctity of risjlah [message] and its authentic beliefs which have always been opposed by the chiefs and leaders of anti-Islamic sects, religions and trends. In this sacred path, the Assembly regards itself as a follower of the upright pupils of the School of the Ahl al-Bayt (a.s)—those who have always been ready to refute those accusations and calumnies and have tried to be always in the frontline of this struggle on the basis of the expediencies of time and space.

The experiences in this field, contained in the books of the scholars belong to the School of the Ahl al-Bayt (a.s), are unique in their own right. It is because these experiences are based upon knowledge and preeminence of intellect and reasoning, and because they are devoid of blind fanaticism or whims and caprices. These experiences address experts, scholars and thinkers in a manner that appeals to healthy minds and pure human natural disposition [fi$rah].

In a bid to assist those who are in quest of truth, the Ahl al-Bayt (a.s) World Assembly has endeavored to enter a new phase of these worthy experiences by doing researches and translating the works of contemporary Shc`ah writers or those who, through divine guidance, have embraced this noble school.

The Assembly is also engaged in the study and publication of the valuable works of pious predecessors and outstanding Shc`ah personalities so that those who search for the truth may quench their thirst from this palatable fountain where they find the truth which the School of the Prophet's Household (a.s) offers to the entire world.

It is hoped that the dear readers will not deprive the Ahl al-Bayt (a.s) World Assembly of their valuable opinions, suggestions, and constructive criticisms in this arena.

We also invite scholars, translators and other institutions to assist us in propagating the pure Muhammadan Islam.

We ask God, the Exalted, to accept this humble effort and give us success to enhance it under the auspices of His vicegerent on earth, al-Mahdi (may Allah, the Exalted, expedite his glorious advent).

It is appropriate here to express our utmost gratitude to Mr. Mahdī Pishvā'i for writing the book, to Dr. Farrukh Pey for translating it, to Badr Shahin for editing the translation. We should also like to thank colleagues who took part in accomplishing this task especially the staff of the Translation Office for fulfilling their responsibility.

Cultural Affairs Department
The Ahl al-Bayt (a.s) World Assembly

SECTION ONE INTRODUCTORY THEMES

- Chapter One:
The Arabian Peninsula; its Geographical, Social and Cultural Status
- Chapter Two:
Moral Features of the Arabs
- Chapter Three:
Sects and Religions in the Arabian Peninsula and its Surroundings

The Arabian Peninsula is surrounded by the Persian Gulf, the Sea of Oman, the Red Sea, and the Mediterranean except for its southern sections. Nevertheless, it suffers from severe lack of water and is considered one of the driest and hottest areas of the world. It even lacks a large river or a navigable waterway. Instead, it has lands which are sometimes flooded with rainfalls.

The existence of a mountain range, which starts from the Sinai Peninsula and extends all over the western border of Arabia, acting as a lofty wall, and which winds around the southwest corner of the peninsula to go around the southern and eastern sectors of Arabia as far as the Persian Gulf is the main reason for the extreme dryness of this Peninsula. Thus, Arabia is surrounded, on three sides, with this lofty mountain-wall and this hinders humidity of the seas from entering this land.²

On the other hand, the extent of the neighboring water is so insufficient that it could not modify the warmth and dryness of these vast African-Asian lands which are low in receiving humidity. This is worsened by the blowing of the poisoning Monsoon winds inside Arabia which stops the rain-carrying winds from the Indian Ocean coming from the south from entering the Arabian Peninsula³.

CHAPTER ONE

The Arabian Peninsula;

its Geographical, Social and Cultural Status

The Arabian Peninsula, located in the south-west of Asia, is the world's largest Peninsula. Extended from the north-west towards southeast, it resembles an irregular trapezoid¹ with an area of three million and two hundred thousand square kilometers². The present Saudi Arabia covers nearly four-fifths of this Peninsula;³ the rest, in accordance with the present political demarcation, is occupied by six political states of Yemen, Oman, the United Arab Emirates, Qatar, Bahrain, and Kuwait.

It borders the Aden Gulf, Bjb al-Mandab Strait, the Indian Ocean and the Sea of Oman. It borders the Red Sea on the west, the Gulf of Oman, the Persian Gulf and Iraq on the east; and on the north borders a widespread desert extending to the valley of the Euphrates on one side, and Syria on the other. Since there are no natural borders, such as rivers or mountains, in this Peninsula, geographers have not been able so far to mark its

¹ ʿusayn Qarjçjnlf, ʿaramayn Sharçfayn, pp. 9.

² This equals one third of Europe, six times the area of France, nine times the total areas of west Germany and East Germany put together, ten times the area of Italy, eighty times the area of Switzerland, and twice the area of Iran.

³ Cosmological Institution, the cosmology of countries, pp. 205.

¹ Phillip Khalçl ʿittç, History of the Arabs.

² ʿAlç Akbar Fayyç, Tjrçkh Islçm, pp. 2; Alber Male and Joel Isaac, History of the Middle Ages up to the One-Hundred Year War, pp. 95.

³ Phillip ʿittç, Op cit, pp. 24.

Divisions of the Arabian Peninsula

Both Arab and non-Arab geographers have divided the Arabian Peninsula on the basis of the natural elements (such as weather) and on the basis of races and tribes.¹ Some contemporary scientists have divided it into three main sections in the following manner:

The central section, which is called the Arab Desert;

The northern section, which is called °ijjz;

The southern section, which is called Yemen.²

Division on the Basis of Natural Conditions (The south and the North)

Besides these divisions, there has been, in recent years, another division proposed for Arabia which fits in well with the purposes of this book. This division is based on the life sustaining conditions which have had a tremendous effect on the lives of people, living things and plants of this region. These conditions have influenced the individual and social traits of these people and have brought forth some changes which were in existence up to the advent of Islam. There exist two drastic conditions in the Arabian Peninsula: either there is water, or there is no water. This parameter has had tremendous effects on life patterns of people: it sets apart the southern section, i.e. Yemen, from the central and northern sections.

¹ Al-Maqdisi, a Muslim scientist of the fourth century, considers the Arabian Peninsula to contain four large section: °ijjz, Yemen, Oman and Hajr; see A'san al-Taqi'sem fē Ma'rifat al-Aqilēm, pp. 102. However, others state that it includes five sections: Tihimāh, °ijjz, Najd, Yemen and `Arḥā; see Abḥ'l-Fidj, Taqwēm al-Buldjn, pp. 104; Yiqḥt al-°amawḥ, Mu'jam al-Buldjn, pp. 101 & 214; Shukrḥ al-°lḥsḥ al-Baghdjdḥ, Bulḥgh al-Irab fē Ma'rifat A'wjl al-'Arab, 1:187; Jawjd `Alḥ, al-Mufaḥḥal fē Tjrḥkh al-'Arab Qabl al-Isljm, 1:167.

There are other subdivisions, the descriptions of which are not useful now; see Gustav Le Bon: The Civilization of Islam and Arabs, pp. 31.

² Ya'iy Nḥrḥ, Isljm wa `Aqj'id wa `rj' Basharḥ (Islam, Doctrines and Human Beliefs), pp. 231-234.

Life Conditions in the Southern Section (Yemen)

Looking at the map of this land, we find a triangle-shaped territory in the southwestern part of the Arabian Peninsula. The Arab Sea forms the eastern side of this triangle, while the Red Sea forms the western border. A line drawn from Dhahran (in the west) to Khaḥrj' Mount (in the east) forms the third side of this triangle. Inside this huge triangle lies a territory, called Yemen since old times. Due to the abundance of water and the regular rainfall, this region has enjoyed lucrative agriculture and dense population; in this regard, it contrasts with both the north and central part of the Peninsula.

On the other hand, a dense population needs a permanent residence. For this very reason, villages and cities came to existence. The concentration of people in cities and villages creates interaction among people which is unavoidable. These modes of interaction bring forth laws and regulations (even the primitive ones), and, as we know, the establishment of laws causes the creation of government. For this reason, centuries prior to the birth of Jesus Christ (¥), governments had in this region and established some civilizations.¹ The governments which have been established in this region are:

¹ Sayyid Ja`far Shahḥdḥ, Tjrḥkh Ta'lḥlḥ Isljm, pp. 3.

(1) The Ma'ḥn State: This government was in existence between 1400 and 850 BC and fell with the creation of the Saba' State.

(2) The °aṣramawt State: This state existed between 1020 and 65 BC and fell to the Saba' State.

(3) The Saba' State: This state was in existence between 850 and 115 BC and ended due to the establishment of the °imyarḥ Saba' and Rḥdġn government.

(4) The Qatabġn State: This state existed between 865 and 540 BC and came to an end with the establishment of the Saba' State.

(5) The States of Saba', Rḥdġn, °aṣramawt and the vicinity of Yemen, whose vocal dynasties were called Tubba` and lived between 115 BC and 523 AD, their capital was ʔafġr.¹

A Prosperous Civilization in the South of Arabia

Historians have admired the Yemeni bright civilization. An example is Herodotus, the great Greek historian of the fifth century BC, who mentions the civilization of this land which embodied lofty castles in Saba' with doors engraved with precious stones; these castles contained golden-ware and silver-ware and beds made of precious metals.² Some historians refer to a glorious, twenty-floor castle, called Qur'ġn in Sana'a, which consisted of one hundred rooms with externally high walls and mirror-decorated ceilings.¹ Strabonn, a famous Roman tourist, paid a visit to this city. Referring to the civilization in this land, he writes:

¹ Al'mad °usayn Sharaf al-Dġn, al-Yaman `Ibr al-Tġrġkh (The Yemen in History), pp. 53.

² Gustav Le Bon: The Civilization Of Islam And Arabs, pp. 92.

The city of Ma'rib was a strange city because the ceilings of its castles were made of ivory with gilded scripts and jewels. The elegant Kitchenware made any human being wonder.²

Likewise, the Islamic historians and geographers, Mas'ḥdġ (died 346 AH), and Ibn Rustah (one of the scholars of the third century AH) talk of the luxurious life of people in this region and of its prosperous life patterns prior to the advent of Islam.³

Archeological investigations in the 19th and 20th centuries, as well as the research of historians, have all located valid documents concerning the glorious civilization in this ancient land. The remaining ruins in Aden, Sana'a, Ma'rib and °aṣramawt all attest to an Arab civilization in the south, i.e. in Yemen, and the neighboring lands. This civilization had been a rival for the Phoenician and Babylonian civilizations. One of the features of the ancient civilization in Yemen was a huge dam, called Ma'rib.⁴

Being constructed in accordance with rigorous

¹ Ma'mḥd Shukrḥ Al-ʔḥsḥ al-Baghdġdġ, Bulḥgh al-Irab fḥ Ma`rifat A'wġl al-`Arab, 1:204.

² Georgi Zaydġn, the History of the Islamic Civilization, pp. 3.

³ Al-Mas'ḥdġ, Murḥġ al-Dhahab wa Ma`ġdin al-Jawhar, 2:89, pp. 132.

⁴ The Ma'rib Dam is located 192 Kilometers on the eastern section of Sana'a, the present capital of Yemen.

geometrical calculations, this dam attests to a profound knowledge on the part of the engineers and constructors of this dam. This dam could make agriculture prosper in that area.¹

Besides agriculture, the Yemenis were engaged in trade. The Sabaeans were trade agents between the east and the west because in those days the country of Yemen rested among several civilized countries. The Indian traders used to take their merchandise to Yemen and °aṣramawt through the Indian Ocean and then the Yemeni traders used to take them to Ethiopia, Egypt, Phoenicia, Palestine, The cities of Madyan, Adwam, Al-ʿAmḡliqah and the western lands and the Meccan Arabs used to take the same merchandise and carry them over land to the then advanced cities of the world.²

The Yemenis used to carry out trade with the Far East for a long time.³ The navigation problems and hardships on the Red Sea had led the Sabaeans follow land routes. For this reason, they used to travel between Yemen and Damascus along the western shore of the Arabian Peninsula. This road, crossing Mecca and Petra, used to divide towards Egypt, Damascus and Iraq.⁴

¹ For further knowledge concerning the features of the scientific plan for this dam, see Dictionary of the Qur'ānic Tales by ʿadr Balḡhḡ, pp. 82-88; Aḡmad °usayn Sharaf al-Dḡn, al-Yaman ʿIbr al-Tjṛḡkh, pp. 122-132.

² Georgie Zaydḡn, the History of the Islamic Civilization, 1:11.

³ Will Durant, the History of Civilization, 1: 341.

⁴ Phillip °ittḡ, History of the Arabs, pp. 64; Gustav Le Bon, The Civilization of Islam and the Arabs, pp. 94; Aḡmad °usayn Sharaf al-Dḡn, al-Yaman ʿIbr al-Tjṛḡkh, pp. 105; al-ʿlḡḡḡ, Bulḡgh al-Irab,

The Destruction of Ma'rib Dam

Due to the spread of corruption among the southerners and because of the internal turmoil, the star of Yemenite civilization gradually declined and the Yemenis and their kings could not repair the Ma'rib Dam which was in terrible need of repair, and then through the destruction of this dam, a devastating flood inundated all the villages and the farms and drought prevailed in the surrounding regions, destroying agriculture. This led people to emigrate from their land¹.

The Holy Qur'ān refers to the nation of Saba' in two occasions: once, on the occasion of mentioning the Queen of Saba' (Sheba) and Solomon's letter to her:

And he tarried not long, and then said: I comprehend that which you do not comprehend and I have brought to you sure information from Sheba. Surely, I found a woman ruling over them, and she has been given abundance and she has a mighty throne. (27:22-23)"

On another occasion the Qur'ān refers to Sheba in connection with the destruction of the Ma'rib Dam and the flow of a devastating flood due to the corruption of that tribe:

Certainly, there was a sign for Saba' in their abode; two gardens on the right and the left; eat of the sustenance of your Lord and give thanks to Him: A good land and a Forgiving lord! But they turned aside, so We sent upon them a torrent of which the rush could not be withstood and in place of their two gardens We gave to them, two gardens yielding bitter fruit and growing tamarisk and a few lute-trees. This We requited them with because they disbelieved; and We do not punish any but the ungrateful. And We made between them and the town which We had blessed other towns to be easily seen, and We apportioned the journey therein: Travel through them nights and days, secure. And they said: O our lord! Make spaces to be longer between our journeys; and they were unjust to themselves; so We made them stories and scattered them with an utter scattering; most surely there are signs in this for every patient, grateful one. (34:15-19)

¹ °asan Ibrḡḡḡm °asan, The Political History of Islam 1:32.

The destruction of this dam is reported by °amzah Iḥfahjñç to have taken place in 400 before Islam.¹ According to Abḫ-Raylñ al-Bayrñç, it took place 500 years prior to the advent of Islam.² And Yjçḫt al-°amawç mentions the destruction of this dam to be the result of Abyssinian domination. Some historians consider it to have occurred between the years 542 and 570 AH because the Abyssinian's domination was highest during the middle of the sixth century.³ But the destruction of the dam must have been gradual: it fell apart after several repairs. In the Holy Qur'ñ, reference is made to the nation of Tubba` and their final days on two occasions:

Are they better or the people of Tubba`⁴ and those

¹ °amzah Iḥfahjñç, Tjçḫ Mulḫ al-Arç wa'l-Anbiyç (the History of the Prophets and the Kings), pp. 120 & 132.

² Abḫ-Raylñ al-Bayrñç: Al-°thjç al-Bjçiyah, pp. 181.

³ Mu`jam al-Buldñ 7:355.

⁴ Tubba` (plural of which is Tabjbi`ah) was the title of the °imyarite Kings in Yemen. These were two classes: the first class included the before them? We destroyed them, for surely they were guilty. (44:37)

Others before them rejected prophets: the people of Noah and the dwellers of al-Rass and Thamḫd, and `ad and Pharaoh and Lut's brethren and the dwellers of the grove and the people of Tubba`; all rejected the apostles; so, My threat came to pass. (50:12-14)

The Effects of the Fall of the Southern Civilization on Arabia

The fall of states in the southern sections, the decline of the civilization in this part of the Arabian Peninsula, and the destruction of the Ma'rib dam—all had their effects on the social changes in this region, because the southern section of the Arabian Peninsula lost its glamour and the fields died away due to drought and a group of the dwellers on the vicinity of this dam had to emigrate from their land.

Due to these dispersions, the Tanḫkh branch of the Yemenite tribe, called Azd, emigrated to °çrah (Iraq) and established the government of Lakhmian there. The branch called °l-Jafnah went to Damascus and established a government at a place to the east of Jordan. They called themselves the Ghassñnians.¹ The tribe Aws and Khazraj emigrated to Yathrib (Medina), and Khuzj`ah went to kings of Saba and Rçdñ who rules from 115 BC to 275 AD. The second class included the kings of Saba, Rçdñ, °aḫramawt and Shañr who ruled from 275 to 533 AD: Aḫmad °usayn Sharaf al-Dçñ, Al-Yaman `Ibr al-Tjçḫ, pp. 90-97.

¹ °amzah Iḥfahjñç, The History of the Prophets and Kings, pp. 99, 119; °asan Ibrjḫçm °asan, the Political History of Islam, pp. 44; Abḫ-Raylñ al-Bayrñç, al-°thjç al-Bjçiyah, pp. 181, 183.

Mecca and its suburbs; the tribes Bujaylah and Khath'am and some other groups went to the region of Sarawj and dwelt there,¹ each initiating a series of events.

The Conditions of the Northern Section of the Arabian Peninsula (°ijiz) °ijiz is a dry land, receiving only sporadic rains and except for the mountainous terrain and the narrow shore-areas, it has extremely hot weather. These climatic conditions have had tremendous effects over the life-pattern of its dwellers. This is because the Arab residents of this region, contrary to the southerners, due to small numbers of pastures could not keep cattle except for tiny animals and camels which are tolerant beings. They prepared their food and clothing mainly from camels. Because this cattle raising and husbandry was based on wandering life-patterns, the establishment of a stable political institution seemed to be impossible. For this reason, contrary to the southerners who were city-dwellers and farmers, the dwellers of the north of the Peninsula lacked civilization and were mainly nomadic wanderers, and the cities there (except for Mecca which, for reasons we will present later, was a little advanced at the advent of Islam) did not carry any significance.

Due to these natural hardships and communication problems, the people of °ijiz did not communicate with the civilized world at those days. These natural and geographical hardships caused this land to remain immune against the aggressions of conquerors. This fact attested the lack of interest on the part of Ramses II in the

¹ Carl Brockleman, the History of Nations and Islamic States, pp. 5.

14th century BC, Alexander of Macedonia in the 4th century BC, and Gallous at the time of August, the Roman Emperor, in the first century AD, to conquer this land nor did the Iranian kings show any interest to conquer this region. For this very reason, the people of °ijiz continued their nomadic life without any external interference.¹ Concerning this, a historian writes:

When Demetrius, the Greek army-general (after Alexander) arrived at Petra to conquer it, the Arab desert-dwellers said to him, "O great Prince, why have you come to fight us? We are living on a desert with no comfort of life whatsoever. We have chosen life here to remain our own masters, not to receive orders from anybody. Now accept our gifts and return home from where you have come. If you do so, we shall remain your most devoted friends. However, if you decide to fight us and refuse to accept our peace proposal, you have to destroy your life-comforts. You cannot change our life-modes to which we have grown accustomed since our childhood. You would not benefit, either, to take some of us as prisoners-of-war. This is because those captured ones shall never become your slaves."

Having considered this, Demetrius accepted their gifts and returned home, refusing to partake in a war which did not offer anything except for hardships and nuisances.²

A scientist has observed:

"The Arab Island is a complete example of dependence of man over land. Inside countries such ¹ Georgie Zaydīn, History Of The Islamic Civilization 1:15.

² Gustav Le Bon, History Of The Islamic Civilization 1:88.

as India, Greece, Italy, England, and the United States, we have always seen some adventurous conquerors who have ventured to defeat the native dwellers and to make them obedient. There has never occurred in the history of Arabia any conqueror who has decided to occupy this land.¹

Nomads

Since the major sections of the northern territory of the Arabian Peninsula (°ijz) consists of deserts, most Arabs were desert-dwellers and nomads prior to the advent of Islam. The nomads, being deprived of assets of life due to the severe conditions under which they lived, continued to live mainly on animal husbandry on a very limited scale. They used to live under tents woven out of goat's hair and camel's wool; they would inhabit anywhere they could locate some water or pastures; and they would move to other regions as soon as they were out of provisions. The nomadic Arabs could not raise cattle, except for small herds and a few camels at most, due to the shortage of pastures and plants. There is a maxim to the effect that "in a desert, the nomadic power, camels and dates rule." If we added the power of sands to these three powers, we would get four main factors which play a significant role in desert life. Shortage of water, extreme heat, difficult roads, and scarcity of foods and supplies, which are man's great enemies under normal conditions, would turn into man's closest friends at times of war. Thus, when we observe that an Arab and his desert have never bowed to the enemy's power, we would not be amazed that the continuous dryness of the desert had had its permanent effect on the Arab's body and mental abilities. Nomadic Arabs considered it beyond their dignity to be involved in either agriculture or other crafts and industries.¹ They would belittle the civilized states and their regulations; they used to prefer desert life to city life.²

¹ Phillip °ittē, History of the Arabs, pp. 14.

The desert Arab was the son of nature and the infinite and borderless desert. No building could ever interfere with the clean air of his environment; the sun's everlasting rays fell over him without the hindrance of the clouds. He had erected no dam against rain or torrents. Everything was kept in the form it was created by God. Thus, the desert's son was as free as his environment. Neither farming nor engagement in any industry could deter him from his freedom; nor could the city crowds bother him in any way. He cared for freedom because he had lived in it. No rules or regulations could mar his freedom. He used to fight with anybody who tried to deprive him of his freedom. He was bound by two things only: the principles of idolatry and its ceremonies on the one hand and his tribal customs on the other. However, his commitment towards his tribal customs had deep roots.³

La Mense, the Belgian Orientalist, writes:

The Arab was an example of democracy and freedom, but an extreme form which had no limits. The Arab rebellion against any power which intended to limit his freedom (even when this limit was in his favor) reveals the roots of the crimes which fill most of Arab history.¹

¹ Phillip °ittē, History of the Arabs, pp. 33-35.

² Gustav Le Bon, History Of The Islamic Civilization 1:65; Will Durant, The Story Of Civilization; The Age of Faith 4:201.

³ Aḥmad Amēn, Fajr al-Islām, pp. 46.

The Tribal Order

Prior to the advent of Islam, the Arabs of ʿijz obeyed neither a government nor a political institution. For this reason, their social life differed greatly from that of the Iranians and Romans. This is because in these two countries, i.e. Iran and Rome which bordered Arabia, there were unified central governments which ruled all over the country. However, there was no central power in ʿijz or in any other city (in the north or center of the Arabian Peninsula as a whole).

The tribe was the social unit of the Arabs and the tribal system prevailed everywhere. In such a system, the identity of individuals was determined only through their affiliation with a tribe. The tribal elements could be observed among not only the desert dwellers but also the city-dwellers. In that region, every tribe looked like an independent country and the interrelations among them resembled those among nations in the new world.

Racial Affiliation

In those days, nationality was not based on factors such as unity of religion, language or history. A tribe was defined as a collection of some affiliated families and the bonds which brought relatedness among them were the familial bonds, and the unity of common ancestors. This is because the members of a tribe considered themselves as of the same blood.¹

¹ Ibid, pp. 33-34. al-Nuʿmān ibn al-Mundhir, king of al-ʿġrah, in reply to Khosrow the Persian king who asked him why the Arab nation does not live under a unified governmental system, answered, “Other nations who feel weak and fear the enemy's attacks submit their control under one family, submitting to them their affairs. But all the Arabs want to be kings and hate paying taxes or tributes.” See al-ʿġs, Bulġh al-Irab... 1:150.

The combination of some families would create a tent and a combination of several tents would bring forth a tribe. Even the composition of big association, such as that of the Jews, was based on consanguinity and common ancestors. These groups would set up their tents in such a way as to form tribes of several thousand people each. Then, they would migrate from one place to another, following their cattle.²

The Tribal Chief

The head or representative of the tribe was called Shaykh.³ This Shaykh was usually the most advanced in age. He had this position because of his personality, experience, bravery, defense of the tribe's interests and sometimes because of the abundance of his wealth.⁴ In the election of the Shaykh, some traits, such as generosity, bravery, patience, wisdom, humility and

¹ Almad Amġn, Fajr al-Islġm, pp. 225; ʿAbd al-Munʿim Mġjid: al-Tġrġkh al-Siyġsġ li'l-Dawlah al-ʿArabiyyah (Political History of the Arab State), pp. 48.

² Karl Brockelman, History Of The Islamic States And Peoples.

³ He was also called ra'ġs (chief), amġr (prince), and sayyid (master). See ʿAbd al-Munʿim Mġjid, al-Tġrġkh al-Siyġsġ li'l-Dawlah al-ʿArabiyyah, pp. 49.

⁴ ʿAbd al-Munʿim Mġjid, al-Tġrġkh al-Siyġsġ li'l-Dawlah al-ʿArabiyyah, pp. 49.

eloquence, were taken into consideration.¹

The Shaykh did not use force or coercion in judicial, military and other general affairs. He used to consult with the tribal consultative committees. This latter managerial body elected the Shaykh who continued to keep his job as long as his electorates were happy with him.² However, in accordance with the tribal tradition, everybody had to obey the head of the tribe. When a Shaykh died, either his eldest son or another elderly man who possessed the same traits would be the tribal leader.

Islam fought against the tribal system and did away with it. It did not consider race or clan as significant as it built the newly established Islamic society on the basis of "unity of faith," which is the strongest social bond. In this way, Islam substituted common faith for consanguinity. Islam called all the believers as brethren (the Holy Qur'an, 49:10). In this way, the foundation of the Arab social structure was changed.

Tribal Zeal and Devotion

Extreme zeal was considered as the very soul of the tribe and showed that an individual was devoted to the tribal interests. As a general rule, tribal devotion among the desert-dwellers resembled extreme nationalism in the modern world.³ Whatever a civilized man does for his country, religion or race, a nomadic Arab did for his tribe. He would do anything possible for his tribe; he would even sacrifice his own life for it.¹

An Arab used to be over-protective of his family members, such as brothers, nephews and other relatives. He used to protect his relative be he good or tyrant. In the Arab's ideology, if anybody refrained from helping his brother or nephew, his honor would be marred and damaged. Regarding this, they would say:

Help out your brother whether he is an oppressor or oppressed.

An Arab has written the following poem in this regard:

When a man is asked by his brothers to help them, he would not delay helping them out.²

In this way, if a tribal member was insulted, the whole tribe would feel this insult. Therefore, all tribal members had to participate in obliterating this spot of dishonor.³

Islam has condemned this kind of nonsensical prejudice, dogmatism and harmful zeal and has called it irrational:

When those who disbelieved harbored in their hearts feelings of disdain; disdain of the days of ignorance. (48:26)

The Holy Prophet has stated:

"Anybody who invites others to engage in a dogmatic piece of affair or bears prejudice stays out of Islam."⁴

"Anybody who engages in prejudice or is shown

¹ Al-ʿĪsā, Bulʿgh al-Irāb... 1:187.

² Phillip ʿittā, The Arab History, pp. 39.

³ Phillip ʿittā, The Arab History, pp. 38.

¹ Will Durant, Op cit, 4:200.

² Almad Amān, Op cit, pp. 10.

³ ʿasan Ibrīhīm ʿasan, The Political History of Islam 1:37-8.

⁴ Shaykh al-ʿadāq, Thawīb al-Aʿmāl wa ʿIqīb al-Aʿmāl, pp. 263; Shaykh al-Kulaynī, al-Uṣūl min al-Kifā, 2:308.

irrational sympathy stays out of religion.”¹

The Holy Prophet once said, “Help out your brother, whether he is an aggressor or is an oppressed.” People remarked, “It is evident that an oppressed one should be helped out? How should we help out an oppressor?” The Holy Prophet replied, “Stop his aggression.”²

Tribal Revenge

Since there was neither central government, nor any judicial system in those days in Arabia to settle people's conflicts and to establish justice anybody who was the victim of an injustice had the right to engage in the act of taking-revenge. If the offender belonged to another tribe, the oppressed had the right to take revenge on any member of the other tribe and this was a common practice with the Arabs of those days.³ This was because one member's sin was considered collective, belonging to the whole tribe, and because of the whole clan and consanguinity. The act of taking revenge was carried out first by close relatives, and later on by the whole members of the tribe if it was felt urgent.

If anybody was killed, the act of taking revenge would fall upon the shoulders of the closest relative⁴ and if the murdered one belonged to another tribe, the custom of revenge-taking would be carried out and any one of the murderer's tribal member was at the risk of losing his

¹ Sunan Abç-Djw£d, Ch. Al-Adab, S. fç al-`A¥abiyyah, pp. 332, H. 512.

² al-çç al-Bukhjrç, Ch. Al-Ma`lim, 2:66; Musnad A/mad, 3:201.

³ °asan Ibrjhm °asan, the Political History of Islam, pp. 39.

⁴ Brockleman, op cit, pp. 6-7.

life. This was because the dominating dictum of the desert would say: “Blood is washed off only with blood.” No blood-money was accepted.

Once, a nomadic Arab was asked, “Are you ready to let go of anybody who has wronged you?” He replied, “I will take revenge and then go to hell.”¹

Tribal Rivalries and Boastings

Another feature of the Arab's life in those dark days was rivalry and boasting. An Arab would bask in the dominant values of those days which were generally absurd. Besides bravery in the war-fields, other traits, such as generosity, loyalty, wealth, number of children and dependency towards tribal values, were considered significant. The Holy Qur'jn re-states their statements, condemning them at the same time:

And they say: we have more wealth and children, and we shall not be punished. Say: surely my Lord amplifies the means of Subsistence for whom He pleases and straitens (for whom He pleases), but most men do not know. And not your wealth nor your children are the things which bring you near Us in station, but whoever believes and does good, these it is for whom is a double reward for what they do, and they shall be secure in the highest places. (34:35-37)

Once, Khosrow, the Iranian king, asked al-Nu`mjn Ibn al-Mundhir, the king of °çrah, “Is there a tribe among the Arab tribes, which is superior to others in dignity and honor? He answered, “Yes, there is.” When he was asked for the reason, al-Nu`mjn replied, “Anybody who has three of his ancestors as the tribal chiefs consecutively and the fourth chief from his own tribe will have the next chief from his own tribe as well.”¹

¹ Al-Nuwayrç, Nihjyat al-Irab fç Fun£n al-Adab 6:67.

The Arabs at the time of ignorance used to boast about the numbers of their tribe members; in this way, they disheartened rival tribes.

One day, there was an argument between two tribes; each enumerated his tribal points of honor and claimed that the number of the dignified persons and the sheer number of the members was superior to that of the rival tribe. They started calling heads of all tribal members. The counting of the living members did not help. So, they went to the cemetery to count the dead.² The Holy Qurʾān has condemned such ignorant and irrational boastings:

Abundance diverts you, until you come to the graves, Nay! You shall soon know. (102:1-3)

The Significance of Parentage

Two of the most significant criteria among the Arabs during the period of ignorance were parentage and kinship relations. These were the very basis of many other criteria.³ Boasting on one's race was prevalent

¹ Al-ʿIṣṣaḥ, op cit, 1:281.

² Sayyid Muḥammad ʿusayn ʿabī ṣabīʿ, al-Maʿzīn fī Tafsīr al-Qurʾān 30:353; al-ʿIṣṣaḥ, op cit, 1:279.

³ For instance, if one's father was Arab, but his mother was non-Arab, he was insultingly referred to as hajen, which indicated the concept of inferiority; in the reverse situation, he used to be called mudharra. Hajen was deprived of inheritance. See Ibn ʿAbd Rabbih al-Andalusī, al-ʿIqd al-Farīd 6:129. A hajen male had to marry a woman of his own standing. See Muḥammad ibn ʿabīb, al-Muʿabbar, pp. 310; al-Shahristānī, al-Milal wa'l-Niʿāl, pp. 254.

In Islam, when he was asked about the blood-money of a hajen, the among the Arab tribes. A typical example was the rivalry between the ʿAdnīnite Arabs (in the north) and the Qaṣṣīnite Arab (in the south).¹ For this very reason, an Arab gave great significance to his parentage. al-Nuʿmān ibn al-Mundhir said to Khosrow:

The members of other nations do not care about their parentage; if they are asked about their ancestors, they will lack the necessary knowledge. This was completely different in the case of Arabs, who recognized their ancestors fully. The Arabs would not accept foreigners as members of their clans. They would not enter any interaction with strangers. An Arab is not called by any other name than his father's.²

Thus, it is not surprising to see the science of genealogy, which was one of the limited sciences in those days, receiving a prominent significance. Genealogists received lots of respect, as well. ʿIṣṣaḥ, a prominent researcher on Arab issues, writes:

“Arabs in the Age of Ignorance put a lot of emphasis

Holy Prophet replied, “The blood money of all followers of Islam is the same.” See Ibn Shahrīshb, al-Manjīb 1:113.

¹ Jawīd ʿAlī, al-Mufaṣṣal fī Tārīkh al-ʿArab Qabl al-Islām 1:493; Shawqī ʿAṣaf, Tārīkh al-Adab al-ʿArabī, al-ʿAṣaf al-Jihīlī, pp. 55.

² Al-ʿIṣṣaḥ, op cit, 1:149. At the beginning of Islam, ʿUmar Ibn al-Khaṣṣīb, who was strongly influenced by this kind of thinking, and who showed his dissatisfaction towards the Iraqi Nabataean who used to refer to their locations in their names, told them: Always remember your familial bonds and parentage and stop being like the Iraqi Nabataean who, when asked about their families, would refer to their place of birth or to the location of their residence. See Muqaddimat Ibn Khaldūn, pp. 162; Al-Andalusī, op cit, 3:312.

on their parentage because this kind of recognition was one of the means to cooperate with others. They really needed this sort of recognition, because they lived in separate locations and the fire of war was always blazing. Plunder was a common practice. Since they were reluctant to accept anybody's help in order to defeat their enemies, they had to stick to their parentage, because the love and caring for ones' relatives would result in mutual cooperation and would prevent disunity.¹

Islam, however, rejected any concept of racial superiority. Although the verses of the Holy Qur'an were revealed among the Arabs and the tribe of Quraysh, they were never addressed to any Qurayshite or any Arab. Rather, these sacred verses are addressed to people in general. When Muslims are reminded of their duties, they are referred to as believers. According to the Holy Qur'an, racial differences are natural things. However, it rejects boasting about one's race, and recognizes the criterion of piety as the base for values:

O you men! Surely We have created you of a male and a female, and made you tribes and families that you may know each other, surely the most honorable of you with Allah is the one among you most careful of his duty, surely Allah is Knowing, Aware. (49:13)²

¹ Bulugh al-Irab... 3:182; also refer to al-Mufaṣṣal fī Tārīkh al-`Arab Qabl al-Islām 1:466-4667.

² On the word of a narration reported from Imam al-ḥadiq (a.s) and some books of exegesis of the Holy Qur'an, the Arabic word qabīl mentioned in the aforementioned holy verse refers to the Arab tribes, while the word shu'ab refers to the non-Arabs. (See al-ṭabrisī, Majma' al-Bayān fī Tafsīr al-Qur'ān, Exegesis of Sūrah al-ʿujūrī, 33)

The Holy Prophet emphatically rejected boasting about one's race or parentage. Examples are the following:

(1) On the Conquest of Mecca when the Quraysh's main stronghold fell, people of Quraysh considered themselves superior; hence, the Holy Prophet remarked:

O people: God, through Islam, has strongly rejected taking pride in one's parentage which existed at the age of Ignorance. Remember, you are not at the Age of Ignorance. Remember, you are the offspring of Adam, and Adam was created of dust. The best of God's servants are the most pious. Arabism could not possibly be the father of anybody. But Arabic is an eloquent language. One who is a loser in life could not be saved through racial or ancestral privileges.¹

(2) During his last pilgrimage (ʿijjāt al-wadīʿ; Farewell Pilgrimage) and through a detailed discourse, the Holy Prophet warned the attendants, saying:

"No Arab has any superiority over any non-Arab except for piety."²

While confirming Salmīn in his discussion with Quraysh and his condemnation of the Arab's wrong ideology in believing in racism, the Holy Prophet (ﷺ), said:

"O People of Quraysh; one's honor rests on one's religion; one's manhood and honor rest on one's behavior; one's true origin is one's wisdom and verse 13)

¹ Shaykh al-Kulaynī, al-Rawḍah min al-Kifā, pp. 246; al-Majlisī, Biʿr al-Anwār 21:137-8; Sīrat Ibn Hushaym 4:54.

² Ibn Shuʿbah al-ʿarrīnī: Tuʾaf al-ʿUqūl, pp. 34.

understanding.”¹

Tribal Wars

If a murder occurred among the Arabs, the murderer's closest relative would be responsible; and since the murderer's family used to support him, a bloody war would be inevitable. These wars would start over minor things and usually lasted for years. An example was the Basʿs War between the two tribes of Banʿ-Bakr and Banʿ-Taghlib both of whom belonged to Rabʿah. This war lasted for forty years. The source of the conflict was the arrival of a camel of the former tribe into the reserved pastureland of the other tribe who slaughtered it. The camel owner, a lady named Basʿs, belonged to the former tribe.²

Another war of the same nature broke out between Qays ibn Zuhayr, the chief of Banʿ-Fazlrah over a horse race. Djlis and al-Ghabrj were the names of two horses which took part in this competition. The former belonged to Qays and the latter to ʿudhayfah. Both Qays and ʿudhayfah claimed that their horses won. This minor event culminated in a disaster in which many lives were lost.³ These kinds of calamities have been termed Ayyim

¹ Shaykh al-Kulayn, op cit, p. 181.

² Muʿammad al-Mad Jid al-Mawl Bek, ʿAl Muʿammad al-Bajjw, Muʿammad Abʿl-Faʿl Ibrhʿm: Ayyim al-ʿArab f al-Jhiliyyah, pp. 142-168; Ibn al-Athʿr: al-Kmil f l-Tjrk 1:523-539.

³ Ibn Hushim: Sʿrat al-Nab 1:307; Yiqʿt al-ʿamaw: Muʿjam al-Buld 1:268.

Ibn al-Athʿr (in al-Kmil f l-Tjrk 1:566-582) and Jid al-Mawl Bek (in Ayyim al-ʿArab pp. 246-277) consider the owner of the two horses to be one person namely, Qays.

al-ʿArab on which numerous books have been written.

Of course, on some occasions, camels would be paid to the family of the diseased one as blood money. In every tribe, it was up to the elderly people to solve such conflicts. Solutions were offered, but not imposed and the tribes would accept such peaceful solutions due to their involvement in the tiring wars. If the murderer's tribe submitted the murderer to the other tribe who had lost a member, wars could be prevented. However, such submission was not honorable. Therefore, they preferred to punish the wrongdoer. In the conceptualization of the desert dweller, keeping one's face was the very essence of ethics.

These desert rules and regulations were carried out in the cities of ʿijz, i.e. ʿif, Mecca and Medina. This is because these citizens resembled the desert dwellers in many ways: they were independent and free, as they obeyed nobody whatsoever. However, these prestige-keeping behaviors which manifested themselves in extremity within the desert were somehow moderated in Mecca due to the respect that they showed towards the Kaaba and because of the trade, contracts which were held in that holy place.¹

The Holy Qurʿn has condemned this sort of revenge-taking and stipulated justice as the basis for the protection of people. It emphasized the fact that Muslims should maintain justice even if this justice might endanger themselves or their parents.

O You who believe! Be maintainers and justify bearers

¹ Brockleman, op cit, pp. 8.

of witness of Allah's sake, though it may be against your own selves or your parents or near relatives; if he be rich or poor, Allah is nearer to them both in compassion; therefore do not follow your low desires, lest you deviate; and if you swerve or turn aside, then surely Allah is aware of what you do. (4:135)

Manslaughter and Plunder

The desert-dwelling Arab did not show any love or sympathy towards anybody outside his own tribe. This kind of affection did not go beyond one's own family and tribe the members of which were close relatives. An Arab's field of thinking and understanding was within the narrow range of the tribe. The desert-dwelling Arab, like extremist nationalists of our time, cared for his own interests and those of his close relatives. This behavior was manifested by one Arab, who was still under the influence of his previous culture after the advent of Islam and said at the time of praying, "O God, bless me and bless Mu'ammad; but do not bless anybody else."¹

The deprivation imposed by the severe conditions of the desert on the desert-dwelling Arabs forced them to engage in plundering. This was due to the fact that their land lacked the common assets of other lands. They used to compensate for this deprivation through plundering. They considered engagement in plundering the caravans a kind of bravery and honor in the same way that capture and besiegement of a city is considered honorable at our own time.²

¹ ʿaʿl al-Bukhārī 8:327-8, H. 893. Similar to this is mentioned in Sunan Abū-Djwād 4:271.

² Gustav Le Bon, op cit, pp. 63,

Of course, one of the causes for plundering and wars was rivalry among tribes to capture the pastures. At times, bloody conflicts occurred for the attainment of chiefship. For instance, at the time of the death of an elder brother who used to be the chief, the younger brothers desired for that position, and the deceased chief's sons, too, wanted to get their father's position. Under such conditions, fight and struggles for power were inevitable. In such moments, poets also agitated people to be involved for more bloodshed. They chanted tribal prides, criticized other rival tribes and mobilized people to take revenge. Minor issues were the usual causes for such bloody conflicts, it was then up to the two antagonistic tribes to annihilate one another mercilessly.¹ Savagery and avoidance of civilized ways was among the reasons for their plundering. In the opinion of Ibn Khaldūn, this nation was savage. Plundering and savagery were embedded in their very morale. For instance, when they needed stones to build a fireplace, they used to destroy buildings; they used to destroy buildings and castles in order to prepare woods required for erecting tents. They got their sustenance by means of swords; they would not be satisfied easily; they showed greed for plunder; they would grab any piece of wealth they could put their hands on.²

Plundering was one of their sources of income. When they attacked a tribe, they would confiscate their camels and enslave their wives and children. Still another tribe would carry out the same pernicious acts in a later time.

¹ ʿasan Ibrāhīm ʿasan, op cit, 1:38.

² Muqaddimat Ibn Khaldūn 1:285-286.

When they could not locate an enemy, they would destroy one another. This is made clear through the poem of al-Qaṣṣimī, a poet in the reign of the Umayyad rulers, who composed:

“It is our job to attack our neighbors and our enemies, and in those moments when we cannot locate anybody else except for our brother, we will attack him.”¹

The revenge-based wars between the two tribes of Aws and Khazraj in Yathrib (Medina) were so severe and widespread that nobody dared to leave his home. These wars had destroyed the lives of the Arabs. God mentions in the Holy Qur'ān their catastrophic condition and emphasizes the brotherhood among people which was the result of Islam:

Remember the favor of Allah on you when you were enemies, then He united your hearts so by His favor you became brethren; and you were on the brink of a pit of fire, then He saved you from it; thus does Allah make clear to you His communications that you may follow the right way. (3:103)

The Forbidden Months

A ceasefire (called sacred peace) was held among Arabs only during the Sacred Months (i.e. Dhu'l-Qa'dah, Dhu'l-ḥijjah, Muḥarram, and Rajab) out of their respect for a tradition left from the time of Prophet Abraham and Prophet Ishmael.² During these tranquil times, Arabs could have peace of mind and engage in trades or ¹ Aḥmad Amīn, op cit, pp. 9; Phillip ḥittī, op cit, pp. 35; ʿamīyat Abi-Tammīm, pp. 32, Calcutta: Leisi Publishing House, 1895 AD.

² ʿabīṣabīʿ: al-Maʿzīn fī Tafsīr al-Qur'ān 9:272.

pilgrimage.¹

If any war occurred during these sacred months, they would be called ʿarb al-Fujjīr or a sinful fight. (the Holy Qur'ān 9:37)

Women in the Arab Society

Arabs' outlook towards women was one of the manifestations and outcomes of ignorance during the period of Jihiliyyah (pre-Islamic ignorance). Women were denied their human rights and independence. The very existence of women and girls at home was a sign of inferiority and shame for a family.² They would deprive girls of inheritance and believed those who defend their tribes (i.e. boys) who use their swords are entitled to inheritance.³ In accordance with a narration, women were considered as merchandise. Upon her husband's death, the wife, if she did not have a son, would be transferred, along with the husband's other commodities, to the son of

¹ By exchanging the names of the months and through postponing and procrastinating the forbidden months, the Arabs were engaged in wars during these months. For this very reason, God said:

“Postponing of the sacred month is only an addition in unbelief, where with those who disbelieve are led astray, violating it one year and keeping it sacred another, that they may agree in numb of months that Allah has made sacred, and thus violate what Allah has made sacred; the evil of their doings is made fair-seeming to them; and Allah does not guide the unbelieving people.”

² Sayyid Muḥammad ʿusayn ʿabīṣabīʿ, Al-Maʿzīn fī Tafsīr al-Qur'ān, 2:267.

³ Abī'l-ʿAbbās al-Mubarrad: al-Kīmil fī al-Lughah wa'l-Adab 1:393. Muḥammad ibn ʿabīb, al-Muʿabbar, pp. 324.

her husband from other wives.¹

In accordance with some pieces of evidence, upon the death of one's husband, a woman would become the wife of her eldest son who would draw a piece of cloth on her step-mother's face and consider her item of inheritance and would marry her without any dowry. If he was reluctant to marry his stepmother, he would then ask another man to marry her and make use of her dowry for himself. If he preferred, he could deprive her stepmother of any future marriages so that after her death he could possess her wealth.

Thus, at the time of Arab Ignorance, marrying one's stepmother was not illegal. For this reason, the Holy Qur'in has prohibited it.² According to some interpreters, when a man called Ab£-Qays ibn al-Aslat died and his eldest son wanted to marry his mother, the following verse was revealed:

It is not lawful for you that you should take women as heritage against their will. (4:22)³

In those dark days, polygamy was very prevalent.⁴

The Tragedy of Women

¹ Shaykh al-Kulayn£, al-Fur£` min al-Kif£ 6:406.

² ±abj£abj`£, op cit 4:254-258; al-Suy£££, al-Durr al-Manth£r 2:131-132; al-Shahrist£ni, al-Milal wa'l-Ni'al 2:254; °asan, Women's Rights in Islam and Europe, pp. 34. The one who married his stepmother after his father's death was named @ayzan. (Mu'ammad ibn °ab£b, al-Mu'abbar, pp. 325) Ibn Qutaybah al-Daynawar£ has named some these women who married their stepsons upon their husbands' death (al-Ma`jrif, p112.)

³ ±abj£abj`£, op cit, 4:258; Tafs£r al-±abar£ 4:207.

⁴ ±abj£abj`£, op cit, 2: 267.

As it is well-known, one of the Arabs' worst habits at the time of Ignorance was the practice of burying daughters alive. They would bury their daughters alive because they were thought to be unable to defend the tribal interests. Such men also feared that their daughters could be enslaved by their enemies, be married to them and give birth to children. This, they assumed, would be a sign of shame for them.¹ Some others buried their daughters alive due to severe poverty and wretchedness. (6:151)² As a whole, daughters were received as nasty beings. They were held as a sign of disgrace. The Holy Qur'in describes them in the following manner:

And when a daughter is announced to one of them, his face becomes black and he is full of wrath. He hides himself from the people because of the evil of that which is announced to him. Shall he keep it with disgrace or bury it alive in the dust? Now surely evil is what they judge. (16:58-59)

Women's deprivation and conviction are reflected amply in the Arab literature of those days. It was a custom for the Arab men to sympathize with a man who became a father to a daughter. They would tell him, "May God keep you from her disgrace. May God provide you with the expenses that she would create for you. May Gay turn her bridegroom's house into grave."

Regarding this, an Arab poet has written the following poem:

¹ Shaykh `Abb£s al-Qumm£, Saf£nat al-Bi`j£r 1:197; Ibn Ab£'l-°ad£d, Shar' Nahj al-Bal£ghah 13:174; Shaykh al-Kulayn£, al-U££l min al-Kif£ 18:163; al-Qur£ub£, Tafs£r J£mi` al-A/k£m 19:232.

² Al-Qur£ub£, op cit pp. 232.

“For any father who has a daughter and wishes to keep her, there are three kinds of bridegrooms: A house where she can shelter; a husband who can keep her, and a grave to protect her; but the best the grave.”

A story is told that a man, called Abġ-°amzah, stayed with the neighbors because his wife had given birth to a girl. His wife playfully said the following piece of poetry for her child:

“What has happened to Abġ-°amzah who has left us, living with the neighbors. He is angry because I have not given birth to a son. By God I swear, it is not upon us to decide on the sex of the child. We will receive what we are given.”

This mother's speech is in fact a revolt against the tyrant social conditions prevailing over the Arab community in those days, and depicts the tragedy of women then. The first tribe to establish such a nasty institution was the tribe of Banġ-Tamġm. It is said that upon their refusal to pay tribunes to al-Nu`mġn ibn al-Mundhir, there broke out a severe war in which the women and girls of Tamġm were taken prisoners. When Tamġm's representatives went to al-Nu`mġn's court to receive the prisoners, the women were given option to either stay at al-°ġrah or return home among the Tamġmġ people. The daughter of Qays ibn `°ġim, the chief of the tribe, who was among the prisoners and had married a courtier, chose to stay at the court. Qays became utterly upset and decided to kill his daughters from then on.¹ This custom gradually became widespread and it is said that the tribes Qays, Asad, Hudhayl, and Bakr ibn Wġ'il committed this crime from then on.¹ Of course, not everybody or tribe performed such nasty crimes. Some tribes and dignified people, such as `Abd al-MuŖŖalib, the Holy Prophet's grandfather, opposed it.² Individuals such as Zayd ibn `Amr ibn Nufayl and `a`ġa`ah ibn Nġġiyah would take those girls who were supposed to be buried alive due to their parents' poverty and keep them safe.³ Sometimes, they provided their parents with some camels.⁴ However, there is a lot of evidence which indicates that this keeping of such girls was common:

¹ Al-Mubarrad, op cit, 1:392; Ibn Abġ'l-°adġd op cit, 13:179.

1. `a`ġa`ah ibn Nġġiyah once told the Holy Prophet that he had saved 280 girls from being buried alive.⁵

2. Qays ibn `°ġim killed twelve or thirteen of his daughters after he had taken the decision to do so.⁶

¹ Ibn Abġ'l-°adġd, op cit, 13:174.

² Al-°lġŖ, op cit, 1:324; Tġrġkh al-Ya`ġġbġ, 2:10.

³ Al-°lġŖ, op cit, 3:45; Ibn Hushġm, al-Sġrah al-Nabawiyyah, 1:240.

⁴ Mu'ammad Abġ'l-Faġl Ibrġhġm, et al, Qġġaġ al-`Arab 2:31, Abġ'l-`Abbġs al-Mubarrad, op cit, pp. 394.

Al-Farazdaq, a Muslim poet, took pride in his grandfather, `a`ġa`ah, for he had objected to burying newborn girls alive. See al-QurŖubġ, TafŖġr Jġmi` al-A/kġm, 19:232.

⁵ Abġ'l-`Abbġs al-Mubarrad, op cit, 1:394.

⁶ Ibn al-Athġr, UŖd al-Gġġbah, 4:220.

It is narrated that Qays ibn `°ġim converted to Islam and came to the Prophet, saying, “Before Islam, I buried eight of my daughters alive. How could I make up for it now?” The Prophet replied, “Free eight slaves for what you have done.” He said, “I have many camels.” The Prophet replied, “If you wish, you may slaughter eight camels.” See al-QurŖubġ, TafŖġr Jġmi` al-A/kġm 19:233.

3. In the first treaty at al-`Aqabah (12 years after the Holy Prophet's Divine Mission) which the Holy Prophet held with some groups of Yathrib, one paragraph concerned the avoidance of burying daughters alive.¹

4. After the Conquest of Mecca, one of the items of the treaty with the women of this city stipulated that they should refrain from killing their children.

5. The Holy Qur'ān has condemned the practice of burying daughters alive on several occasions:

And do not kill your children for fear of poverty; We give them sustenance and yourselves too; surely to kill them is a great wrong. (17:31)

And thus their associates have made fair seeming to most of the polytheists the killing of their children, that they may cause them to perish and obscure for them their religion. (6:137)

They are lost indeed who kill their children foolishly without knowledge, and forbid what Allah has given to them, forging a lie against Allah. (6:140)

And do not slay your children for fear of poverty-We provide for you and for them. (6:151)

And when the female infant buried alive is asked for what sin she was killed. (81:8-9)

¹ Ibn Hushim, op cit, 2:75.

CHAPTER TWO

Moral Features of the Arabs

Opposing Traits

Despite the savage nature and plundering inclinations, the nomadic Arab possessed some good traits such as generosity, hospitality and bravery. He strongly stuck to his promises and kept his word so much so that at times he even endangered his wellbeing to keep his promises; and this loyalty to his promises was his most distinguishing feature. The presence of such differing traits in the nomadic Arabs makes us wonder.

If the Arabs had not lived in such a hostile land, it would have been difficult for us to know the reason for such contrasts. The same Arab who desired for plundering and did not hesitate to commit the most vicious crimes showed sympathy, emotions and hospitality inside his tent. If a needy person referred to him for help, he would assist him generously and at times would endanger his own life for their wellbeing.¹ A nomadic Arab considered it the highest point of honor and dignity to show bravery on the battlefield, to be extremely generous, to be loyal to his tribal interests, and to be harsh in taking revenge against those who have wronged him or his relatives or tribe.¹

The Roots for the Arab's Good Manners:

Despite the fact that Arabs were most often engaged in bloody fights over the possession of pastures, they had come to understand this truism that they should engage in the highest form of hospitality towards others since they lived in a hostile land in which resting-places or hotels were not available to provide travelers with shelters. Poets at the Ignorance Era, who acted like journalists of our time, used to emphasize the notion of hospitality and admire this human trait more than other human traits.²

It should be however noted that the roots of most of their good traits, such as bravery, hospitality, generosity, and protecting the needy, did not rest in their human and spiritual values; rather, these traits had their roots in the culture of the Ignorance Era. They performed these human traits out of their rivalry and competition with other members of society. This is because that harsh environment called for bravery and audacity. Love for a good name and leadership and fear of poets' criticism and wish to avoid being called misers and mean persons led Arabs to show great signs of generosity and protection towards those in trouble.³

¹ Gustav le Bon, the civilization of Islam and the Arabs, pp. 64-65. Will Durant writes concerning this topic, "The nomad was kind, generous and savage; he was Jealous, miser and traitor; he was and dissolute and conservative. Despite his poverty, he was generous; he faced the world with elegance." See The Story of Civilization 4:201.

¹ Almad Amçn, Fajr al-Islām, pp. 76.

² Phillip ʿittç, the Arab History, pp. 33-35.

³ Murtaç al-`milç, al-`a'ç' mi Şerāt al-Rasʿl al-A``am, 1:50-54.

Ignorance and Superstition

The nomadic Arab of °ijz who lived mostly in the desert lacked true civilization; he was dominated by extreme fanatics and incapable of comprehending the relations of nature. He could not analyze the phenomena in nature critically and was unable to understand cause and effect relations. When a sick man received some drugs, he was incapable of analyzing critically the relationship between pain and disease. The only thing he knew was the fact that his clan-mates used to take this medicine under similar conditions. For instance, he naively accepted that the tribal chief's blood would remedy the disease of rabies, which was the result of a dog's bite. In the same way, he was under the illusion that the cause of sickness was a malicious spirit which entered the sick man's body. For this reason, attempts were made to expel this intruder from the sick man's body. In the case of mental sickness, they used to put the dead men's stones over the ill person's body so that illness might be cured. They strongly believed in spirits; they believed these creatures loomed in deserted places at night or they trouble travelers at night. When cows were taken to the river to drink water and a cow refused to drink, they thought the reason for her refusal was the presence of a devil inside the bull's horns. In order to drive the devil away, they used to strike the head of the bull.¹ Such funny events were very common among them.

The Arabs would not show any sign of doubt regarding these superstitious acts so far as they were carried out by others, because the source of doubt and skepticism lies in one's critical thinking. They lacked such sophistications in those days. Of course, at times some bright signs of clear thinking and bright ideas could be observed in their poems, proverbs and tales. However, even these lacked deep thought or analytic aspects. This inability of analysis of phenomena was the root of all sorts of superstitions in which they strongly believed and books of the history of the Arabs contain a lot of them.¹

¹ Ma'm£d Shukr£ al-°l£s£, Bul£gh al-Irab 2:303.

Arab Sciences and Arts

Some scholars have tried to prove that the nomadic Arabs were in command of such sciences as medicine, astronomy and physiognomy.² However, this is an exaggeration. The Arab's knowledge in these domains was sporadic, unorganized and mostly based on lucky guesses. This sort of knowledge came down to them through elderly women and men of the tribe. It could not be termed science. For instance, the Arabs' knowledge of astronomy was limited to the recognition of some stars and the time of their rising and setting. This kind of knowledge was necessary for the navigation of their camels on the vast expanses of the deserts or the recognition of the time for prayers. Ibn Khald£n states,

Their knowledge of medicine was based, most often, on short-lived and narrow experiences. This sort of medicine was inherited from elderly men and women from one generation to another. Some sick people might haphazardly be cured, but these treatments were not based on any laws.¹

¹ For further information for the superstitions of the Arabs before Islam, see Bul£gh al-Irab 2:303-367; Ibn Ab£'l-°ad£d, Shar' Nahj al-Bal£ghah 19:382-429.

² al-°l£s£, op cit, 3:182, 223, 261, and 327.

The medical treatment of some physicians such as ʿĪrith ibn Kildah was of this sort.

An illiterate nation

In the interpretation of the Holy Qurʾān, people of ʿĪjz were illiterate. They had remained as illiterate as when they were born. They could neither write nor read. Al-Bulḍharḡ states:

At the advent of Islam, only seventeen persons in Quraysh and Yathrib and eleven others from the tribes of Aws and Khazraj could read or write.²

This situation existed in spite of the fact that people of Quraysh were affluent in Mecca and business and trade naturally asked for a trader to be literate. Thus, how is it possible for such an advanced stage of science?

Poetry

At the Ignorance Era, the only privilege the nomadic Arabs possessed was their skill in poetry and rhetoric. Poetry, in particular, had reached its climax. Poets played the roles of historians, genealogists, satirists, moralists, journalists, fortune-tellers and war-announcers.³ In those days, the great Arab poets used to present their poems at season-bazaars, such as the bazaar of ʿUkī, Dhḡl-Majīz, and al-Majannah,⁴ which were held in the form of trade, literary and general exhibitions. The selection of any poem as a masterpiece was a great sign for the poet and

¹ Muqaddimat Ibn Khaldūn 2:1034.

² Futūḥ al-Bulḍjān, pp. 457-454.

³ Will Durant, the Story of Civilization 4:202.

⁴ Al-Muʿallaqāt al-Sabʿah.

his tribe and his poem was hung on the Kaaba's walls.¹ For this reason, they were called al-Muʿallaqāt (the suspensions). Arab poems, despite their superficial eloquence, lacked sublime thoughts and richness due to the fact that this nation lacked proper culture and civilization. The contents of this poetry relied heavily on the topics of love, wine, women, epics, and tribal issues and their beauty lay in the superficial glamour of language and literary subtleties.

Arabs and the Neighboring Civilizations

When we study Arab sciences and arts, we may ask the following question: Did the Arabs of the Ignorance Era benefit from the two civilized nations of those days: namely, Iran and Rome? Did their trade transactions with these two states change their way of life in any way? To answer these questions, we should be reminded that people of ʿĪjz, due to their geopolitical status, were not only away from the political domination of the neighboring lands but also stayed away from their cultural influences. Arabs could have the influences of the neighboring civilizations and cultures only in three ways: trade, the Iranians, and the Jews and Christians.

We should however see to what degree this influence was active. Some remarks made by certain historians considering this topic have been exaggerative. For instance, some say:

The relations of the Arab tribes with both Iran and Rome to a certain degree made them familiar with these two civilizations: Those Arabs who traveled between Iran and Rome for trade purposes observed the manifestations of civilization in these two centers. These influences could be vividly observed in the poems left from the Ignorance Era. Furthermore, many travelers and traders took with them many words and stories from Iran and Rome to the Arabian Peninsula; in this way, some of the ideologies of Iranians and Romans entered Arab culture.¹

¹ Concerning these marts, see Bulḡh al-ʿIrāq 2:264-270.

However, it should be noted that these trade transactions between traders of ʿijz and the Iranian or Roman merchants did not have any significant influence over the cultural or intellectual advancement of these people. This is because information was hard to pass through mental sieves of these nomads. Most often, what they passed on to others contained a lot of distortions. This is shown in many Arab axioms whose sources are either Solomon's tales or Iranian stories. In general, the Arabs in those days did not receive science from others systematically. The obstacles in the way of such receptions were the following:

(1) Natural barriers, such as mountains, seas, and deserts; these barriers created problems for Arab's connection with the outside world.

(2) Huge mental, intellectual and social differences between the Romans and Iranians on one hand and the Arabs on the other hand.

(3) Illiteracy among the Arabs had caused those who came in contact with both Iranians and Romans to memorize and narrate the axioms or the tales in such a way as to be comprehensible to ordinary people.

¹ ʿasan Ibrāhīm ʿasan, the political History of Islam 1:24.

Thus, it could be concluded that the Arab's relationships with the neighboring lands had effects only on their financial, material and literary life.¹

On the Jews' influences too, it is said that they emigrated to ʿijz since the time of Prophet Moses due to the Romans' aggressions after the destruction of Jerusalem.² The arrival of Jews in ʿijz had a tremendous effect on the social life of the whole region and the stories of the Old Testament and Talmud became known to the Arabs of ʿijz.³

Of course, the influence of Jewish culture on the people of the Arabian Peninsula cannot be denied and there are documents revealing the fact that the Jews were superior to the Arabs in the intellectual and religious domains. Even after the advent of Islam, many Muslims used to ask them religious questions.⁴ Since Judaism, like Christianity, had been severely distorted, the thoughts that the Arabs received from the Jews were extremely disturbed and distorted. Not only were Jewish instructions unhelpful but also they added to the Arabs' confusion.

The Arab's Inferiority vis-à-vis Iran and Rome

As we have already noted, people of ʿijz used to have a tribal life in the desert, lacking central government to

¹ Fajr al-Islām, pp. 29.

² The Jews mostly lived in Yathrib, Fadak and Taymī. A few of them lived in ʿif. However, there is no indication of any Jew population in Mecca.

³ Georgi Zaydīn, the History of the Islamic civilization, 1:16.

⁴ ʿaʿ/ al-Bukhārī 9:136.

unite them. They were mostly involved in tribal conflicts. For this reason, they were wretched and backward and were not noticed by the people of the world.

The Arabs were so entangled in the narrow sphere of their tribal atmosphere and were so involved in the prejudices and dogmas. They were also so deprived and disorganized that they could never think about affairs occurring outside their immediate surroundings. They could never think of defeating their neighboring powerful states of Iran and Rome; rather, they felt extremely powerless, wretched and inferior towards these two civilizations. An Arab person, namely Qatjdah, introduced the Arabs of those days as the most miserable, wretched, backward, misguided, begging and hungry people in the world. He says,

“The Arabs were caught between two lions, from both of whom they feared.”¹

A piece of evidence for this feeling of inferiority comes from the Holy Prophet's dialogue with the Arabs in Mecca. When he was trying to spread his ideologies among the Arabs, he encountered a group of distinguished Arab individuals. He recited to them some of the verses of the Holy Qur'ān which were concerned with native and ethical instructions. All of them were highly moved; they began to admire the verses. However, their chief, al-Muthannī ibn ʿJrithah, remarked:

“We are caught between two stretches of water. On one side lie the Arab shores; on the other lie Iran and

¹ Tafsīr al-ṭabarī 4:25; Zījīyah Qaddīrah, Al-Shuʿbiyyah, pp. 24; Aḥmad Amīn, ʿuḥr al-Islām 1:18.

Khosrow rivers. We have pledged to Khosrow not to create any problem and not to protect or shelter any wrongdoer. Perhaps your ideologies are not palatable to the kings. If we do anything wrong here, it would be pardoned, but such mistakes and errors in the Iranian borders are not pardonable by Khosrow, the king of Iran.¹

Imaginary Pride

Regarding the Arab inferiority complex, historians have written:

The Tamīm tribe faced a drought, but Khosrow did not allow them to make use of the fertile lands of Iraq. Then, one of their noblemen, named ʿJjib ibn Zurīrah, came to Khosrow's court as a representative of his tribe. Khosrow said, “You, Arabs, are traitors. If I let you use these fertile lands, you will agitate and excite people against me and make me worried.” ʿJjib replied, “I assure you such a thing would never happen.” Khosrow then asked, “How would you guarantee this?” ʿJjib answered, “I pledge my bow with you.” Khosrow accepted. Thus, ʿJjib's bow was kept by Khosrow as a pledge (ʿJjib's bow was a symbol of his bravery, chivalry and manhood). After ʿJjib's death, his son ʿUṣīrad received his father's bow from Khosrow.² After this event and for a long time, people of the Tamīm tribe considered this pledge high point of honor.³

On the other hand, since the Banī-Shaybān, with the

¹ Qīṣṣat al-ʿArab 2:358; Ibn Kathīr, al-Bidʿyah waʾl-Nihāyah 3:144.

² al-ʿIṣṣā, Bulgh al-ʿArab 1:311-313; Muḥammad Ibn ʿAbd-Rabbīh, al-Iqd al-Farīd 2:20; Ibn Qutaybah, al-Maʿjirif, 608.

³ Aḥmad Amīn, ʿuḥr al-Islām 1:19.

assistance of Banʿ-Ujal and Banʿ-Yashkur, had overcome Khosrow Parviz in the Battle of Dḥ̣-Q̣̣r,¹ this victory was a point of honor for them; they looked at it unbelievably. Whenever they remembered it, they would take pride in it. They did not dare to call it the victory of Arabs over the Persians; they considered it an accident, but not as point of honor. They would recognize it as the pride of three Arab tribes and not just one. Their self-admiration reached such a point that Abʿ-Ṭammīm, a poet, composed a poem in the honor of Abʿ-Dulaf al-ʿAjaḷ in spite of the fact that the Taṃm tribe had one day taken pride in having asked Khosrow to accept ʿij̣ib's bow as a sign of his pledge for loyalty:

Once Taṃm took honor in having pledged his bow and considered this as a point of honor;

However, your swords at the war of Dḥ̣-Q̣̣r overthrew the thrones of those who had taken ʿij̣ib's bow as a pledge.²

The Ignorance Era

In our discussions so far, we have referred to the people of the Arabian Peninsula prior to the advent of

¹ The direct reason for this war was the following: Khosrow wished to marry the daughter of al-Nuʿmān ibn al-Mundhir, the king of al-ʿġrah. Upon his refusal, he was called to the Iranian court and was put in prison where he died. Khosrow ordered Ḥ̣ṇ̣ ibn Masʿūd al-Shayḅ̣ṇ̣ to submit al-Nuʿmān's wealth to him. He, however, refused to do so. Later, Khosrow dispatched an army to fight Banʿ-Shayḅ̣ṇ̣. Khosrow lost that war. See Ibn al-Atḥ̣r, al-Ḳ̣mil f̣̣ ʿl-Ṭ̣ṛ̣kh 1:485-484; al-Maqdisi: al-Badʿ waʿl-Ṭ̣ṛ̣kh 3:26.

² Aʿmad Aṃ̣n, ʿuhr al-Isḷ̣m 1:19; Masʿūḍ̣, al-Tanḅ̣h waʿl-Ishṛ̣f, pp. 209; Jaḷ̣l al-Ḍ̣n Hoṃ̣ỵ̣, Shuʿḷ̣biyyah, pp. 11-12.

Islam as an ignorant people, living in an era of ignorance. There are documents showing that this idiomatic expression was taken from the Holy Qurʾān and was used by Muslims to describe this specific era and had taken on a special meaning and flavor.¹ Some contemporary historians estimate the time interval of 150-200 years prior to Prophet Muḥammad's prophethood for the existence of the Ignorance Era.²

Although the word J̣̣ḥ̣iliyyah is taken from Jahl (meaning ignorance), the word Jahl here is not taken to be the opposite of science or knowledge; rather, it the opposite of wisdom and logic.

Having lacked knowledge, the people of the Arabian Peninsula were illiterate at that time. They were given the name ignorant not due to their lack of knowledge, but because of their wrong and negative attitudes and illogical thinking and because of their prejudice, selfishness, false pride and vengeful attitude. Islam, however, strongly opposed these negative and destructive inclinations.³ Perhaps, under such conditions, jahl connotes the meaning of being stupid, which is not based on illiteracy.⁴

¹ Jaẉ̣d ʿAḷ̣, al-Mufaḥḥal 1:41-42.

² ʿUmar Farṛ̣kh, ʿadr al-Isḷ̣m waʿl-Dawlah al-Umawiyyah, pp. 39.

³ ʿAḅ̣ṣ̣aḅ̣i ʿ, Al-Ṃ̣ẓ̣̣j̣̣n f̣̣ Tafṣ̣r al-Qurʾān 4:151-155; Aʿmad Aṃ̣n, Fajr al-Isḷ̣m, pp. 74-78; al-ʿġṣ̣, Buḷ̣gh al-ʿIrāb 1:15-18; Shawq̣̣ ʿayf, Ṭ̣ṛ̣kh al-ʿAdab al-ʿAraḅ̣ 1:39.

Confirming this piece of information, jahl is the opposite of ʿikmah (wisdom) according to some narrations reported in reliable reference books like al-Ḳ̣f̣̣.

⁴ Jaẉ̣d ʿAḷ̣ says: "In my view, j̣̣ḥ̣iliyyah is stemmed from stupidity,

In the Holy Qur'ān, the word ignorance or Jihiliyyah has been used with the meanings we have already referred to. Some of those cases are referred to below:

(1) The unfounded expectations of some superficial believers who wanted the Holy Prophet to do things in accordance with their whimsical wishes were termed Ignorant. (Qur'ān 5: 50)

(2) God has referred to the blind tribal prejudices of the idol-worshipping Arab as ignorance. (Qur'ān 48: 26)

(3) The Holy Prophet's wives were warned not to appear among community with the ornaments of the women of the earlier times. (Qur'ān 33:33)

(4) God refers to the feeble-minded who, after the defeat of Muslims in the Battle of Uhud, had lost their faith and their morale as ignorant. (Qur'ān 3:154)

(5) God tells the story of the nation of Prophet Moses who had refused his orders to sacrifice a cow by replying, “Do you make fun of us?” Then, Prophet Moses remarked, “I take shelter in God not to be one of the ignorant ones.” (Qur'ān 2: 67)

Depicting the miserable life of the idol-worshipping Arabs, Imam `Alī (a.s) refers to their stupidity.¹

pride, anger, arrogance and stubbornness towards God's commands. These features are strongly condemned by Islam. In our days, we rebuke a stupid person who utters taboo or nasty words by the following expression: Go away, you ignorant and silly one. This does not mean that he is illiterate.” See al-Mufaṣṣal, 1:40.

¹ Nahj al-Balighah, Sermon 95.

CHAPTER THREE

Sects and Religions in the Arabian Peninsula and its Surroundings

Despite the fact that at the advent of Islam the prevailing belief of the Arabs involved idol-worshipping, there were different religions, such as Christianity, Judaism, °ançfiyyah, Mġnawiyyah, Sabian and other schools practiced in different localities of Arabia. Thus, the Arabs did not follow a specific sect. For this reason, there was a sort of fatigue and delusion among the followers of these sects. we will hereinafter deal with each of these sects, yet briefly:

Monotheists

Monotheists or °ançfiyyah¹ were those who, despite the infidels and atheists, believed in One and Only God and probably believed in the punishment of the Doomsday. Some members of this group believed in Christianity; but historians have included them with the °ançfiyyah. Among the °ançfiyyah are the following individuals: Waraqah ibn Nawfal, `Ubaydullġh ibn Ja'ish, `Uthmġn ibn °uwayrith, Zayd ibn `Amr ibn Nufayl,² al-Nġbighah al-

Ja`dç (Qays ibn `Abdullġh), Umayyah ibn Abçl-`alt, Qiss ibn Sġ`idah al-Iyġdç, Abç-Qays `urmah ibn Abç-Anas, Zuhayr ibn Abç-Sulmġ, Abç-`amir al-Awsç (`Abd `Amr ibn `ayfç), `Addġs (the servant of `Utbah ibn Rabç`ah), Ri'ġb al-Shannç, and Ba'çrġ the monk.¹ Some of these people were among the distinguished philosophers or poets.

Of course, the secret behind their inclinations towards monotheism lay in their pure and clean human nature and their bright thoughts. The prevalent ill-ominous sects of those days could not satisfy their spiritual needs. These distinguished individuals deeply believed in Almighty God and refrained from following an illogical set of beliefs such as those of idol-worshippers. Christianity and Judaism, too, had lost their vigor and spirituality with the passage of time and could not offer any means of tranquility to those men. For this reason, we observe that some of these God-seekers suffered the pains of journeys to find the truth. They had long discussions with Christian and Jewish scholars.² They impatiently looked for the signs of prophethood of the Holy Prophet to which there were numerous references in the Holy Books. Since they could not reach any accomplishment, they accepted the very first principle of monotheism. However, we do not know anything about the way they carried out their

¹ °ançf (pl. °unafġ) is one following the religion of Prophet Abraham. See ±abarsç, Majma` al-Bayġn 1:216.

² Mu'ammad Ibn °abçb, al-Mu'abbar, pp. 171.

¹ Mas`Edç, Murçġ al-Dhahab 1:60-68; Ibn Hushġm, al-Sçrah al-Nabawiyyah 1:237; Ibn Kathçr, al-Sçrah al-Nabawiyyah 1:122-165; Mu'ammad Ibn Islġq, al-Maghġzç, pp. 115-116; Mu'ammad Ibn °abçb, al-Munammaq fç Akhbġr Quraysh, pp. 152-153; Mu'ammad Ibrġhçm °yati, the History of the Prophet of Islam, pp. 13-19.

² Ibn Kathçr, op cit, pp. 156; Qiyāç al-`Arab 1:72.

religious ceremonies.

It should be noted, however, that contrary to the view of some scholars, °anʿfiyyah did not play any role in guiding the Arab society towards monotheism; rather, as some other historians have stated, they spent their lives in seclusion. They spent their time in deliberation and contemplation, as they were never well-organized. They did not possess any sect with preset commandments or principles. What they were fond of was their seclusion and staying away from the population and refraining from worshipping idols. They were convinced that the prevalent ideology was a corrupt one. They did not give themselves the trouble of propagating their right ideas. For this very reason, they did not have any conflict with people of their own time.¹

Christianity

There were some followers of Christianity, too, at some locations of Arabia. This religion had entered Arabia from the south via Ethiopia, and from the north via Syria (The dominated areas by Byzantine) and also from the Sinai Peninsula. However, Christianity achieved no progress in that land.² In the northern parts of the Arabian Peninsula, Christianity had found its way among the members of the tribe of Taghlib (a branch of the tribe of ¹ Jawīd `Alç, al-Mufaṣṣal 6:449. °usayn ±abjṣabj`ç, Committing Treasons In Preparing Historical Accounts 1:120; Ibn Hushjm, al-Ṣrah al-Nabawiyyah 1:237.

² °asan Ibrjḥm °asan, The Political History Of Islam 1:64.

³ Ibid, pp. 64; Shihjb al-Dçn al-Abshahi, al-Mustaṣraf fç kulli fannin Musta`raf 2:88; Ibn Qutaybah, al-Ma`rif, pp. 621; al-°imyarç, al-°Er al-`«n, pp. 136.

Rabç`ah), Ghassjn and some members of the tribe of Quṣj`ah.¹ Qiss ibn Sj`idah, °an`alah al-±j`ç and Umayyah ibn al-`alt have been enumerated as Christians. Some of these had left their cities and communities and joined monasteries in the deserts.²

Christianity in Yemen

Christianity entered Yemen during the fourth century AD. Phillip °attç, a Christian author, writes:

The first Christian missionary headed by Theofilus Endus Erius who arrived at southern Arabia was the one sent by Emperor Contantius in 356 AD. The dispatch of the abovementioned missionary was motivated by the world diplomacy of those days and the rivalry between Iran and Rome over the domination of territories in southern Arabia. Theofilus established a church³ in Aden and two in the country of °imyar. The people of Najrjn accepted the new religion in 500 AD.

At the dawn of Islam, Christianity was prevalent in the tribes of ±ayy, Majladh, Baŕj', Sulayl, Tanḥkh, Ghassjn, Lakhm and Yemen.⁴ The most important center for ³ `Uthmjn ibn °uwayrith and Waraqah ibn Nawfal, belonging to the tribe of BanḤ-Asad, were following °anʿfiyyah. See Tjrçkh al-Ya`qḥç 1:225.

² Almad Amçn, Fajr Al-Isljm, pp. 27.

³ Tjrçkh al-`Arab, pp. 78. Some historians ascribe the indoctrination and introduction of Christianity into Yemen to a Syrian saint called Faymiyçn. See Ibn Hushjm, op cit, 1:32-35; Yiqḥt al-°amawç, Mu`jam al-Buldjn 5:266. However, this seems to be a myth since it is not in agreement with what is narrated by °ettç.

⁴ Tjrçkh al-Ya`qḥç 1:224.

Christianity in Yemen was Najrīn, an advanced city. People used to engage in farming, weaving silky cloth, trading hides and weapon making, this city was located at the trade route which extended up to °ḥrah.¹

Christianity was prevalent in Yemen until the reign of Dhī-Nuwīs who came to power and forced people to put aside their religion. When Christians refused to do so, they were put in fire-pits and burned alive.² Finally, Dhī-Nuwīs was defeated in 525 AD by the intervention of Ethiopia and Christians came to power once again.

Christianity in °ḥrah

Another city where Christianity was prevalent was °ḥrah, to the east of Arabia. This religion had entered the region through Roman slaves. Since the time of Hormoz I, the government of Iran had built some colonies the inhabitants of which were Roman slaves. Some of them lived in °ḥrah. In the view of many, the source of Christian influence in this area was these slaves. Christian missionaries used to live in °ḥrah, promulgating Christianity. They started propagating and spreading

¹ Aḥmad Amḥn, op cit, pp. 26.

² Some exegetes of the Holy Qur'ān say that the verses 4-9 of Sḥrah al-Burġ were revealed in connection with the slaughter of the Christians. This might be a referent of those verses. See al-Mḥẓīn fī Tafsīr al-Qur'ān 20:251-257:

Cursed be the makers of the pit, of the fire kept burning with fuel, when they sat by it. And they were witnesses of what they did with the believers. And they did not take vengeance on them for aught except that they believed in Allah, the Mighty, the praised. Whose is the Kingdom of the heavens and the earth, and Allah is a Witness of all things (Qur'ān 85: 8-9).

Christianity in the Arab markets, discussing the issues of heaven, hell and chastisement. Due to their efforts, some accepted this religion; even Hind, the wife of al-Nuḥmīn X, accepted this religion, building a monastery called Hind's convent. This building was in existence up to the time of al-ḥabar. °an'alah al-ḥi'ḥ, Qiss ibn Sġidah and Umayyah ibn al-ḥalt were from °ḥrah.¹ Al-Nuḥmīn ibn al-Mundhir, the king of °ḥrah, due to the encouragement of Ḥadī ibn Zayd, accepted Christianity.²

Numerous Qur'ānic verses deal with Christian ideas and the weak points in their beliefs and actions, especially their assumptions concerning Christ's divinity.³ This is the best piece of evidence for the existence of this religion in the Arabian Peninsula at the time of the revelation of the Holy Qur'ān. The issue of Mubjhalah; mutual cursing, which is well-known in the history of Islam, took place with the Najrīn priests.⁴

However, Christianity had lost its spirituality and authenticity and had been subject to a lot of distortions. Thus, it could not fill the intellectual and religious vacuum which existed in the mind of people in those days nor could it give any peace of mind anymore.

Judaism

Many centuries prior to the advent of Islam, Judaism had entered certain regions of Arabia. Yathrib was one of the most famous of these regions, which later came to be

¹ Aḥmad Amḥn, op cit, pp. 18,25, 26, 28.

² Qiyāḥ al-ʿArab 1:73; Aḥmad Amḥn, op cit, pp. 27.

³ Qur'ān 5:18, 72, 73; 4:171; 9:30; 5:82.

⁴ Al-Mḥẓīn fī Tafsīr al-Qur'ān 3:228, 233.

called Medina. There were Jewish communities in Taymī',¹ Fadak², and Khaybar.³ The Jews of Yathrib belonged to three tribes: Banī-Naẓr, Banī-Qaynuqī' and Banī-Quray'ah.⁴

Besides these three Jewish settlements, there were in Medina two other Jewish tribes; Aws and Khazaraj, during the third century AD. Upon the establishment of the Jews in Yathrib, these two tribes came from Yemen to live in this city. They were originally idolaters and due to their association with the Jews, some of them embraced Judaism. It is said that there were some Jews living in ʿġif who had been driven out of Yemen and Yathrib by force and they started their engagement in trade.⁵

Wherever they lived in Arabia, the Jews were well-

¹ In the words of Yiqʿt al-ʿamawʿ, Taymī' was a small city between Syria and Wīdʿ al-Qurī. See Muʿjam al-Buldjn 2:67. Wīdʿ al-Qurī is situated between Medina and Syria; it was one of the provinces of Medina. Thus, Taymī' was located between Medina and Syria. Al-Maqdisʿ, a scholar of the fourth century, writes: "Taymī' is an ancient city located in a wide-spread land, full of palm trees, with a lot of orchards and numerous rivers, with a spring of limpid water, which runs from an iron-grid into the pond and then runs into the orchards. There are some fresh water wells therein. However, most of them are ruined." See Aʿsan al-Taqsʿm.

² Fadak is a village of two or three day distance away from Medina. Muʿjam al-Buldjn 4:238.

³ Khaybar is a region 96 miles north of Medina; it included seven strongholds with numerous farmlands and palm-groves. (Muʿjam al-Buldjn 2:404). The distance between Khaybar and Medina is recorded with different numbers. (Taqwʿm al-Buldjn, pp. 123).

⁴ ʿasan Ibrjʿm ʿasan, op cit, pp. 64.

⁵ al-Bulīdharʿ, Futʿ al-Buldjn, pp. 67.

known for farming due to their skills in this activity. In Medina too, they were famous due to their skills in blacksmithing, dyeing, and weaponry.¹ Judaism had some followers among the tribes of ʿimyar, Banī-Kinānah, Banī-ʿjriṯ ibn Kaʿb, Kindah,² Ghassīn and Judhīm.³

Jews in Yemen

Any region in which Jews lived; they propagated the Law of Moses. Yemen, too, was under the influence of the Jews for some time, and Dhī-Nuwīs, the king of Yemen, who had accepted Judaism, started suppressing Christians and announced Judaism as the official religion.

In view of some researchers and historians, Dhī-Nuwīs had some national and patriotic motives rather than religious sentiments, in announcing Judaism as an official religion; that is to say, Christians in Najrīn had friendly relations with Ethiopia and its government. Relying heavily on Najrīn's Christians, they tried to interfere with the internal affairs of Yemen to achieve political objectives. For this reason, by suppressing the Christians, Dhī-Nuwīs and his supporters tried to deprive Ethiopia of this stronghold. After the massacre of Najrīn's Christians, one of them escaped to Ethiopia and begged the Ethiopian emperor for help. This led to a war between two countries in which Dhī-Nuwīs was easily defeated in 525 AD and Najrīn continued to remain an important center for Christianity up to the Holy Prophet prophethood.⁴

¹ Aʿmad Amʿn, Fajr al-Isljm, pp. 24.

² Ibn Qutaybah, al-Maʿrif, pp. 621; al-ʿr al-ʿn, pp. 136.

³ Tjrkʿh al-Yaʿqʿbʿ 1:257.

⁴ Aʿmad Amʿn, op cot, pp. 23, 24, 37; Ibn Hushīm, al-Sʿrah al-

The Sabians

Historians believe that this sect came into being at the time of the kingdom of Tahm̄rath by B̄dh̄sif as its founder. After introducing the history of this sect, Ab̄-Raȳīn al-Bayr̄n̄ (360-440 AH) writes:

We do not know much about them except for the fact that in their opinion, God has no associate and is void of inappropriate epithets (negative attributes). For instance, they declare: God is not limited; He cannot be seen nor does He engage in injustice. They think the universe is managed by the heavens and that celestial bodies have influence upon us. They believe in life, speech, hearing and sight of the heavenly bodies that have control over rays. Believing in the great influences of the stars and their movement on the earthly creatures, Sabians used to keep the statues of these heavenly bodies in their temples. Examples are the statue of the sun in Baalbek, the statue of the moon in °arr̄j̄n and the statue of Venus in a village.¹

The center of Sabian activities was the city of °arr̄j̄n.² This sect used to have followers in Rome, Greece, Babel and other places of the world.³ The Holy Qur'j̄n refers to

Nabawiyyah 1:37. Yiq̄ft al-°amaw̄, Mu`jam al-Buld̄j̄n 5:266.

¹ Al-°h̄j̄r al-B̄qiyah, pp. 294-295.

² °arr̄j̄n was a big city between the Tigris and Euphrates; today, it is a ruined village. At the Advent of Islam, it was a prosperous city in which famous scientists used to live. See Mu`jam al-Buld̄j̄n 3:235-236; Taqw̄m al-Buld̄j̄n, pp. 303, 307, 309; Mu`ammad Mu`̄n, Farhang Farsi 5:457.

³ ±ab̄j̄sab̄i`̄, Al-M̄z̄j̄n f̄ Tafs̄r al-Qur'j̄n 10:279.

them on three occasions.¹ This sect is now disintegrating and only a few of them live in Khuzestan² and Iraq.³

Manichaeism

The sects of Zoroastrianism, Mazdak and Manichaeism all originated in Iran. However, there is no consensus of opinion concerning the influences of these sects over °ij̄z prior to Islam. Some contemporary historians believe these sects were present in Arabia in those years. Historical documents attest to the presence of Manichaeism in Arabia in those days. Ya`q̄b̄ writes:

Some Arabs adopted Judaism as their religion, others accepted Christianity, and some others became heretic and believed in dualism.⁴ Although the word zind̄q (miscreant) originally refers to atheist and denier of God, in the opinion of the scholars, this was used for a group of believers in Manichaeism and gradually included all followers of this sect. Later on, it included infidels and atheists in general. Thus, in the ancient sources, the word zind̄q was used to include the followers of Manichaeism.⁵ Now we know

¹ Qur'j̄n 2:62; 5:69; 22:17.

² They live at the shores of the Karun River, Ahwaz, Khorramshahr, Abadan, Shadigan, and Dasht Mishan.

³ They live at the shores of the Tigris and Euphrates in Baghdad, °illah, N̄j̄riyyah, °Im̄rah, K̄t, Diȳl̄j̄, Kirkuk, Mosul, Ram̄d̄, Sulaym̄niyyah and Karbal̄j̄. For the derivation of the word Ȳbi`̄, whether it is Arabic or Hebrew, and for its meaning, see al-°l̄s̄, Bul̄gh al-Irab 2:223-228; Ya'ȳ N̄r̄, Islam And Human Ideas, pp. 431-432; Shahrist̄ni, al-Milal wa'l-Ni'al 1:230, 2:5.

⁴ T̄j̄r̄kh al-Ya`q̄b̄ 1:226.

⁵ Almad Am̄n, Fajr al-Isl̄m, pp. 108; D̄w̄d Ilh̄m̄, Iran and Islam, pp. 392. Having referred to the fact that Manicheans came to be called that Manichaeism is a combination of Christianity and Zoroastrianism.¹

A group of historians have confirmed that heresy or Manichean heresy was prevalent among the people of Quraysh who had received it from the people of ʿġrah.²

zanjidiqah due to their following of zand, al-Bayrġnġ writes: “The Manicheans and the Bġġiniyyah (Esotericists) are figuratively termed zanjidiqah in Islam. This is because these two groups are similar to Mazdakids in ascribing certain traits and features to God.” See al-ʿthġr al-Bġġiyah, pp. 312. About this topic, ʿAbd al-ʿusayn Zarrinkub writes, “The word zandġq is derived from the Pahlavi word zandic. At this era, this word was used for the Manicheans and for those who believed in atheism of some sort.

¹ Shahristġni, op cit, pp. 244. An Orientalist says, “If we consider Manichaeism as Zoroastrianism mixed with Christianity, we are closer to the truth than considering Christianity mixed with Zoroastrianism.” See Aġmad Amġn, Fajr al-Islġm, pp. 104. Concerning Mani and his sect, Manichaeism, see ʿAbd al-ʿusayn Zarrinkub, Neither Eastern nor Western but Human, pp. 72-76.

² Ibn Qutaybah, al-Maʿġrif, pp. 621; Al-Abshahi, al-Mustaġrah 2:88; Ibn Rustah, al-Aʿġiq al-Al-Nafġsah, pp. 264; Aġmad Amġn, Fajr al-Islġm, pp. 108.

Muġammad ibn ʿabġb al-Baghdġdġ states that the following individuals from Quraysh belonged to this group: Abġ-Sufyġn, ʿAqabah ibn Abġ-Mu`ġġ, Ubay ibn Abġ-Khalaf, Abġ-ʿAzzah, al-Naġr ibn ʿġrith, Nubayh and Munabbih, sons of al-ʿajġġ ibn Amġr al-Sahmġ, al-ʿġ ibn Wġʿil, and al-Walġd ibn al-Mughġrah al-Makhzġmġ. See al-Muʿabbar, pp. 161.

However, the speeches and sessions held by these individuals carry no single indication of this point. Rather, documents prove that they were idol-worshippers. In his discussions on heresy, ʿAbd al-ʿusayn Zarrinkub remarks that the word zandaqah included Materialists as well. This latter group refrained from attributing the events of this

This clarifies the fact that by heresy, we mean dualism, because ʿġrah used to be a protégé and neighbor of Iran and Iranian sects which were based on dualism.

Star Worshipping

During the Ignorance Era, a group of the people of the Arabian Peninsula, like many of other areas, worshipped celestial bodies, such as the moon and some stars. They believed in a special power embedded in these bodies which could exert energy over the population of the world, controlling their destiny in this way. For instance, the tribes of Khuzġʿah and ʿimyar worshipped a star called Shi`rġ, which is one of the stationary stars. Abġ-Kabshah, one of the maternal ancestors of the Holy Prophet, was one of the worshippers of this star.¹ A group of ʿayy tribe used to worship a star called Thurayyġ or the Pleiades.² The worship of skies and stars was so prevalent that its repercussions are visible in the Arab literature, romance and superstitions.³ Besides the Sebiāns who worshipped the sun and the moon, these two heavenly bodies were sanctified and worshipped by all idolaters in general.⁴ world to a Creator. The zanjidiqah of Quraysh, among whom were Abġ-Sufyġn, Ibn Abġ-Mu`ġġ, al-Naġr ibn ʿġrith, and al-Walġd ibn Mughġrah, were Materialists. It is understood from the news and poems related to the chiefs of Quraysh that their heresy stood for rejection of the Creator and disbelief in Resurrection”

¹ al-ʿġġġ, Bulġgh al-Irab 2:240.

² ʿabġġabġʿġ, Al-Mġzġnġġ Tafsġr al-Qurʿġn 19:49.

³ Ibid, pp. 215, 220, 230, 237, 239 and 240; Islam And Man's Ideologies, pp. 295-247.

⁴ ʿabġġabġʿġ op cit 17:393.

Prohibiting and condemning the worshipping of celestial bodies, the Holy Qur'ān considers this limited group of celestial bodies creations of God that are dominated by His power and worshipping Him. Thus, they could be regarded as guides for man and directors towards God, the All-great. This is because these heavenly bodies are just signs for His power:

And He has made subservient for you the night, the day, the sun, and the moon and the stars are made subservient by His commandment; most surely, there are signs in this for a people who ponder. (16:12)

And among His signs are the night and the day and the sun and the moon; do not make obeisance to the sun nor to the moon; and make obeisance to Allah who created them, if Him it is that you serve. (41:37)

And that He is the Lord of the Sirius. (53:49)

These sacred verses depict the fact that at the time of the Holy Prophet, the worshipping of these celestial bodies was a common practice.

The Worshipping of Jinn and Angels

Besides the abovementioned sects, some people of Arabia used to worship Jinn and angels. `Abdullāh ibn al-Zubā`r, a tribal chief in Mecca, used to say, "We are the worshippers of the angels; the Jews worship Ezra, and the Christians worship the Christ! Now ask Muḥammad: Would we go to hell when we worship so many beloved ones?"¹

Banī-Malq, a branch of the Khuzi`ah tribe, used to worship Jinn.¹ It is said that the first people who started worshipping jinn were a group of Yemenis; then it was the Banī-`anṣfah tribe; then it was spread among the Arabs.² In the words of interpreters, some people believed that God has married the Jinn and the angels are the offspring of such a marriage.³ In the Holy Qur'ān, God has condemned the worshipping of Jinn and angels and the wrong assumptions about them:

And they made the jinn associates with Allah, while He created them, and they falsely attributed to Him, and highly exalted is He above what they ascribe to Him. (6:100)

And on the day when He will gather them all together, and then He will say to the angels: Did these worship you? They shall say: Glory be to Thee! Thou art our Guardian, not they; nay! The worshippers become abashed. (34:41)

It also becomes clear through the answers offered by the angels that they are not satisfied with people who worship them. (34:41) It is evident that this question is not asking for any information; neither does it unveil any ambiguity. This is because God is All-knowing. God intends that the angels reveal the truth so that their worshippers become abased. However, the jinn were content in this respect.

Thus, the worshipping of these two sets of invisible creatures on the part of some worshippers was not unlike the dualism-bided sect, because the worshipper

¹ Hushīm Ibn Muḥammad Kalbī, Kitāb al-Aḥnīm, pp. 42.

² Ṭabīṣabī`ī, op cit, 2:42.

³ Ṭabarsī, Majma` al-Bayān 8:46.

¹ Ibn Hushīm, al-Ṣūrah al-Nabawīyyah 1:385.

considered the jinn as the source of light, benevolence and abundance. When entering a valley at night, some Arabs used to say, "I ask the protection of the chief of the ignorant ones in order to be safe against those ignorant ones who live in this land."¹ By chanting such slogans, they believed the jinn would protect them for the truth of this claim comes from the Holy Qur'an:

And persons from among men used to seek refuge with persons from among jinn, so they increased them in wrongdoing. (72:6)

The Appearance of Mecca

The building of Mecca goes back to the time of Prophet Abraham who was ordered by God to bring his wife Hajar and his infant Isma'il from Syria to live in a dry climate. (14:37) Upon the appearance of Zamzam by God to water these two,² Jurhum, a southern tribe whose individuals had moved towards the north due to famine and drought, came to settle there.³ Reaching the age of adulthood, Isma'il married a girl from this tribe.⁴ Prophet Abraham was commanded by Allah to build up the Kaaba with the assistance of his son, Isma'il. (2:127) When it was built, the city of Mecca came into being and Isma'il's offspring gradually settled therein.

The Remnants of Abraham's Religion: ʿanṣfiyyah

¹ al-ʿIṣṣ, op cit, 2:232.

² Ibn Hushjm, al-Ṣerah al-Nabawiyyah 1:55, 116; al-Azraq, The History of Mecca 1:55; Tjirḩkh al-Ya`qḩbḩ 1:18; Ibn Rustah, al-A`lq al-Nafḩsah, pp. 51.

³ Azraq, op cit. pp. 57; Mas`ḩḩ, Murḩj al-Dhahab 2:20.

⁴ Tjirḩkh al-Ya`qḩbḩ 1:19, 193; al-Azraq, op cit, pp. 57.

ʿAdnġn was the great ancestor of the ʿAdnġni Arabs and the twentieth ancestor of the Holy Prophet from Isma'il's generation. Living in ʿijz, Najd, and Tihmah,¹ the ʿAdnġnis followed Prophet Abraham's religion. In the words of Ya`qḩbḩ:

"Quraysh and ʿAdnġn's children in general believed in some principles of Prophet Abraham's religion. They used to perform their pious pilgrimage; they observed the ʿajj ceremonies; they were hospitable; they observed the prohibited months; they abhorred nasty deeds, the severing of relations with relatives and injustice or tyranny; they used to punish the wrongdoers."²

The remnants of Prophet Abraham's traditions, such as belief in God, avoidance of marrying one's mother or daughter, ceremonies of ʿajj and Sacrifice, nocturnal pollution,³ circumcision, and shrouding and burying the dead⁴ were all carried out up to the advent of Islam: they carried the ten rules of cleansing the body and removing the unwanted hairs and the like.⁵ They believed, as well, in the prohibitions imposed on the four months which was one of Prophet Abraham's traditions.⁶ If for any reason,

¹ An exegesis of the Holy Qur'an states that the holy verse, (...and the faith of your father Abraham,) refers to this meaning. See ʿabarsḩ, Majma` al-Bayġn 7:97.

² Tjirḩkh al-Ya`qḩbḩ 1:224.

³ al-Majlisḩ, Bi`r al-Anwġr 15:170; Hushjm Kalbḩ, al-Aḩnġm, pp. 6.

⁴ Al-ʿurr al-ʿmilḩ, Wasġ'il al-Shḩ`ah: 1465; ʿabarsḩ, al-Itijġ, pp. 189.

⁵ Shahristġni, al-Milal wa'l-Ni'al 2:257.

⁶ ʿabġḩabġḩ, al-Mḩzġn 9:272.

there occurred a fight among them; they called it a sinful and obnoxious war.¹ Thus, monotheism had a long history with the Arabs of that region and their idolatry entered there only later and drove them astray from monotheism.

The Beginning of Idolatry Among Arabs

In accordance with numerous documents, two factors have been effective in the propagation of idolatry among Arabs:

First: `Amr ibn Lu'ayy, the chief of Khuzi'ah, an influential man and custodian of the Kaaba,² made a trip to Syria where he could visit a group at `Amjliqah³ who were engaged in idolatry. When he asked why they worshipped those idols, they replied, "They cause the rain to fall and help us in many ways." He asked them for an idol, and they gave him an idol called Hubal. Later, he took it to the Kaaba and stuck it on it asking people to worship it.⁴ Besides this, there are two other idols next to

¹ Shahrastāni, op cit, pp. 255; Tjrekħ al-Ya`qeb 2:12

² al-Azraq, op cit, 1:88, 100, 101; Ma'mūd al-ʿIṣṣ, Bulḡh al-Irāb 2:200; al-Sṣrah al-ʿalabiyyah 1:16.

³ Al-ʿamjliqah were the children of Prophet Noah. Their grandfather was named ʿimlīq or ʿimlīq. See Ibn Hushjm, al-Sṣrah al-Nabawiyyah 2:188; al-Sṣrah al-ʿalabiyyah 1:17.

⁴ al-ʿIṣṣ, op cit, 2:201; al-Shahrastāni, op cit, pp. 243; al-ʿalab, op cit, pp. 17; Tjrekħ al-Ya`qeb 2:224; al-Abshahi, al-Mustaṣraf 2:29; Kalb, al-Aḥnīm, pp. 6; Muḥammad Ibn ʿabḥ, al-Munammaq, pp. 328.

In some records, it is said that he brought Hubal from Iraq. See al-Azraq, Akhbār Makkah 1:79; Ibn Kathīr, al-Bidʿiyah wa'l-Nihʿiyah 2:188.

A report says that the stone of the idol is one of the stones of the Kaaba: Asif and Nij'ilah.¹ These two were also worshipped upon his recommendation. In this way, he laid the foundation of idolatry. The Holy Prophet is reported to have said:

`Amr ibn Lu'ayy was the one who transformed Ismij`l's religion and laid the foundation of idolatry. I have seen him in the fire of Hell.²

Second: When Ismij`l's children grew in numbers in Mecca, they decided to go to different cities and locations to continue with their life. Due to their extreme respect and love for Mecca, everybody used to take away a piece of stone and put it on the ground wherever they went and started going around it like the ceremony around the Kaaba. Little by little, the motive behind this practice was forgotten and each stone transformed into an idol. People then would worship any stone they liked. In this way, they completely forgot their precious customs and religion: they transformed the religion of Prophet Abraham and Prophet Ismij`l, accepting idolatry.³

Of course, these two factors were the basic reasons for the spread of idolatry. Naturally, there were other factors in this process, such as ignorance, human fondness of sensation (according to which man prefers God to be Ma'zamayn. For this reason, when the Prophet crossed that place, he showed hatred. See Wasj'il al-Sh`ah by al-ʿurr al-ʿamil 10:36.

¹ al-Azraq, op cit, 1:88; Shahrastāni, op cit, 2:242, 347.

² Ibn Hushjm, op cit, pp. 79; al-ʿalab, op cit, pp. 17; Ibn `Abd al-Barr, al-Ist`jib 1:120; Ibn al-Athīr, Usd al-Ghjbah 4:390; al-Tustari, al-Awj'il, pp. 217; Ibn Kathīr, al-Sṣrah al-Nabawiyyah 1:65; al-Azraq, op cit, pp. 116.

³ al-ʿIṣṣ, op cit, 2:200.

tangible), zeal for being the chief or among the prominent figures of the tribe who preferred people to be stuck in ignorance so that they could carry on with their domination, and imitating their ancestors that caused the spread of idolatry in different forms.¹ The number of idols gradually increased to such an extent that there was an idol in every home. On their trips, they used to caress it with their hands and ask for blessing.² At the time of the conquest of Mecca, there were three hundred and sixty idols in this city.³

Did Idolaters Believe in Allah?

The idolaters did not deny the existence of Allah; they considered Him as the Creator of the skies, the earth and the universe—a fact established in the Holy Qur'ān.⁴ However, they committed two huge mistakes which were the very root of their misleading.

(1) A false recognition of Allah and His Attributes; they had puzzling attitudes towards Allah. This is witnessed by the fact that they assumed a wife and children for God. They thought that angels were Allah's daughters. They erroneously assumed that Allah was like men and other creatures that had the power of sexual reproduction. However, in different verses, God has reprimanded them for these attitudes:

And he made the angels - those who are the servants

¹ ±abjṣabj'ṣ, op cit, 1:272.

² Kalbṣ, op cit, pp. 32.

³ Shaykh al-±Ḥṣṣ, al-Amjḣḣ, pp. 336; al-±Ḥṣṣ, BulḤgh al-Irab 2:211; al-Azraqṣ, op cit, 1:21; al-Sṣrah al-°alabiyyah 3:30; al-Mṣzjn 26: 271, based on a narration by Imam al-Riṣj.

⁴ Qur'ān 31:25; 39:38; 43:9; 43:87; 10:3.

of the Beneficent God - female divinities.

What! Did they witness their creation? Their evidence shall be written down and they shall be questioned. (43:19)

Most surely, they who do not believe in the hereafter name the angels with female names. (53:27)

And they say: The Beneficent God has taken to Himself a son. Glory be to Him. Nay! They are honored servants. (21:16)

And they made the Jinn Associates with Allah, while He created them, and they falsely attributed to Him sons and daughters without knowledge; glory be to Him, and Highly exalted is He above what they ascribe to Him. And that He - exalted be the majesty of our Lord - has not taken a consort, or a son. (6:100-101)

In different verses, God has reprimanded the disbelievers for their ascribing to God the existence of girls, which were considered to be evil, while ascribing boys to themselves:

Or has He daughters while you have sons. (52:39)

Then ask them whether your Lord has daughters and they have sons. Or did we create the angels females while they were witnesses. (37:149-150)

Have you then considered Ljt, `Uzzj, and Manjt the third, the last? What! For you the males. And for Him the females! This indeed is an unjust division! They are naught but names which you have named, you and your fathers; Allah has not sent for them any authority. They follow naught but conjecture and the low desires which their souls incline to; and certainly, the guidance has come to them from their Lord. (37:149-150)

What! Has He taken daughters to Himself of what He himself creates and chosen you to have sons? (43:16)

And they assert a relationship between Him and the jinn; and certainly, the jinn do know that they shall surely be brought up. Glory be to Allah for freedom from what they describe. (37:158-159)

In accordance with an interpretation, by the relation of God to Jinn was meant to be their assumption of God's relation with Jinn, the consequence of which was the angels.¹

2. They used to think of the idols as petty Gods, intermediate between themselves and Allah. Worshipping these petty Gods was supposed to satisfy Him. This assumption was irrational since worship belongs to Allah alone.

Despite the fact that these small gods were not supposed to be the creators of the world, their worshippers assumed some divine roles for them, considering them influential on man's fate and future. They looked for these Gods' assistance to solve their worldly problems. However, in Islam, Allah is considered to be both the Creator of the universe and its Manager. (17:111) The idols are lifeless entities, lacking perception. The Holy Qur'ān depicts their baseless assumptions in the following manner:

And they serve beside Allah what can neither harm them nor profit them, and they say: These are our intercessors with Allah. Say: Do you presume to inform Allah of what He knows not in the heavens and the earth? Glory be to Him, and supremely exalted is He above what they set up with Him. (10:18)

¹ Al-Suyūṭī, al-Durr al-Manthar 4:23: ṭabarsī, Majma' al-Bayān 8:460.

Now, surely, sincere obedience is due to Allah alone and as for those who take guardians besides Him, saying, We do not serve them save that they may make us nearer to Allah, Surely Allah will judge between them in that about which they differ; Surely Allah does not guide him aright who is a liar, ungrateful. (39:3)

And they have taken Gods besides Allah, that they should be to them a source of strength. (19:81)

And they have taken Gods besides Allah that they may be helped. (36:74)

The Holy Qur'ān calls the idolaters liars and ungrateful ones because they considered the idols as helpers to Allah in the management of worldly affairs.

The Chaotic State of Religion

When Islam appeared, idolatry had distorted and transformed the ʿanʿfiyyah through its widespread customs and ceremonies. The disbelievers were in a state of chaos regarding religion. They severely adhered to their idolatry and carried out its customs. They carried out Prophet Abraham's ceremonies, such as ʿajj and sacrifice in a defective, distorted way, and mingled it with superstitions. For instance, besides bowing to and worshipping the Kaaba, they had built other temples around which they performed their ceremonies. They even took sacrifices to those temples, slaughtering them on the spot.¹ Their prayers beside the Kaaba were nothing more than whistling and hand-clapping. During °ajj time and at the time of uttering the expression at Thy service, they used to call the names of their idols besides Allah's name.¹ In this way, they mingled the °ajj of Prophet Abraham, which is one of the most sublime manifestations of monotheism, with polytheism. The two tribes, Aws and Khazraj, instead of head-shaving at the land of Minj, carried out this ceremony on their way back to Medina at the foot of Manjt (an idol), which was at the seashore² on the route between Mecca and Yathrib.³

¹ Ibn Kathīr, al-Ṣerah al-Nabawiyyah 1:7. Ibn Hushaym, al-Ṣerah al-

The disbelievers, both men and women, used to circumambulate the Kaaba naked;⁴ it is apparent what a horrible scene could be seen around the Kaaba!

People of Quraysh used to put musk and ambergris on their idols next to the Kaaba and bow to them; they used to gather around them uttering at Thy service.⁵ Although they believed in the reverence of those four sacred months not to be involved in wars, they used to change the names of the month and postpone the sacred months so that they could be involved in wars.⁶

Nabawiyyah 1:85.

¹ Ibn Hushjm, op cit, pp. 80; Ibn Kathqr, op cit, pp. 63; al-Shahristnq, al-Milal wa'l-Ni'al 2:247. Ibn Kathqr, al-Bidjyah wa'l-Nihjyah 2:88.

² Kalbq, al-Aʿnjm, pp. 13; Ibn Hushjm, al-Sqrah al-Nabawiyyah 1:8; al-ʿlfsq, Bulʿgh al-Irab 2:202.

³ Kalbq, op cit, pp. 14.

⁴ al-Azraqq, Akhbjr Makkah 1:178, 182; al-ʿlfsq, op cit, 1:244; ʿa/ʿ/ Muslim 18:162.

⁵ ʿabjʿabjʿq, Al-Mqzjn fq Tafsqr al-Qurʿjn 14:414.

⁶ Azraqq, Akhbjr Makkah 1:183; Ibn Hushjm, al-Sqrah al-Nabawiyyah 1:45.

Drastic Changes in the Light of the Appearance of Islam

The advent of Islam brought forth drastic changes in the lifestyle of the people of °ijz; a complete revolution took place the effects of which could be observed in the entirety of the Arabian Peninsula. With a resolute and strong struggle against idolatry, the Holy Prophet rooted out idolatry, replacing it with the principle of monotheism. Islam demolished the system of tribal life and its wrong and hazardous customs. It annulled the tribal prejudices and established a zeal for justice in society. Islam changed vengeance, plunder and homicide into peace and tranquility. It called all Muslims brethren of one another. It rescued women from misery and gave them sublime human dignity. Islam turned an ignorant nation into a knowing one. It established the systems of ummah (community) and imamate to replace tribal systems. It made a unified nation out of the scattered tribes. Islam prepared them for a universal government transcending the limited tribal life. Due to Islam, the Arab nation became so powerful that it could overthrow the great empires of those days, namely Iran and Rome. This point is so obvious that even non-Muslim scholars have witnessed to its authenticity. As some examples, we will present the views of three of them.

Dr. Eustan Le Bon, a French author, says:

“It was the great miracle of the Prophet of Islam to unite all the wandering Arabs into a nation prior to his demise. He made every Muslim obedient to one leader. Without doubt, Prophet Muammad had some tangible results that none of the previous religions, such as Judaism and Christianity, could have achieved. For this, the Arab nation owes him a lot. If we desire to evaluate people with their feats and deeds, definitely Muḥammad is the greatest man in the history of mankind. We consider the religion which he brought for mankind as a great Divine asset.”¹

Thomas Carlyle, an English author, writes:

“Through Islam, God led the Arabs from darkness into light. Islam enlivened the dead and silenced Arabs. From the very beginning of man's life, Arabs were nothing but wandering desert-dwelling groups of people. They had nothing to present to the world. Through the prophethood of a great Prophet, God changed the unknown Arab people into a well-known nation, a wandering nation into a settled one, a miserable nation into a prosperous one, a weak nation into a powerful one, and a spark into a great fire. The Prophet's rays spread everywhere; his light scattered at every corner of the earth, the south, the east and the west so much so that only one century after its advent, the Islamic government could establish its power from India to Andalusia.”²

Will Durant writes:

“In those days, nobody could dream and believe that wandering desert-dwelling people could, after only one century, capture half of the Roman territories in Asia, the whole territory of Iran and Egypt and most of the northern territories of Africa, and be on its way towards Spain. This historic event which started from Arabia and through which the Arabs could capture half of the Mediterranean territories and could establish Islam is no doubt the strangest historical event in the Middle Ages.”¹

The Development and Significance of Mecca

The majority of the Arabian Peninsula people during the Ignorance Era were desert-dwellers living in tents. Civil life did not exist in the territory of ʿijz. What is referred to as a city was in fact minor villages with small populations. Some historians have estimated that only one-sixth of the population was city-dwellers; some have estimated that seventeen percent of the whole population was living in cities.² The basis for these estimations is not clear. The percentage of city dwellers was small. Being located eighty-three kilometers away from the Red Sea, the city of Mecca, in the south of ʿijz, was the most important in the region; it had attracted a lot of settlers some decades prior to the advent of Islam. There were two reasons for the development of Mecca:

The commercial position

Located in a rough and dry territory, the city of Mecca lacked agricultural or other productive means of life. In order to survive, its people had to engage in trades, yet extremely limited.³ Non-Arab merchants used to carry their merchandise to either buy or sell inside the city or in the seasonal markets of the Arabian Peninsula. This continued until the reign of H̄shim, the Holy Prophet's great grandfather, who entered into a treaty with the Roman Empire, according to which the Meccan traders

¹ The Civilization Of Islam And Arab, pp. 138-130.

² Muḥammad al-Sibīḥ, al-Abṣḥl, pp. 9.

¹ Will Durant, the Story of Civilization 4:197.

² Ibn W̄ṣīl, T̄rēkh al-Ya`q̄b 1:215.

³ Muḥammad Ibn ʿabḥ al-Baghdīdī, al-Munammaq, pp. 42.

could freely enter this country.¹

He had a contract with the tribes on the way to Damascus to protect the Meccan merchants on their journey.² In return, he had to carry their merchandise to Damascus free of charge.³ His brothers, `Abd Shams, Nawfal, and al-Muṣṣalib, had similar contracts with the governor of Ethiopia and the kings of Iran⁴ and Yemen.⁵

Upon achieving the security of routes, Hishim established the trade route between Yemen and Damascus⁶ passing through Mecca which was between these two trade-centers.⁷ In this way, the trade of Quraysh outside the country was established.⁸ Since then, Meccan merchants, besides partaking in seasonal markets, such as `Ukī, Dhu'l-Majiz, and al-Majannah, made their journey to Yemen and Ethiopia in winter and to Damascus and Gaza in summer. In this way, they could buy silky cloths, hides and other merchandise which had come from India or China into Yemen and take them to Mecca through the Arabian lands parallel to the Red Sea⁹ to take them again

¹ Ibn Wāṣil, Ibid, 1:214.

² Op cit, pp. 213.

³ Ibn Sa'd, al-ṭabaqāt al-kubrī 1:78.

⁴ Ibn Wāṣil, Ibid 1:215.

⁵ Ṭabarī, Tārīkh al-Umam wa'l-Mulūk 2:180; Ibn al-Athār, al-Kimīyah 2:16.

⁶ Ṭabarī, op cit, pp. 180; Ibn Hushaym, al-Sirah al-Nabawiyah, 1:143.

⁷ Ahmad Amīn, Fajr al-Islām, pp. 13-14; Shawqī Ṭayf, Tārīkh al-Adab al-`Arabī 1:49.

⁸ Ṭabarī, op cit, 2:180; Ibn al-Athār, op cit, pp. 16.

⁹ Ahmad Amīn, op cit, pp. 12; `Abd al-Mun'im Mijid, al-Tārīkh al-Siyasī li'l-Dawlah al-`Arabiyyah, pp. 79.

to Gaza, Jerusalem, Damascus and the ports on the Mediterranean. They could then buy wheat, oil, olives, wood and other produce from Damascus. They could also enter Ethiopia, through the Red Sea and Jeddah Port, which is located eight hundred kilometers away from Mecca. In this way, they could take their local merchandise from one place to another.¹

The establishment of such a merchant route changed the city of Mecca into a lucrative center for trade and had a tremendous effect on the life of its people. God mentions this route as a means for prosperity for the people of Quraysh:

For the protection of the Quraysh—their protection during their trading caravans in the winter and the summer; so, let them serve the Lord to this house, Who feeds them against hunger and gives them security against fear. (106:1-4)

The Holy Kaaba

The very existence of the Kaaba was considered a significant factor for the development of the city and for the prosperity of its people. This is because the Arabs used to arrive to this city twice for the observance of `ajj ceremonies. People of Quraysh, being responsible sponsors for the Kaaba's affairs, provided the pilgrims with water and food. Trade transactions were carried out between the pilgrims and the Meccan merchants during the `ajj ceremonies.² These two factors played major roles in the trade prosperity of the city.

¹ `asan Ibrīhīm `asan, The Political History Of Islam, pp. 56.

² `Abbās Ziryāb, Sirat Rasūlillāh, pp. 66-67.

Of course, the sanctity of Mecca which brought forth the required security for the trade transactions was of utmost importance for the trade prosperity of Mecca. This fact is mentioned by Allah:

And they say: If we follow the guidance with you, we shall be carried off from our country. What! Have We not settled them in a safe, sacred territory to which fruits of every kind shall be drawn-sustenance from Us? But most of them do not know. (38:57)

Upon the settlement of his wife and child beside the Kaaba, Prophet Abraham asked his God for such an asset:

O Our Lord! Surely, I have settled a part of my offspring in a valley unproductive of fruit near Thy Sacred House, our Lord! That they may keep up prayer; therefore make the hearts of some people yearn towards them and provide them either fruits; haply they may be grateful. (14:37)

My Lord, make it a secure town and provide its people with fruits, such of them as believe in Allah and the last day. (2:126)

Trade and Custodianship of Quraysh

The two factors of trade and the existence of the Kaaba, which had played their roles in the prosperity of Mecca, had their role in increasing the power of the people of Quraysh in Mecca, because they had the trade and religious initiatives in their hands:

(1) People of Quraysh could amass tremendous amounts of wealth thorough trade. The share of one of these traders in one caravan was more than thirty thousand Dinars.¹ The Quraysh nobles had a lot of gardens.¹ in the summer quarters of ±j'if, which, in good weather, was called a part of Damascus.² Al-`Abbjs ibn `Abd al-Mu§§alib had a vineyard in ±j'if the produce of which was carried to Mecca to be made wine.³ He was one of the great usurers of Mecca.⁴ Upon his death, his body was enshrouded in two pieces of Yemeni cloth which cost the value of five thousand grams of gold.⁵ It is said his daughter, Hind, manumitted forty slaves in one day.⁶ Al-Walçd ibn Mughçrah, the elder chief of the Ban£-Makhz£m, had a great wealth and a great number of children; he was quite famous⁷ and later reprimanded by the Holy Qur'in because of his false pride and ambition.⁸ The wealth of `Abdulljh ibn Jad`jn Tamçmç and his luxurious parties were considered fabulous.⁹ Poets

¹ Jawid `Alç, al-MufaYYal 1:114.

Probably, reference is made to Sa`çd ibn al-`a¥ (Ab£-U'aylah) who had the largest share of the caravan of Quraysh that had to encounter the Muslim troops at Well Badr during their return from Damascus. However, al-Wiqidç (in al-Maghizç 1:27) does not say it explicitly.

¹ Phillip °ittç, op cit, pp. 130.

² ±abarç, op cit 2:221; al-Buljdharç, Fut£' al-Buldjn, pp. 68.

³ al-Buljdharç, op cit, pp. 68.

⁴ Ibn Hushjm, al-Sçrah al-Nabawiyyah, pp. 25.

⁵ Ibn Wjßil, op cit, 1:10.

⁶ Shawqç @ayf, op cit, pp. 51, al-Jjli", al-Ma'jsin wa'l-Açdjçd, pp. 62.

⁷ An exegete of the Holy Qur'in states that the two great personalities mentioned in the holy verse (43:31) are al-Walçd ibn al-Mughçrah in Mecca and `Urwah ibn Mas`£d al-Thaqafç in ±j'if. Because of their great wealth, the had been expected to be the promised prophet.

⁸ ±abj§abj'ç, Al-Mçzjn fç Tafççr al-Qur'in 2:43; Ibn Kathçr, Tafççr 4:442.

⁹ Ibn Kathçr, al-Bidjyah wa'l-Nihjyah 2:229; al-£sç, op cit, 1:89; Mu£ammad A£mad Jjd al-Mawlj Beck et al, Ayyjm al-`Arab fç'l- composed eulogies to receive prizes.¹ A poet likened him to Caesar.² It is said that at one tribal war, he gave a thousand camels to a thousand warriors³ and armed a hundred warriors at his cost.⁴ He was the custodian and seller of female slaves.⁵ He used to drink out of golden ware.⁶ Upon the seizure of Mecca and when he was on the way to the Battle of ʿunayn, the Holy Prophets borrowed one hundred sets of shields and the required ammunitions from ʿafwīn ibn Umayyah, one of the infidels of Mecca.⁷

(2) Quraysh, who had taken away the position of the Kaaba's custodianship from Quṣayyah⁸ since the time of Quṣayy, the fourth generation away from the Holy Prophet, had distributed among the chiefs of the different Quraysh clans the different responsibilities related to the Kaaba, such as watering the pilgrims, guest-affairs, curtain-management and services of the Kaaba; they had in this way secured a religious position for itself. Besides,

Jihiliyyah, pp. 248.

¹ al-ʿIṣṣ, op cit, pp. 87; Ibn Kathīr, op cit, pp. 220.

² Bakr, Muʿjam mastuʿjim 2:444.

³ Jīd al-Mawli, op cit, pp. 334.

⁴ Op cit, pp. 324.

⁵ Ibn Qutaybah, al-Maʿrif, pp. 576: Masʿūd, Murʿj al-Dhahab 2:284; Jawīd ʿAlī, op cit, pp. 96.

⁶ al-ʿIṣṣ, op cit, pp. 87.

⁷ Ibn Hushīm, op cit, 4:83; al-Wiqīd, al-Maghīz 3:890; Ibn Saʿd, al-ʿabaqīt al-Kubrī 2:150; ʿalab, al-Sʿrah al-ʿalabiyyah 3:63.

The Holy Prophet borrowed three thousand spears from his cousin, Nawfal ibn ʿarīth ibn ʿAbd al-Muṣṣalib. (ʿalab, op cit)

⁸ al-Azraq, Akhbār Makkah 1:107; Ibn Hushīm, al-Sʿrah al-Nabawiyyah 1:130.

the Quraysh had distributed among the heads of its different branches the municipal affairs, such as the control of the reception of blood-money and the like.¹

Quraysh's Power and Influences

Quraysh, who was a small, insignificant and impoverished tribe at the southern part of ʿijz and later became a strong and famous tribe due to its religious and economic power, turned out to be superior to other tribes in honesty, decency and creditability. In the words of contemporary historians, the Quraysh had some special privileges among other Arab tribes in the same way that priests had special privileges among Christians on those days.²

After the event of the Elephant Army and the defeat of Abrahah, the significance of the people of Quraysh raised drastically among the other tribes.³ This was due to the fact that its members were the custodians of the Kaaba. They took advantage of this event in their own benefit and called themselves ʿil-allīh (Family of Allah), ʿarīn allīh (the neighbors of Allah) and sukkīn ʿaram allīh (Inhabitants of Allah's Precinct).⁴ In this way, they could strengthen their religious basis and due to their power,

¹ Ibn ʿAbd-Rabbih, al-Iqd al-Farīd 3:314; Almad Amʿn, op cit, pp. 237; al-ʿIṣṣ, op cit, 1:145-150.

These institutes and organizations were not in the form of modern times as some historians, such as Georgie Zaydīn and Lamens, had assumed; rather, they were very primitive and tribal.

² Phillip ʿatt, op cit, pp. 17.

³ Ibn Hushīm, al-Sʿrah al-Nabawiyyah 1:59; al-Azraq, op cit, pp. 176.

⁴ Ibn ʿAbd-Rabbih, op cit, 3:313; al-Azraq, op cit, pp. 176.

they showed inclination towards corruption and monopoly.¹ This sense of power caused them to impose some new regulations over other tribes.

Quraysh had the special privilege of marrying any daughter from other tribes with the condition that they should accept the religious innovations that they had fabricated concerning the special °ajj ceremonies.² They received taxes from the pilgrims who would enter Mecca,³ and called such tributes as special privileges of Quraysh.⁴ They had monopolized the management of the °ajj ceremonies and forced the pilgrims to follow their regulations. This was so severe that the pilgrims' movement from Minā or participation in stone-throwing was authorized by special order of Quraysh.⁵ Quraysh even forced non-Meccan pilgrims to either buy their costumes or carry out the ceremonies naked. These pilgrims had to throw away their costumes if they refused to buy them from the Quraysh.⁶ This would force them to

¹ al-Azraq, op cit, 1:70.

² Op cit, pp. 174; al-ʿIṣṣ, op cit, 1:242.

³ Ibn Saʿd, op cit, 1:70.

⁴ Jawāʾid ʿAl, op cit, 4:21.

⁵ Ibn Saʿd, op cit, pp. 69; Ibn Hushim, op cit, pp. 125, 130; Ibn Athar, al-Kamil fī l-Tārīkh 2:20; al-Azraq, op cit, pp. 189.

⁶ Ibn Saʿd, op cit, pp. 72; al-Azraq, op cit, pp. 178, 182. It was because of Quraysh's power and control over these ceremonies, people used to circumambulate the Kaaba naked. In this respect, there is a story about a naked woman who performed the °ajj ceremony composing a shameful verse of poetry. See al-Azraq, op cit, 1:178, 182; Ibn Hushim, op cit, 4:190; al-ʿIṣṣ, op cit, 1:244; ʿaʿ Muslim 18:162.

buy their costumes from the Quraysh, anyhow.¹ In the ninth year of Hegira, in which the Holy Prophet sent Imam ʿAl to Mecca to take part in the ceremony of acquaintance, one of the items of ʿAl's resolution was the prohibition of performing °ajj naked.²

Recognition of the Quraysh's power and influence is necessary in order to find out the problems that the Holy Prophet had to face and what powerful enemy he had to confront. With few sources of power that the Holy Prophet had at his disposal, he had to struggle against a powerful opponent.

¹ Al-Azraq, op cit, pp. 177.

² Ibn Hushim 4:190.

SECTION TWO
MUHAMMAD FROM BIRTH TO PROPHETHOOD

- Chapter One:
The Ancestors of the Holy Prophet
- Chapter Two:
The Holy Prophet's Childhood and Adolescence
- Chapter Three:
The Holy Prophet's Youth

CHAPTER ONE

the Holy Prophet's Ancestors

Muhammad's Lineage

The Holy Prophet's ancestors up to the twentieth before his father included: Abd al-Muṣṣalib, `Abd Manjif, Quṣayy, Kiljib, Murrah, Ka`b, Lu'ay, Ghjlib, Fihr, Mjlik, al-Naṣr, Kinjnah, Khuzaymah, Mudrikah, Ilyis, Muṣar, Nizjr, Ma`ad, and `Andjn.¹ However, there is no agreement concerning his other ancestors up to Prophet Ishmael, Prophet Abraham's son.² It is narrated that when the Holy Prophet enumerated his ancestors, he refused to call any other ancestor prior to `Adjn,³ and recommended others to do so.⁴ Regarding the work of genealogists concerning his lineage and the names of his other ancestors between `Adjn and Ismj`l, the Holy Prophet used to say, "Genealogists lied."⁵

¹ Tjrkḥ al-ṭabar 2:191; Ibn al-Athḥr, Usd al-Ghjbah 1:13; ṭabarsḥ, l'lm al-Warj, pp. 5-6.

² Ibn al-Athḥr, op cit, pp. 13; al-Bayhaḥ, Dalj'il al-Nubuwwah, pp. 118; Mas'ḥḥ, al-Tanbḥh wa'l-Ishrij, pp. 195-196; Ibn al-Athḥr, al-Kjml f' l-Tjrkḥ 2:33; Ibn `Anbah, Umdat al-ṭjlib, pp. 28.

³ Ibn Sa'd, al-ṭabaqat al-Kubrij 1:56; Al-Kalbḥ, Jamharat al-Nasab, pp. 17.

⁴ Ibn Shahrjshḥb, Manjqib 1:155; ṭabarsḥ, op cit, pp. 6; al-Majlisḥ, Bi'jr al-Anwjr 15:105.

⁵ Ibn Shahrjshḥb, op cit, pp. 155; Ibn `Anbah, op cit, p.28.

The Arab tribes are divided into Qaṣjini and `Adjn groups. Quraysh, due to its relation with `Adjn (the Holy Prophet's twentieth ancestor) belongs to `Adjn. All clans whose lineage leads to al-Naṣr ibn Kinjnah are called qurayshi, since Quraysh was their nickname.¹ The tribe of Quraysh is of different branches,² such as Banḥ-Makhzḥm, Banḥ-Zuhrah, Banḥ-Umayyah, Banḥ-Sahm, Banḥ-Asad and Banḥ-Hjshim³ to which the Holy Prophet belongs.

¹ Ibn Shahrjshḥb, op cit, pp. 154; Ibn `Anbah, op cit, pp. 26; ṭabarsḥ, op cit, pp. 6; Ibn Qutaybah, al-Ma'jrij, pp. 67; ṭabarsḥ, Majma' al-Bayjn 10:546; Ibn Hushjm, al-Sḥrah al-Nabawiyyah 1:96; Ibn `Abd-Rabbih, al-Iqd al-Farḥd 3:312; Ibn Kathḥr, al-Sḥrah al-Nabawiyyah 1:84; Muḥammad Amḥn al-Baghdjḥḥ, Sabj'ik al-Dhahab, pp. 62, Ibn Wjḥil, Tjrkḥ al-Ya'qḥḥ 1:204.

Some genealogists have considered the children of Fihr ibn Mjlik ibn Nizjr as part of Quraysh. See Kalbḥ, op cit, pp. 21; Ibn Sa'd, op cit, p.55; Ibn Anbah, op cit, pp. 26; Ibn Hushjm, op cit, pp. 96; Muḥammad Amḥn al-Baghdjḥḥ, op cit, pp. 62; Ibn Wjḥil, op cit, pp. 204; Ibn `azm, Jamharat Ansjb al-`Arab, pp. 12; `alabḥ, al-Sḥrah al-`alabiyyah 1:25-26.

There are some other statements regarding this issue. See al-Sḥrah al-`alabiyyah 1:27.

² The Arab groups and tribes are given different names, such as sha`b, qabḥlah, `imjrah, bašn, fakhdh and faḥḥlah in accordance with their extension and size. For instance, Khuzaymah was a sha`b; Kinjnah qabḥlah, Quraysh `imjrah, Quṣayy bašn, Hjshim fakhdh, and `Abbjs faḥḥlah. See Ibn `Abd-Rabbih, al-Iqd al-Farḥd 3:330; `usayn Mu'nis, the History of Quraysh.

On the basis of this typology, some researchers have attributed Quraysh to qabḥlah and some to `imjrah. But the very nature of this typology is a suspect; some researchers would not accept it as such. See The History of Quraysh, pp. 215-216. Here, we will refer to Quraysh as a qabḥlah (tribe).

³ Mas'ḥḥ states that the tribe of Quraysh had twenty-five branches and he mentions them by names. See Murḥj al-Dhahab 2:269.

`Abd al-Muṣṣalib's Personality

Among the Holy Prophet's ancestors, we have a lot of information about `Abd al-Muṣṣalib, the first ancestor, since he lived at a time close to the Islamic era. `Abd al-Muṣṣalib was a beloved, generous, wise and unique personality.¹ He, like all great divine personalities, was the chief of his time. Despite his long life, he never took on the corrupt traits prevalent in the society of Mecca. In those days, nobody in Mecca believed in the Resurrection; and even if this belief existed, it was not strong. Not only did `Abd al-Muṣṣalib believe in the Resurrection but also emphasized the chastisement of that Day; he used to remark:

"There is a world after this one in which good-wishers will get their rewards and evildoers their punishment."²

Although a tribal dogmatism prevailed in the Arabian Peninsula in those dark days and everybody defended the rights of his relatives without considering justice, `Abd al-Muṣṣalib was not such a person. He put a lot of pressure on one of his relatives, called ʿarb ibn Umayyah, to pay the blood money of a Jew who had been killed under instigation and persuasion.³ He used to encourage his children to stay away from the nasty deeds of this world and engage themselves in good deeds.⁴

`Abd al-Muṣṣalib believed in a number of traditions

¹ ʿalabʿ, op cit, pp. 6.

² op cit, p6; Shukrʿ al-ʿalʿsʿ; Bulʿgh al-Irab 1:324.

³ ʿalabʿ, op cit, pp. 6, al-ʿalʿsʿ, op cit, pp. 323; Ibn al-Athʿr, al-Kimil fʿl-Tirʿkh 2:15, al-Bulʿdharʿ, Ansib al-Ashrif 1:73.

⁴ ʿalabʿ, op cit, pp. 7; Masʿʿdʿ, Murʿj al-Dhahab 2:109.

which were approved of in Islam; among them we may refer to the prohibition of drinking wine, the prohibition of adultery, the punishment of adulterers; the cutting of the thief's hand, the banishment of ill-named Meccan women, the prohibition of burying daughters alive, the prohibition of marriage with intimates, the prohibition of being naked in circumambulating the Kaaba, carrying out one's vows and obligations, the observance of the sacred months, and finally engaging in mutual cursing (mubjhalah).¹ It is narrated that `Abd al-Muṣṣalib was the evidence of God and Abʿ-ʿlib God's Representative.²

The Household of Monotheism

Prophet Mu'ammad's household was a household of monotheism. According to the beliefs of researchers who believed in Imamate, Prophet Mu'ammad's father and his ancestors from Adam to `Abdullh were all monotheists. There was no atheist among them—a fact asserted by many Qur'anic verses and narrations. The Holy Prophet is reported to have said,

"God led me from the clean men's loins into the clean women's wombs and put me into your world and never let me be mingled with the corruptions of the

¹ al-ʿalʿsʿ, op cit, pp. 324, Ibn Wjʿil, Tirʿkh al-Ya`qʿbʿ 2:7; al-Sʿrah al-ʿalabiyyah 1:7; Shaykh al-ʿadʿq, al-Khiʿl 2:312-313.

² ʿadʿq, al-Tiqidjt, pp. 135; al-Majlisʿ, Biʿir al-Anwjr 15:117; Uʿl al-Kifʿ 1:445.

Among the issues concerning `Abd al-Muṣṣalib is his vow to sacrifice one of his children for God. The report on this vow, despite its fame, suffers some documental considerations and needs further clarifications. See `Alʿ Dawinʿ, The History Of Islam From The Start To Hegira, pp. 54-59; Shaykh al-ʿadʿq, Man-Lj-Yaʿsuruhʿl-Faqʿh 3:89.

Ignorance Era.”¹

We know that no dirt is worse than atheism or disbelief. If ever there were an atheist or disbeliever among the progeny or progenitors of anybody, he would not be considered clean. The Twelver Imjmiyyah scholars believe that Ab£-±jlib and ªminah bint (daughter of) Wahab—the Holy Prophet’s mother—were monotheists.² In this regard, Imam `Al¢ (a.s) has stated:

“I swear to God that my father and ancestors, `Abd al-Mu§§alib, Hjshim and `Abd Manjf, did not believe in any form of idolatory. They were true followers of Prophet Abraham’s religion and used to perform prayers to God at the Kaaba.”³

¹ - ad£q, op cit, pp. 135; al-Majlis¢, op cit, pp. 117; Muf¢d, Awj`il al-Maqil¢t, pp. 12; ±abars¢, Majma` al-Bayjñ 4:322.

Some researchers have interpreted this narration in the form of the cleanliness of the progenitor. See Sayyid Hjshim Ras£l¢ Maªallj¢¢, Some Lectures On The Analytic History Of Islam 1:64.

² Muf¢d, op cit, - ad£q, op cit.

Some Sunni distinguished scholars, such as al-Fakhr al-Rjz¢ and al-Suy£§¢, believe the same thing in this regard as the Twelver Sh¢`ah. See Bi'jr al-Anwjñr 15:118-122.

³ - ad£q, Kamjl al-D¢ñ, pp. 175; al-Ghad¢r 7:387.

CHAPTER TWO

The Holy Prophet's Childhood and Adolescence

The Birth

The Arabs at the Ignorance Era did not have any constant historical starting point; rather, they considered some significant local events, such as the death of a distinguished man or a bloody war between two tribes as a temporary historical point of reference.¹ No such historical point existed among all Arab tribes either. Rather, each tribe used a specific historical point of reference of its own.²

When the army of elephants, under the leadership of Abrahah, the Ethiopian commander, came to Mecca to destroy God's House,³ it was severely defeated through God's hidden power. This event overpassed all other events and that year became the historical point of reference for many years to come.⁴ On that same year,

¹ For further information regarding these events, see Mas'ūdī, al-Tanbih wa'l-Ishrif, pp. 172-181; Mu'ammad Ibrāhīm 'ayāt, The History Of The Prophet Of Islam, pp. 26-27.

² Mas'ūdī, op cit, pp. 27.

³ Shaykh al-ʿIsā, al-Amīl, pp. 80-82; al-Bayhaqī, op cit, pp. 94-97; Ibn Hushīm, op cit, pp. 44-55; al-Bulḍharī, op cit, pp. 67-69; Mu'ammad Ibn 'abīb, al-Munammaq, pp. 70-77.

⁴ Prior to the event of the Elephant Army, Quraysh had appointed the Prophet Mu'ammad (ﷺ) was born in Mecca.¹ This event, with regards to some pieces of evidence such as the emigration (Hegira) in 622 AD and the Holy Prophet's demise in 632 AD at the age of 60-63 years must have occurred in the years 569-570 AD.²

Infancy and Childhood

death of Quṣayy as a historical point of reference. See Tjrekh al-Ya`qub 2:4.

¹ Shaykh al-Kulaynī, Uṣṣal al-Kif 1:439; Ibn Wāṣil, Tjrekh al-Ya`qub 2:4; Mas'ūdī, Murāj al-Dhahab 2:274; al-Majlisī, Bi'ir al-Anwār 15:250-252; 'alabī, op cit, pp. 95; al-Bayhaqī, op cit, pp. 72-73; Ibn Kathīr, al-Serah al-Nabawiyyah 1:201; Ibn Sa'd, al-ṭabaqāt al-Kubrī 1:101; Ibn al-Athar, Uṣṣal al-Ghībah 1:14; Ibn Hushīm, al-Serah al-Nabawiyyah 1:167; 'Abd al-Qādir Badrīn, The Clarification Of The History Of Damascus; Ibn Isḥāq, al-Siyar wal-Maghīz, pp. 61.

² 'Alī Akbar Fayyīṣ, the History of Islam, pp. 62; 'Abbās Ziryīb, Serat Rasūlillāh, pp. 86-87; Sayyid Ja'far Shahīdī, Tjrekh Ta'lel Islām tī Pīyīn Umawīyyīn, pp. 37.

Concerning the exact date of the Holy Prophet's birthday, whether it occurred in the Elephant Year or prior or after it, the matter is not clear. For Further information, see Mu'ammad The Last Of The Prophets 1:176-177; the article of Sayyid Ja'far Shahīdī in Rasūl Ma'allīq's Lessons from the Analytical History of Islam 1:107; Ibn Kathīr, al-Serah al-Nabawiyyah 1:203; Tahdhīb Tjrekh Dimashq 1:281-282; Sayyid 'asan Taqīzīdah, From Parviz to Genghis, pp. 153; 'usayn Mu'nīs, the History of Quraysh, pp. 153-159.

Furthermore, some European historians explained the motive behind Abrahah's military campaign to be an ambition for territorial expansion against Iran via the northern part of Arabia, which took place due to the Roman instigations. In Muslim reference books, the motive is said to be religious due to the competition between the Church in Yemen and the Kaaba in 'ijz. See Fayyīṣ, op cit, pp. 62; Abū'l-Qāsim Pīyandeh, introduction of the translation of Qur'ān into Persian.

When Prophet Muḥammad (ﷺ) became two years old,¹ his father, `Abduļļh, on his mercantile journey from Damascus, passed away in Yathrib, where he was buried.² Referring to the orphanage of the Holy Prophet, the Holy Qur'ān states:

Did He not find you an orphan and give you shelter; and find you lost (i.e. unrecognized by men) and guide them to you; and find you in want and make you to be free from want? (93:6-8)

^aminah's infant was breast-fed by his mother for the first days of his birth;³ he was then breastfed by Thuwaybah, a female servant freed by Abū-Lahab.⁴ According to Arab customs,⁵ he was submitted to a nurse, named ^oalḥmah al-Sa`diyyah, from the tribe of Banī-Sa`d ibn Bakr who used to live in the desert.⁶ ^oalḥmah

¹ Shaykh al-Kulaynī, op cit, pp. 439; Ibn Wajīl, op cit, pp. 6. al-Karjīakī, Kanz al-Fawā'id 2:167.

The age of the Holy Prophet at his father's death is also recorded as eleven months and twenty-eight days. See Ibn Sa`d, al-ṭabaqāt al-Kubrī 1:100.

² Tahdhīb Tjrekh Dimashq 17:282; Ibn Sa`d, op cit, 1:99; Mas`ūdī, al-Tanbēh wa'l-Ishrīf, pp. 196; ṭabarī, Tjrekh al-Umam wa'l-Mulūk 2:176; Ibn al-Athar, al-Kimīlīfī'l-Tjrekh 2:10.

³ Tjrekh al-Ya`qūbī 2:6; ^oalabī, op cit, 1:143.

⁴ Tjrekh al-Ya`qūbī 2:6; Ilīm al-Warj, pp. 6; al-Bayhaqī, op cit, pp. 110; Ibn al-Athar, Usd al-Ghībah 1:15; al-Majlisī, Bi'ir al-Anwār 15:384.

⁵ ^oalabī, op cit, 1:146.

⁶ Tjrekh al-Ya`qūbī 2:7; Ibn Hushīm, op cit, 1:171; Ibn Sa`d, op cit, pp. 110; Mas`ūdī, al-Tanbēh wa'l-Ishrīf, pp. 196, Murēj al-Dhahab, 2:274; ṭabarī, Ilīm al-Warj, pp. 6; al-Bayhaqī, op cit, pp. 101-102; Ibn Kathīr, al-Siyar wal-Maghīzī, pp. 49.

breastfed the Holy Prophet¹ for two years, cared for him for five years and finally submitted him to his family.²

Most probably, they put the keeping of the Holy Prophet in the hands of a desert-dwelling nurse because his wanted him to nourish in the clean air of the desert and to stay away from the disease of cholera epidemic in Mecca.³ Another reason was that they wanted him to learn the eloquent Arabic from the nomadic tribes. Some historians have referred to this factor.⁴ Attesting this fact, the Holy Prophet is reported to have said,

"I am more eloquent than all of you because I am both a Qurayshite and have been breastfed among the tribe of Banī-Sa`d ibn Bakr."⁵

Concerning the adoption of ^oalḥmah as the special nurse for Muḥammad (ﷺ), there are some accounts in

¹ Al-Bulīdharī, Ansīb al-Ashrīf 1:94; al-Maqdisī, al-Bad' wal-Tjrekh 4:131; al-Majlisī, Bi'ir al-Anwār 15:401; Ibn Sa`d, op cit, 1:112.

² Tjrekh al-Ya`qūbī 2:7; Ibn Shahrīshīb, op cit, 1:33; al-Bulīdharī, op cit, pp. 44; Mas`ūdī, Murēj al-Dhahab 2:275.

³ Ibn Abī-^oadīd, Shar' Nahj al-Balīghah 13:203; al-Majlisī, op cit, pp. 401.

⁴ Ja`far Subīnī, Forēgh Abadiyyat 1:159; Sayyid Ja`far Murtaḥī al-^amilī, al-^aḥ' min Sḥrat al-Nabī al-A`am 1:81.

⁵ Ibn Hushīm, al-Sḥrah al-Nabawiyyah, 1:176; Ibn Sa`d, op cit, pp. 113; ^oalabī, op cit, pp. 146; Khargīshī, Sharaf al-Nabī, pp. 146.

It is said while the Holy Prophet was living with ^oalḥmah al-Sa`diyyah in the desert when the case of opening his chest took place. However, experts in the history of Islam regard this as invented and false for many reason. See Sayyid Ja`far Murtaḥī al-^amilī, al-^aḥ' min Sḥrat al-Nabī al-A`am 1:82; Sayyid Hīshim Rasīlī Ma'allījī, Lessons From The Analytical History Of Islam 1:189, 204; Sheikh Muḥmīd Abī-Rayyāh, Aḥwāj' un `Alī al-Sunnah al-Mu'ammadiyyah 1:175-177.

historical documents to the effect that since Mu'ammad (ﷺ) was an orphan, nobody would accept to take care of him. This was because a nurse would receive some money from the child's parents and such a means was not available to Mu'ammad (ﷺ). °alċmah had to accept him since there was no other option for her to be busy.¹ Lack of acceptance of Mu'ammad (ﷺ) on the part of nurses due to his orphanage does not seem accurate for the following reasons:

As we have already said, `Abdułlĥ passed away several months after Mu'ammad's birth; thus, at that time, he was not yet an orphan.

Due to `Abd al-Muṣṣalib's privileges in Mecca and because of his high socio-economic status, nurses and caretakers would not refrain from taking care of him; rather, they were extremely zealous to take care of such a family.

This topic has not been discussed in many historical documents.²

His Mother's Demise and `Abd al-Muṣṣalib's Guardianship

Upon receiving her child from °alċmah, °minah, together with her child and Umm-Ayman, `Abdułlĥ's bondwoman, made a journey to Yathrib with a caravan in order to pay a visit to his maternal uncles.³ After a stay of ¹ Ibn Hushġm, op cit, 1:171-172; al-Bulġdharċ, op cit, pp. 93, Ibn Sa`d, op cit, pp. 110-111.

² Ibn Shahrġshġb, a distinguished narrator, has dealt with this issue but has not dealt with the Holy Prophet's orphanage. See al-Manġqib 1:33.

³ Salmġ, the mother of `Abd al-Muṣṣalib was from Yathrib and from one month in Yathrib and on her way back to Mecca, she passed away at a house called Abwġ, where she was buried. At that time, Mu'ammad (ﷺ) was six years old.¹ Umm-Ayman took him to Mecca with the caravan and submitted him to `Abd al-Muṣṣalib² who then resumed Mu'ammad's guardianship and took good care of him as long as he was alive. He used to say, "Mu'ammad will definitely have a high status."³

`Abd al-Muṣṣalib's Demise and Abġ-±ġlib's Guardianship

When Mu'ammad (ﷺ) was eight years old, `Abd al-Muṣṣalib died and Abġ-±ġlib, his full uncle, resumed his guardianship.⁴ From then on, Abġ-±ġlib, a generous and respectful dignitary, became Mu'ammad's guardian⁵ although he was extremely poor.⁶ He was a man of high self-esteem among Quraysh.⁷ He was fond of THE Holy Prophet Mu'ammad (ﷺ) whom he loved more than his Banġ'l-Najġr. See al-Bayhaġċ, op cit, 1:121.

¹ Ibn Isġġq, op cit, p65; al-Bulġdharċ, op cit, pp. 94 Ibn Sa`d, op cit, pp. 116; Ibn Hushġm, op cit, pp. 177; al-Bayhaġċ, op cit, p121; ±abarsċ, op cit, pp. 9; °adġq, Kamġl al-Dġn 1:172; Tġrġkh al-Ya`ġġbġ 2:7; `Abd al-Qġdir Badġġn, Tahdhġb Tġrġkh Dimashq 1:223.

² °alabġ, op cit, 1:172.

³ Ibn Hushġm, op cit, 1:178; °adġq, op cit, pp. 171; al-Majlisġ, op cit, pp. 406; Tġrġkh al-Ya`ġġbġ 2:9.

⁴ Ibn Hushġm, op cit, pp. 189; al-Majlisġ, op cit, pp. 406; ±abarġ, op cit, 2:194.

⁵ Tġrġkh al-Ya`ġġbġ, pp. 1; Ibn Sa`d, op cit, 1:119; al-Majlisġ, op cit, pp. 407; al-Suhaylġ, al-Rawġ al-Anif 1:193.

⁶ Tġrġkh al-Ya`ġġbġ 2:11; Jawġd `Alġ, al-Mufaġġal 4:82.

⁷ Ibn Abġ'l-°adġd, Shar' Nahġ al-Balġġhah 15:219.

children.¹

Abġ-±lib's wife, Fīšimah bint Asad, had a significant role in the education of Mu'ammad (¥). She did her best in this regard. She loved him like a genuine mother and preferred him to her own children. Never did Mu'ammad (¥) forget her care; he always referred to her as his genuine and natural mother.²

Journey to Damascus and the Monk's Prediction

On his journey to Damascus for trade, Abġ-±lib accompanied Mu'ammad with him according to his request while he was 8, 9, 12 or 13 years of age, according to different documents. When the caravan reached BuŸr,³ they rested next to a hermitage in which there was a monk, called Baġrġ, who was a well-known Christian priest. Among the crowd, the monk paid a special attention to Mu'ammad in whom he could see some signs of the expected Prophet. Talking with Mu'ammad (¥) for a short time and asking him some questions, the monk predicted his prophethood and advised Abġ-±lib to take good care of and protect him against the Jews' danger molestations.⁴ However, the

¹ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, 1:119; Ibn Shahrīshġb, op cit, 1:36; al-Majlisġ, op cit, pp. 407; `Abd al-Qġdir Badrġn, Tahdhġb Tġrġkh Dimashq 1:285.

² Tġrġkh al-Ya`qġbġ 2:11; Ibn Abġ'l-°adġd, op cit, 1:14; UŸġl al-Kġfġ 1:453.

³ A village in °awrġn, a province of Damascus. See Yġġt al-°amawġ, Mu`jam al-Buldġn 1:441.

⁴ This issue is brought up by the following Muslim historians and narrators: Ibn Hushġm, al-Sġrah al-Nabawiyyah 1:191-193; ±abarġ, Tġrġkh al-Umam wa'l-Mulġk 2:195; Sunan al-Tirmidhġ 5:90, h. 2620; Ibn Isġq, al-Siyar wa'l-Maghġzġ, pp. 73; Ibn Sa'd, Al-±abaġġt al-

following points should be taken into consideration concerning this event:

(1) This event is referred to in some historical records briefly; while in others, it is dealt with in more details. The essence of the event is not doubtful, because in several verses of the Holy Qur'ġn, the predictions of previous Prophets about Prophet Mu'ammad have been stated.¹

(2) The signs that the religious scholars had about Mu'ammad (¥) were of two kinds: indicative of his personal life and body features (for instance, his orphanage, facial features and his name) and others related to his family background (such as his being an Arab and his marriage). One of the most distinguished signs on his body was a speckle (birthmark) between his shoulders, which is called the Prophet's speckle or the Prophet's seal.²

(3) Baġrġ's prediction was only new to the people of the caravan because Abġ-±lib and Mu'ammad's other

Kubrġ 1:121; Mas`ġdġ, Murġġ al-Dhahab 2:286; °adġq, Kamġl al-Dġn 1:182-186; al-Bulġdharġ, Ansġb al-Ashġf 1:96; al-Bayhaġġ, Dalġ'il al-Nubuwwah 1:195; ±abarsġ, I'ġġm al-Warġ, pp. 17-18; Ibn Shahrīshġb, Manġqib 1:15; `Abd al-Qġdir Badrġn, Tahdhġb Tġrġkh Dimashq 1:270, 354; Ibn Kathġr, Sġrat al-Nabġ 1:243-249, al-Bidġyah wa'l-Nihġyah 2:229-230; al-Sġrah al-°alabiyyah 1:141; al-Majlisġ, Bi'ġr al-Anwġr 15:409.

¹ Qur'ġn 2:41, 42, 89, 146; 7:157; 6: 20; 61: 6.

² Ibn Hushġm, op cit, 1:193; al-Bayhaġġ, op cit, pp. 195; Sunan al-Tirmidhġ 5:590; `Abd al-Qġdir Badrġn, Tahdhġb Tġrġkh Dimashq 1:278; Ibn Kathġr, al-Sġrah al-Nabawiyyah 1:245; °aġ' al-Bukhġrġ 5:28.

close relatives had already been aware of his bright future.¹

Historical Distortions by the Christians

Some Orientalists have distorted the event of Mu'ammad's encounter with Ba'ḥrj, claiming that during this visit, Mu'ammad learned the teachings of the Torah and the Gospel.² Will Durant, rather subtly, refers to this event:

"When Mu'ammad was twelve years old, his uncle Abḥ-ṭlib took him with a caravan to BuḤr, a city in Damascus. He probably learned some aspects of Judaism and Christianity during this journey."³

To answer these irrational claims and distortions, the following points should be considered:

(1) Historians unanimously acknowledge that Mu'ammad (Ḥ) was illiterate.

(2) At that time, he was less than thirteen years old.

(3) The interval between this visit and his prophethood was a long time.

(4) His meeting with Ba'ḥrj was rather short; it included the monk's questions and Mu'ammad's replies. How would it be possible to imagine that an illiterate boy within a short period of time could have learned the aspects of Judaism and Christianity so well that he could have presented it as a complete religion at the age of forty?

¹ Tjṛḥkh al-Ya`qḥḥ 2:11; al-Bulḍharḥ, Ansjb al-Ashrif 1:81; UḤḥl al-Kjḥ 1:447.

² Gustav Le Bon, The Islamic And Arab Civilization, pp. 101, Ignáz Goldziher, Doctrine and Law in Islam, pp. 25; Mu'ammad Ghazzjḥ, Trial of Goldziher the Zionist, pp. 47; Karl Brockleman, History of Muslim Peoples, pp. 34; Treason in Historical Accounts 1:220-225

³ Will Durant, The Story of Civilization, pp. 207.

(5) Had Mu'ammad (Ḥ) learnt anything from the monk, the aggressive and excuse-seeking Quraysh would have used it against him. However, there is no sign of this aggression against him in the history of Islam. Quoting Quraysh's accusations and answering them, the Qur'in does not make any reference to such an event.

(6) If such a thing were correct, how come those people on the caravan did not refer to it?

p(7) If such an account were correct, why did Christian natives of Damascus not claim at that time that they had been Mu'ammad's instructors?

(8) If this claim were correct, Islamic teachings would be the same as those of the Torah and the Gospel. However, these teachings are not only contradictory, but also most of the Jewish and Christian ideas and teachings of the Torah and the Gospel have been rejected by the Holy Qur'in.¹ Once, `Umar ibn al-Khaṣṣjb asked the Holy Prophet to let him write down the narrations which he had heard from the Jews. The Holy Prophet remarked,

"Are you confused in your own religion like the Jews and the Christians? I have brought you this holy and luminous religion. If Moses were alive, he would follow my way now."²

In Medina, where a great number of Jews used to live,

¹ Qur'in 4:47,51,171; 5:72-73; 9:630.

² Shaykh `Abbjs al-Qummḥ, Safḥnat al-Bi'jr 2:727; Ibn al-Athḥr, al-Nihjyah fḥ Gharḥb al-'adḥth wa'l-Athar 5:282.

Mu'ammad (ﷺ) used to show his disagreements in many religious plans and orders with the Jews¹ so much so that they used to say "This man wants to disagree with us in all of our programs."²

Constan Virgil Giorgio, a Christian who desired to spread lies against Islam, has narrated the event with so many distortions and illogical details that his account is not only contrary to any standard of thinking but also in disharmony with the claims of the Christians themselves. He writes:

"Ibn Hushjm, an Arab narrator, writes: Contrary to people's beliefs, Ba'ṣrj was not Christian; he was Manichean, a follower of a man called Mani who claimed prophethood at the time of the Sasanids. Bahram I, the Sasanid King, ordered him to be crucified across the entrance of Gondi Shapur in Khuzestan in 276 AD. Mani and his followers, including Ba'ṣrj, believed that God is not in the monopoly of a specific nation; rather, he belonged to men all over the world. This is because all the world nations belong to Him and God will send a prophet to a nation to speak with the people in their own language whenever He wishes so."³

By the name Ibn Hushjm, the writer most probably refers to `Abd al-Malik ibn Hushjm (213 AH), the author of the famous book al-Sḥrah al-Nabawiyyah, one of the significant documents of the history of Islam. However, there is neither any mention of the word Manichean relating to this issue in Ibn Hushjm's book nor in any older Islamic sources. This man is introduced as either Christian or even rarely Jew. Now the question is: How did Giorgio get this information?

¹ Murtaḥj al-`amilḥ, al-`a'ḥ' mi Sḥrat al-Rasḥl al-A``am, pp. 106.

² °alabḥ, op cit, 2:332.

³ Mu'ammad, a prophet who should be re-evaluated, pp. 5. This book includes weak points, errors and distortions which decrease the scientific value of its content. The style of the translator, too, is quite peculiar; see Nashr Djnish Magazine, eighth year, Issue, 2, pp. 52, Article: a phenomenon called Zabihollah Mansuri, written by Karim Emami.

Furthermore, Manichaeism did not have any follower in Damascus; the center for Manichaeism was Iran. In the word of a scholar, Manichaeism is ascribed to Ba'ṣrj for purpose of establishing that Islam has imitated the uniqueness of God and the universalism of Islam from Manichaeism. During the last centuries, Islam has been confronted with similar issues. It is not important for the accusers to ascribe the most advanced form of thoughts to the weakened religions because these old religions do not have genuine followers to be proud of. Islam stands so high that the world of Christianity even centuries after the Crusade campaigns, still worries about the expansion of Islam and tries helplessly to de-emphasize Islam's glories.¹

¹ Mu'ammad, the last of the prophets 1:188, the article of Sayyid Ja'far Shahḥdḥ. Some contemporary Iranian historians have raised some doubts on the issue of the Holy Prophet's visit to Ba'ṣrj, such doubts and disturbances should be taken care of. We shouldn't that even if we superficially believe that this visit has not taken place, nothing is taken away from the grandeur of the Holy Prophet, because there were numerous other predictions of the coming prophet beside Ba'ṣrj. The reason why we have brought up the claims of the Orientalists here is to show that they have used this issue to make some distortions in the history of Islam.

CHAPTER THREE

The Holy Prophet's Youth

°ilf al-Fuṣṣḥl

°ilf al-Fuṣṣḥl,¹ the most important Qurayshi treaty,² was held among some branches of Quraysh tribe, because one of the Banī-Zubayd tribe had entered Mecca and sold some goods to al-ʿaṣ ibn Wajil of Banī-Sahm. The goods were delivered to al-ʿaṣ ibn Wajil who refused to pay the price to the seller. A man from Banī-Zubayd then came to Wajil to receive his money, but he received nothing. There was a strong tribal system in Arabia in those days and every tribe tried to defend its own interests and those of its members. If a foreigner was wronged, there was nobody to help or protect him. The Zubaydi man had to climb Abī-Qubays Mount and say passionate poems to let the leaders of Quraysh hear what injustice he had suffered. At that time, these leaders had gathered below

¹ One of the events in which the Holy Prophet is said to have participated in while he was young was the war of al-Fujjir. It is said that this war had taken place prior to °ilf al-Fuṣṣḥl when the Holy Prophet was 14-20 years old. However, since his participation in this war is doubtful, we will not follow it up here. See al-ʿaṣ min Ṣirat al-Nabī al-Aḥmad 1:95-97; Some analytical lessons of the history of Islam 1:303-503.

² Ibn Saʿd, al-ṭabaqāt al-kubrī 1:128; Muḥammad Ibn ʿabīb, al-Munammaq, pp. 52.

the mountain to have a meeting. Having heard the man's call for justice, Zubayr ibn ʿAbd al-Muṣṣalib encouraged the leaders of Banī-Hāshim, i.e. ʿAbd al-Muṣṣalib, Banī-Zuhrah, Banī-Tamīm and Banī-ʿIrith (who were among the prominent clans of Quraysh) to gather at the home of ʿAbdullāh ibn Jadʿan al-Taymī. They convened a treaty according to which nobody, either weak or poor, was to be the subject of any act of injustice. Then they went to the home of al-ʿaṣ and received the money for the Zubaydi man.¹ At that time, Muḥammad (ﷺ) was twenty years old.²

The participation of Muḥammad (ﷺ) in this treaty was a brave act. It is interpreted now as a symbolic act of protection of human rights in that backward and ignorant society. His brave and just act is appreciated when we notice that the youngsters of his age in those days were participating in pleasure-seeking parties and did not have any concept of protecting the oppressed or carrying out justice. After prophethood, he used to remember his participation in that treaty with a lot of joy. He said:

"I took part in a treaty at the home of ʿAbdullāh ibn Jadʿan which made me even more delighted than receiving red-haired camels. If at this era of Islam I am invited to such a pact, I will joyfully accept it."³

¹ Muḥammad Ibn ʿabīb, op cit, pp. 52-53; Ibn Saʿd, op cit, pp. 128; Tārīkh al-Yaʿqūbī 2:13; Ibn Hushīm, al-Ṣirah al-Nabawīyah 1:142; al-Bulḍharī, Ansīb al-Ashrīf 2:12.

² Muḥammad Ibn Saʿd, op cit. It is recorded that the age of the Holy Prophet was even older at this time. Tārīkh al-Yaʿqūbī 2:13; al-Munammaq, pp. 53; Ibn Abī ʿAdūd, Sharḥ Nahj al-Balīghah 15:225.

³ Ibn Hushīm, op cit, pp. 142; Tārīkh al-Yaʿqūbī, op cit, pp. 13; al-

Since this pact was superior to any other treaty, it had the name of ʿilf al-Fuṣṣḥ.¹ This pact was a stronghold for the homeless and the miserable. Later on, it was repeatedly used to protect the oppressed ones in Mecca against tyrants and oppressors.²

Second Journey to Damascus

Khadġjah, daughter of Khuwaylid, was a rich, honorable and dignified trader who used to employ men for trade purposes, provide them with capital and pay them wages in return.³ When Muḥammad (ﷺ) was twenty-

Bulġdharġ, op cit, pp. 16; Muḥammad Ibn ʿabġb, op cit, pp. 188.

¹ Muḥammad Ibn ʿabġb, op cit, pp. 54-55

² al-Bulġdharġ 2:13. The memory of this treaty was still fresh at the start of Islam. For instance, during the reign of Muʿjwiyah al-Walġd ibn ʿUtba ibn Abġ-Sufyġn was the governor of Medina. He quarreled with Imam al-ʿusayn on a financial issue about the grove of Dhuʿl-Marwah. Imam al-ʿusayn said, “Is al-Walġd acting arrogantly against me because he has ruling authority? I swear by Allah, if he does not give me my due, I shall take my sword and stand in the Mosque of Allah calling by the name of ʿilf al-Fuṣṣḥ.” When his word was conveyed to ʿAbduʿlġh ibn al-Zubayr, he cried out, “By Allah I swear, if al-ʿusayn calls by the name of ʿilf al-Fuṣṣḥ, I shall certainly take my sword and support him; and then, either he will be given his due or we die altogether.” When al-Walġd was informed of these situation, he had to give al-ʿusayn his due until he pleased him. See Ibn Hushġm, op cit, 1:142; al-Bulġdharġ, op cit, 2:14; ʿalabġ, op cit, 1:215; Ibn Abġʿl-ʿadġd, op cit, 15:226; Ibn al-Athġr, al-Kġmil fġʿl-Tġrġkh 2:42.

³ Ibn Hushġm, op cit, 1:199; Ibn Isġġq, al-Siyar waʿl-Maghġzġ, pp. 81. Sibġ ibn al-Jawzġ, in Tadhkirat al-Khawġġ pp. 301, says “Khadġjah used to employ them in the form of limited partnership.” Ibn al-Athġr, in Usd al-Gġġbah 1:16, says: “She used to employ either in the form of limited partnership or on a wage-system.”

five years old,¹ Abġ-ġlib said to him, “I have become broke and empty-handed. Now a caravan is on its way to Damascus. I wish you to go to Khadġjah and ask for a job.”

At this time, Khadġjah had become aware of Muḥammad's traits of honesty and good manners. She sent an errand to him saying, “If you accept the supervision of my caravan, I will pay you more than others and I would send my special servant, Maysarah, to help you.” Muḥammad (ﷺ) accepted this offer² and accompanied the caravan to Damascus accompanied by Maysarah.³ He could make more money than others.⁴

Maysarah observed such feats of magnanimity in Muḥammad (ﷺ) that he was surprised. During this trip, Nusġġr the monk predicted his prophethood. He observed that Muḥammad (ﷺ) had some arguments with a man over trade. That man said, “You should swear to Lġt and ʿUzzġ so that I could accept your statement.” Muḥammad (ﷺ) replied, “I have never sworn to Lġt and ʿUzzġ in my whole life.”⁵ On his return to Mecca, Maysarah told Khadġjah what he had seen in Muḥammad (ﷺ).⁶

¹ Ibn Saʿd, op cit, 1:129.

² There are some pieces of evidence which show that the Holy Prophet's job was in the form of limited participation and not on the basis of wage-earning system. See al-ʿaʿġ min Sġrat al-Nabġ al-Aʿʿam 1:112.

³ Ibn Hushġm, op cit, pp. 199; Ibn Isġġq, op cit, pp. 81.

⁴ Ibn Saʿd, op cit, pp. 130.

⁵ Ibn Saʿd, op cit, 130.

⁶ Ibn Isġġq, op cit, pp. 82; Ibn Saʿd, op cit, p131; Ibn al-Athġr, al-Kġmil fġʿl-Tġrġkh 2:39; Tġrġkh al-ġabarġ 2:196; al-Bayhaġġ, Dalġʿil al-

Marrying Khadċjah

Khadċjah was a farsighted, provident, honorable and dignified woman of noble lineage. She was superior to all women of Quraysh.¹ Due to her high moral standards, she was nicknamed ṭjhirah (immaculate)² and Sayyidah (doyenne) of Quraysh.³ She is said to have married twice but her previous husbands had died.⁴ Every Qurayshi nobleman desired to marry her.⁵ Some well-known persons such as `Uqbah ibn Abċ-Mu`ċġ, Abċ-Jahl, and Abċ-Sufyċn had asked her for marriage but she always

Nubuwwah 1:215; Ibn al-Athċr, Usd al-Ghjbah 5:435; al-Dċljbċ, al-Dhurriyyah al-ṭjhirah, pp. 45-46.

¹ Ibn Hushċm, op cit, 1:200-201; Ibn Sa`d, op cit, 1:131; al-Bayhaqċ, op cit, 1:215; al-Dċljbċ, op cit, pp. 46; Ibn al-Athċr, al-Kjmil fċ'l-Tjrkċh 2:39.

² Ibn al-Athċr, Usd al-Ghjbah 5:434; alabċ, op cit, 1:224; `Asqalċnċ, al-Iċjbah fċ Tamyċz al-`a'jbah 4:281; Ibn `Abd al-Barr, al-Isċ`jb 4:279.

³ alabċ, op cit, 1:224.

⁴ Her previous husbands were `Utayq ibn `a`idh and Abċ-Hjlah Hind ibn Nabbċsh. See Ibn al-Athċr, Usd al-Ghjbah 5:434; Ibn `ajar, op cit, pp. 281; Ibn `Abd al-Barr, op cit, pp. 280; alabċ, op cit, 1:229; Khargċshċ, Sharaf Al-Nabċ, pp. 201; `Abd al-Qjdir Badrċn, Tahdhċb Tjrkċh Dimashq 1:302.

According to some documents, Lady Khadċjah had never married before the Holy Prophet who, accordingly, was her first and last husband. Some contemporary experts emphasize this point. Murtaċj al-`amilċ, al-`a'ċ' min Sċrat al-Nabċ al-A``am 1:121.

⁵ Ibn Sa`d, op cit, al-Bayhaqċ, op cit, pp. 215; ṭabarċ, op cit, 2:197; alabċ, op cit, Ibn al-Athċr, op cit, Ibn al-Athċr, al-Kjmil fċ'l-Tjrkċh 2:40.

turned them down.¹

On the other hand, Khadċjah was a relative of Mu'ammad (ﷺ) and both of them had the common ancestor of Quċay. She had recognized the bright future for Mu'ammad (ﷺ),² and was pleased to accept him as her spouse.³ She made an offer of marriage and he consulted with his uncles who accepted this marriage, which took place in a family gathering.⁴ It is said that at that time, Khadċjah was forty years old and Mu'ammad (ﷺ) was twenty-five.⁵ She was his first wife.⁶

Installation of the Black Stone

Mu'ammad's excellent manners, honesty and decency had attracted the Meccan people so much that everybody called him amċn meaning trustworthy.⁷ He was so

¹ al-Majlisċ, Bi'jr al-Anwjir 16:22.

² al-Majlisċ, op cit, pp. 20-21; Ibn Hushċm, op cit, 1:203; Ibn Shahrċshċb, Manċqib 1:41.

³ al-Majlisċ, op cit, pp. 21-23.

⁴ Ibn Isċiq, op cit, pp. 82; al-Buljdharċ, Ansċb al-Ashrċf 1:98; Tjrkċh al-Ya`qċbċ 2:16; Ibn al-Athċr, al-Kjmil fċ'l-Tjrkċh 2:40; Dċljbċ, op cit, pp. 46; alabċ, op cit, pp. 227; al-Majlisċ, op cit, 16:19.

⁵ al-Buljdharċ, op cit, pp. 98; Ibn Sa`d, op cit, 1:132; ṭabarċ, op cit, 2:196; alabċ, op cit, pp. 228; Ibn `Abd al-Barr, al-Isċ`jb 4:280; Ibn al-Athċr, Usd al-Ghjbah 5:435; al-Kjmil fċ'l-Tjrkċh 2:39.

Regarding Lady Khadċjah's age, there are various statements and records. See Amċr Muhannċ al-Khayyċmċ, Zawċjt al-Nabċ wa-Awlċduhċ, pp. 53-54.

⁶ Ibn Hushċm, op cit, 1:201; Dċljbċ, op cit, pp. 49; al-Bayhaqċ, op cit, 1:216; Khargċshċ, op cit, pp. 201; `Abd al-Qjdir Badrċn, Tahdhċb Tjrkċh Dimashq 1:302; Ibn al-Athċr, Usd al-Ghjbah 5:434.

⁷ Ibn Sa`d, op cit, 1:121; Ibn Hushċm, op cit, 1:210; al-Bayhaqċ, op reliable that they decided to use his good judgment in the installation of the Black Stone.¹ He resolved their problem through high prudence and discretion. Due to the flood which descended from the mountains of Mecca, the walls of the Kaaba had broken on several sides. This event took place when he was thirty-five years old. Up to that day, the Kaaba had no ceiling and its walls were low. For this reason, its internal treasures were unprotected. People of Quraysh decided to build a roof; however, they were not able to carry out their plan. After the event of the flood, the leaders of the Meccan tribes decided to destroy the building to reconstruct it with a roof over it. At the time of the reconstruction, there were disagreements among the tribes over the location of the Black Stone. Once again, competitions and resorting to tribal pride surfaced. Each tribe desperately tried to have the honor of installing the stone. Some tribes, by thrusting their hands into a vessel full of blood, vowed not to let any other tribe have the honor of the installation.

Finally, upon the suggestion made by the eldest man of Quraysh, they decided to follow the opinion of the first person who would enter the Mosque from the entrance cit, 1:211; al-Majlis, op cit, 15:369.

¹ This stone, being the most sacred component of the Kaaba, is introduced as a heavenly stone which became a component of Kaaba by Prophet Abraham due to God's command. See al-Majlis, op cit, 12:84, 99; al-Azraq, Akhhir Makkah 1:62-63. Al-°ajar al-Aswad is a reddish-black, oval piece of stone set in the eastern side of the Kaaba at a height of one meter and a half from the ground. It is the center of circumambulation.

called Bib al-afj. Suddenly, Mu'ammad (¥) entered the mosque from that direction. Everybody declared that Mu'ammad (¥) was trustworthy and they would listen to his judgment. A piece of cloth was brought in by the order of the trustworthy man of Quraysh i.e. Mu'ammad (¥). He spread the piece of cloth, wrapped the stone inside it and asked the Qurayshi leaders to take each corner of it and collectively carry it to the wall. As soon as the stone was taken to the wall, Mu'ammad (¥) installed it in its original location.¹ With his delicate discretion and prudence, he solved their problem stopping a potentially huge amount of bloodshed.

Al¢ in the School of Mu'ammad

A devastating famine occurred in Mecca after the reconstruction of the Kaaba and several years before Mu'ammad's prophethood. Ab£-±lib, the Holy Prophet's uncle, was insolvent. Mu'ammad made the proposal to his other uncle `Abbjs who was one of the richest members of Quraysh that each one of them would take one of Ab£-±lib's children to his home to protect them against famine. `Abbjs accepted this proposal. Both of them went to Ab£-±lib and offered so. Thus, `Abbjs took Ja`far, and Mu'ammad (¥) took `Al¢ home to protect and educate. `Al¢ stayed at Mu'ammad's home until he was promoted to the status of prophethood. Then, `Al¢ confirmed and followed him.¹ At that time, `Alç (a.s) was six years old and his personality was in the making.² Mu'ammad (ﷺ) wanted to compensate for the hardships Abç-±lib and his wife, Fîşimah bint Asad, had gone through when he was young by adopting one of his children, namely `Alç. He saw `Alç as the most competent of Abç-±lib's children. This is evident by Mu'ammad's remark after he had adopted `Alç, "I have selected the one who has been selected by God to help me."³ Mu'ammad (ﷺ) showed a lot of respect and affection to `Alç (a.s) and did everything possible to educate him well. Façl ibn `Abbîs, one of `Alç's cousins, says:

¹ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, 1:145-146, Tjrek al-Ya`q£b 2:14-15; al-Majlis, op cit, 15:337-338; al-Buldhari, op cit, 1:99-100; Mas`£d, Mur£j al-Dhahab 2:271-272. Some historians have given other reasons for the reconstruction of the Kaaba. However, every historian has referred to the Holy Prophet's Judgment. See Ibn Isiq, al-Siyar wal-Maghiz, pp. 103; Ibn Hushim, op cit, 1:205; al-Bayhaq, Dal'il al-Nubuwwah.

I asked my father, "Which one of his children did the Prophet love the most?" He replied, "`Alç ibn Abç-±lib." I said, "I have asked you of the Prophet's sons." He replied, "The Prophet loves `Alç more than any of his sons and showed affection towards him more than others. The Prophet would never let go of `Alç except for those days when he attended Khadçjah's caravan. We have never seen a father more affectionate towards his son than the Prophet and we have never seen a son more obedient to his father than `Alç to the Prophet."⁴

¹ Ibn Hushjm, al-Sçrah al-Nabawiyyah 1:262; ±abarç, Tjrekh al-Umam wa'l-Mulçk 2:213; Ibn al-Athçr, al-Kjmil fç'l-Tjrekh 2:58; al-Bulçdharç, Ansib al-Ashrif 2:90; Ibn Abç'l-°adçd, Shar' Nahj al-Balighah 13:119, and 1:15.

² Ibn Abç'l-°adçd, Shar' Nahj al-Balighah 1:15; Ibn Shahrjshçb, Manqib, 2:180.

³ Abç'l-Faraj al-Ifahjnc, Maqtil al-±jlibiyyen, pp. 15.

⁴ Ibn Abç'l-°adçd, op cit, pp. 13, pp. 200.

After his prophethood, Mu'ammad (ﷺ) had so much emphasis over `Alç's education in the Islamic issues that if he received a Divine revelation at night, he would teach it to `Alç before dawn. If he received Divine revelation during the day, he would inform `Alç of it before sunset.¹ Once, `Alç (a.s) was asked, "How come you learned more narrations from the Prophet than his other followers?" He answered, "Whenever I asked the Prophet anything, he would answer; and whenever I was silent, he used to start telling me a narration."²

When `Alç (a.s) was the caliph, he referred to his religious education with the following remarks:

"You, followers of the Prophet, are well aware of my close relationship with him; and you know that when I was a small boy, he used to embrace me close to his breast and let me sleep in his bed in such a way that I could touch his body and feel his smell; he even used to put food into my mouth. I used to follow the Prophet like a child going after his mother. He used to teach me one of his ethical virtues each day and ordered me to adopt that virtue. Each year, he used to pray God at the °arj' Mountain; I was the only person to be with him. When he received the Divine revelation, I could vividly hear Satan's voice. I asked the Prophet what that noise was. He answered that it was Satan's noise and that it had a terrible sensation for not being obedient on the earth. He says that I could hear what he heard and see what he saw; the difference was that he was the Prophet and I was not; I was his vizier and representative for doing good on the earth.”¹

¹ Shaykh al-±çsç, al-Amjlc, pp. 624.

² Al-Suyççç, Tjrekh al-Khulafj', pp. 170.

This discourse might just refer to the Prophet's prayer at °arī’ after his prophethood, but since most of the Prophet's prayers were done at °arī’ prior to his prophethood, we can be sure that this issue is related to the era prior to his prophethood and Satan's noise of discomfort is related to the descent of the first revelations. Anyway, `Alø's spirit and continuous education from the Prophet prepared him to see and hear things which were not possible for ordinary people to hear or see. These were due to his sensitive mind, piercing eyes, sensitive ears and specific insight.

¹ Nahj al-Balighah, Sermon 192.

SECTION THREE FROM PROPHETHOOD TO MIGRATION

- Chapter One:
Prophethood and Promulgation of the Religion
- Chapter Two:
The Public Propagation and the Start of Oppositions
- Chapter Three:
The Consequences and Reactions of Opposition to the Qur'ān

مجلس شورای اسلامی
Islamic Consultative Assembly

CHAPTER ONE

Prophethood and promulgation of the Religion

On the Threshold of Prophethood

The Holy Prophet's ancestors were all monotheists and his household was pure. Beside the sincerity and purity of his ancestors and household, he enjoyed pure and high education and always stayed away from the unseemliness and abomination of idolatry practiced by the Meccan people.¹ Referring to the period of the Holy Prophet's training and education, Imam `Alç (a.s) states:

From the time of Mu'ammad's nursing days, God provided him with His most elegant angels to guide him towards the most appropriate virtues.²

Imam al-Biqir (s) has said,

From the time the Holy Prophet stopped suckling, God appointed him an elegant angel to teach and train him good manners and appropriate behavior. It was the same angel who, prior to his prophethood, called him saying "Blessings be to you, Prophet Mu'ammad, the Messenger of Allah." However, the Holy Prophet thought that the voice was coming from the stones and the ground; and the more he paid attention the less he could observe anything.¹

Approaching his prophethood, Mu'ammad (¥) had reached the highest point in rational thinking; he could not tolerate corrupted surroundings anymore and preferred seclusion.²

From the time he was thirty-seven years old, he was dominated by some specific spiritual conditions. He felt there was a window open to him from the unknown world. Whatever he had heard from Baçrj, Nusçr and others was taking place, because he was observing a new light and exposed to some secrets: he repeatedly received some messages from Gabriel, but he could not identify the sender.³ For a time during his sleep, he was addressed as the Prophet. Once, in the desert surrounding Mecca, he heard someone calling him Messenger of Allah. He asked, "Who are you?" The answer was, "I am Gabriel; God has sent me to tell you that you are His Messenger." When he told his wife of the content of the message, she became delighted, saying, "I hope it is true."⁴

¹ Ibn Abç'l-°adçd, Shar' Nahj al-Balighah 13:207.

² Ibn Kathçr, op cit, 1:389.

³ °alabç, op cit, 1:380-381; Ibn Hushjm, al-Sçrah al-Nabawiyyah 1:250; ±abarç, Tjrekh al-Umam wa'l-Mulçk 2:203-204; Ibn Shahrjsh£b, Manjib 1:43; al-Majlisç, Bi'jr al-Anwjr 18:84,193; Tjrekh al-Ya`q£bç 2:17.

⁴ Ibn Shahrjsh£b, op cit, 1:44; al-Majlisç, op cit, 18:194; ±abarsç, £ljm al-Warj, pp. 36.

Concerning these records and documents, Shaykh al-Kulaynç states the Mu'ammad was a prophet but he had not yet been Messenger of God. Al-Uç£l min al-Kjfc 1:176.

¹ Al-°alabç, al-Sçrah al-°alabiyyah 1:199-204; Ibn al-Athçr, al-Sçrah al-Nabawiyyah 1:250.

² Nahj al-Balighah, Sermon No 192.

During this time, Muḥammad (ﷺ) used to resort to ʿarj' Mount to pray God¹ in seclusion.² It was a common practice among the Qurayshi monotheists to stay at ʿarj' and worship God.³ The first person to carry out such a practice was ʿAbd al-Muṣṣalib, the Holy Prophet's grandfather, who used to go to ʿarj' during the months of Ramaḍān. He used to feed the needy in this month.⁴

The Start of Prophethood

When Muḥammad (ﷺ) was at the age of forty, he still attended the ʿarj' Mount to pray to God where he received the first verses of the Holy Qur'ān as the first revelations:⁵

¹ Mount ʿarj' is situated northeast of Mecca. Because it was the place where the Divine Revelation came to the Holy Prophet for the first time, it was called jabal al-nūr (Mountain of Light). Until several years ago, this mountain was far away from the city of Mecca. However, the city skirts have now reached the foot of this mountain due to modern construction. Because of its situation inside a series of interrelated mountains, Mount ʿarj' is the most handsome and most distinguished. The ʿarj' Cave, which is high in the mountain, is not a cave in reality; rather, it is a huge rock over two other huge rocks, creating a space of one and a half meters high. The entrance is wide enough for people to enter. However, the inner half of it is narrower. Sunlight can penetrate only half of the cave.

² Nahj al-Balighah, Sermon 193; Ibn Hushjm, op cit, 1:25.

³ Ibn Hushjm, op cit, 1:251; ṭabarḥ, op cit, 2:206; Ibn al-Athḥr, op cit, 1:390; al-Bulḍharḥ, Ansīb al-Ashrif 1:105.

⁴ ʿalabḥ, op cit, pp. 382.

⁵ Ibn Hushjm, op cit, pp. 249; ṭabarḥ, op cit, pp. 209; al-Bulḍharḥ, op cit, pp. 114-115; Ibn Sa'd, al-ṭabaqāt al-Kubrī 1:190; Mas'ūdḥ, al-Tanbēh wa'l-Ishrif, pp. 198; ʿalabḥ, op cit, pp. 363; al-Majlisḥ, op cit, pp. 204.

In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful. Read in name of your Lord who created. He created man from a clot. Read and your Lord is most honorable, who taught to write with the pen, taught man what he knew not. (96:1-5)¹

In two places of the Holy Qur'ān, God has referred to the meeting of Muḥammad (ﷺ) with Gabriel.

I swear by the star when it goes down; Your companion (i.e. Muḥammad) does not err, nor does he go astray; nor does he speak out of desire. It is naught but revelation that is revealed; the Lord of Mighty Powers has taught him, the Lord of strength; so he attained completion, and he (i.e. the angel) is in the highest part of the horizon. Then he drew near (to Muḥammad) then he bowed so he was the measure of two bows or closer still. And He revealed to His servant what he revealed. The heart (of Muḥammad) was not untrue, making him see what he saw. (53:1-12)²

I swear by the stars, that run their course and hide themselves, and the night when it departs, And the morning when it brightens, Most surely it is the Word of an honored messenger, The possessor of strength, having an honorable place with the Lord of the Dominion, One to abide, and faithful in trust. And

¹ ṭabarḥ, Majma' al-Bayān 10:514; Mas'ūdḥ, Murḥj al-Dhahab 2:276.

² Muslim scholars ascribe these verses to the prophethood of Muḥammad. There are some pieces of evidence which confirm this issue. See al-Majlisḥ, Bi'ir al-Anwār 18:246; Muḥammad Hīdḥ Ma'rifat, al-Tamhīd fī 'Ulēm al-Qur'ān 1:35; al-Qasṣalīni, al-Mawḥib al-Ludaniyyah 3:88-89. According to other exegeses, these verses are related to the Night Ascension (Mi'rāj).

Your companion (Muḥammad) has not gone mad. And of a truth, he saw himself on the clear horizon. Nor of the unseen has he tenacious concealed. Nor is it the word of the cursed Shaitan, Wither then will you go? (81:15-25)

An Untrue Account of the Start of the Revelation

In some historical books, there is an erroneous and mystical account of the prophethood of Muḥammad (ﷺ). This account is widespread; it has found its way into some Persian books as well; therefore, it is better for us to evaluate it critically.

ʿaʿishah reports: When revelation occurred to Muḥammad (ﷺ), its content was right. Any dream that he had previously had come true. Then, he became fond of seclusion; he took refuge in ʿarīʾ cave. He used to stay there praying God, then he would return to his family and receive some food from Khadċjah to return to the cave. When the angel came to him, he was staying at the cave. The angel said, “Read.” The Prophet answered, “I do not know how to read.” The angel took and squeezed him so much that he lost his temper! Then, the angel let go of him, saying, “Read.” The Prophet, once more, answered, “I do not know how to read.” The angel again squeezed and ordered him to read. Once again, the Prophet replied that he could not read. On the third time, the pressure was so great on the Prophet’s body that he could tolerate no more. Then, the angel said, “Read in the name of your Lord Who created.” The Prophet returned home trembling all over. Going directly to Khadċjah, he asked her to cover him. As she did, his fear and anxiety went away. The Prophet then told Khadċjah about what had happened and about his anxiety. At that time, she tried to ease him, saying, “I swear to God that He would never humiliate you since you have been kind to everybody; you have been helping the needy and hosting the guests.” Then, Khadċjah accompanied him to her cousin, Waraqah ibn Nawfal. He was a blind elderly man who had converted to Christianity and translated the Gospel into Hebrew. Khadċjah said, “It is prophethood, cousin! Listen to what he will tell you.” Waraqah asked Muḥammad (ﷺ), “What do you see, my nephew?” The Prophet told him what had happened. Waraqah then said, “This is the same angel who had revealed to Moses. I wish I were young now. I wish I would be alive when your people would expel you.”¹

Criticism

As we have already said, this narration in this form is not acceptable. The following reasons show that it lacks the required authenticity:

- (1) The narrator is ʿaʿishah who was born in the fourth (or fifth) year after prophethood.² Therefore, she was not mature enough at that time to have reported this account and since she does not mention the name of the original narrator, her reporting lacks the required authenticity.
- (2) According to this narration, the angel of revelation forced Muḥammad (ﷺ) to read while he was illiterate! If we assume that Muḥammad (ﷺ) had to read God's verses, a written plate, it is neither natural nor logical, since God and the angel knew that he was illiterate and he did not have the skill of reading. If it is meant that the Prophet had to repeat the verses after the angel, this should not have been very difficult for Muḥammad (ﷺ) who was mentally mature and advanced at that age.

¹ ʿaʿishah, al-Bukhārī 1:59-60; ʿaʿishah, Muslim 2:197-204.

² Al-ʿAsqalīnī, al-Iḥḥāḥ fī Tamayyuz al-ʿaʿibah 4:359.

(3) What is meant by the angel's persistence in putting pressure on the Prophet? This is absurd when we realize that learning is a mental act; therefore, bodily pressure would not have any effect on it. If we assume that the Prophet could have suddenly become capable of reading through God's Power, God's determination would have sufficed and these arrangements would have looked absurd. Even if we assumed that the source of this bodily pressure had been due to Muḥammad's relationship to the unknown world and the source of creation (This is because he, with all his grandeur, was earthly and had an earthly and mundane origin), this assumption would be hard to justify. This is because, according to the Holy Qur'ān, the revelation of God's word to the Prophets happens in the following ways:

pa) Direct connection and the receipt of the Divine Revelation without any intermediary,

b) Through hearing the voice without observing the owner of the voice, and

c) Through Gabriel or the Angel of Revelation.¹

The Holy Prophet suffered a lot of pressures only when he was receiving the revelations; in accordance with some narrations, he suffered such tremendous amount of pressures that he would lose the color of his face and perspire a great deal so much so that the drops of sweat would fall from his complexion.² However, if he received the revelations indirectly through the angel, he would not undergo any drastic bodily changes. This state is reported by Imam al-ḥidīq (s) who said,

¹ Biḥār al-Anwār 18:246, 254, 257.

² Ibn Sa'd, op cit, 1:197; Ibn Shahrīshab, Manḥiqib, op cit, 1:43; al-

Whenever the revelation came through Gabriel; he said so and so; however, if he received the revelation directly, he would show the pressures he was under and sometimes he would become unconscious.¹

Meeting with Gabriel did not produce any special emotional reaction in the Holy Prophet and Gabriel would never enter his presence without permission. He would sit in front of him quite politely.²

Historians unanimously contend that since the first verses of the Holy Qur'ān were revealed in the 'arī' cave by Gabriel, the Holy Prophet did not suffer any unusual pressure. Of course, this does not negate the worry which the Holy Prophet had vis-à-vis the idolaters and their animosities.

(4) Taking into consideration the fact that the Holy Prophet received the revelations continuously, there is no need to assume that he would be taken by surprise or have been perplexed. Besides, in most records, Gabriel attended the Holy Prophet's presence for the first time on Saturday night, Sunday night and Monday night to ascend revelations to him.³

So, Gabriel's visit in 'arī' was not the first so that he

Majlis, op cit, 18:271.

¹ al-Majlis, op cit, pp 268, 271; ḥidīq, al-Tawḥīd, pp. 115.

² ḥidīq, Kamāl al-Dīn 1:85; ḥidīq, Ilal al-Sharḥ 7:7.

³ ḥidīq, op cit, 2:207; al-Bulḥār, op cit, 1:105; Mas'ūd, Murāj al-Dhahab 2:276; Tījrah al-Ya'qūb 2:17.

might have been perplexed. Generally, it is the case that a person would not receive God's revelation unless he was quite prepared for such a huge position.

(5) How could it happen for Khadġjah to have known more than the Holy Prophet and to have comforted him when she had seen him anxious?

(6) The worst part of the above fable is the assumption that the Holy Prophet had been raised to this position of prophethood without previous knowledge; and that he had not recognized Gabriel and could not have recognized him or his Message until an old Christian confirmed; and Muġammad (ﷺ) had relied on his prediction and had been assured of his prophethood and had become quiet! We do not need to elaborate on this story because it is so absurd that it would not need to be criticized.

(7) It is noteworthy that such unfounded myths have never been presented for the prophethood of the previous prophets.

(8) This myth is incompatible with what the Holy Qur'ġn states about the Holy Prophet:

The heart was not untrue making him see what he saw. (53:11)

ġabirsġ, well-known Shġ'ite scholar and interpreter of the Holy Qur'ġn, writes:

God would not reveal anything to His Prophet unless His revelations are accompanied by some vivid reasons and unless He assures to the Prophet that what is revealed unto him is from God. The Prophet would not need anything more and he does not need to be worried.¹

When Imam al-ġġdiq (s) was asked by one of his followers, "Why didn't the Holy Prophet assume that the revelation could have been nothing but Satan's temptations when he received them?" The Imam answered,

¹ Majma' al-Bayġn 10:384.

"When God appoints a servant of His as a prophet, He would give him the required assurances in such a way that he would vividly observe what is revealed unto him."¹

Although they are distinguished scholars, the interpreters of al-Bukġirġ and Muslim (in which 'ġ'ishah's account appears) have taken the narration as authentic and then tried to explain it, but they resorted to spurious reasoning which at times seems irrational.²

Similar narrations have been reported by narrators such as 'ġdullġh ibn Shaddġd, 'ġbayd ibn 'ġmayr, 'ġdullġh ibn 'ġbbġs and 'ġrwah ibn al-Zubayr. However, since their accounts are baseless and invented, we will not deal with them.¹ These spurious and unfounded accounts have penetrated into some Christian sources and misused against the Holy Prophet.² This critique of ours would make them useless.

¹ al-Majlisġ, Biġ'r al-Anwġr 18:262; Muġammad Hġdġ Ma'rifat, al-Tamġġd fġ 'Ulġm al-Qur'ġn 1:49.

² As far as we know, the first person who realized the lack of authenticity of this narration was Sayyid 'ġbd al-'ġsayn Sharaf al-Dġn al-Mġsawġ (1390-1377 AH), one of the distinguished Shġ'ite scholars of Jabal 'ġmil, who discussed and criticized it in his epistle to the Arab Scientific Congress in Damascus, and in his book al-Naġġ wa'l-Iġtihġd, pp 319-322. Then other scholars, such as 'ġlġ Dawġnġ, criticized this narration in the following sources: The Rays of revelation over Mount 'ġarġ, pp 70-108; the history of Islam from the start up to the prophet's Migration, pp 98-110; the role of the Imams In the revival of the religion 4:6-44; al-'ġ'ġ' min Sġrat al-Nabġ al-A'ġam 1:216-232, Treason in the historical accounts 2:3-23; al-Tamġġd 1:52-56; Some Analytical Lessons From The History Of Islam 2:196-236.

Secret Invitation to the New Religion

For three years, the Holy Prophet invited people to the new religion secretly, because the circumstances at Mecca were not yet ready for an open invitation. During these three years, he secretly met people whom he thought mentally ready to accept the new religion.³ He invited them to accept the uniqueness of Allah and his prophethood. Meanwhile, Quraysh became aware of his ¹ Murtaḥi ḥamīl, The role of the Imams In the revival of the religion 4:12.

² Islamic Encyclopedia 3:398. Montgomery Watt, the head of the Arabic department of Edinburgh University, is one of those who insinuates against Islam. He writes, "It is amazing for a man who used to live in a far-away city, like Mecca in the seventh century AD, to have been appointed as a prophet by God. Therefore, we are not amazed when we hear that Muḥammad was frightened and worried when he became aware of this issue. Regarding this, there are some hints and documents in the Qur'ān and in other narrations related to his life. It is not clear at what time he realized that God had not forgotten him. His other fear was the fear of mental breakdown; this is because in those days Arabs assumed that persons like him were under the domination of jinn or spirits. Some Meccan Arabs interpreted Muḥammad's revelations in this way and he himself at times doubted whether people were right or wrong in their assumptions." See Muḥammad, the prophet and the politician, pp 26-27.

³ Ibn Hushjm, op cit, 1:280; ḥabar, op cit, 2:216; Mas'ūd, Murḥj al-Dhahab 2:275-276; al-Bulḍhar, op cit, 1:116; Tjrkḥ al-Ya`qfb 2:19; ḥalab, op cit, 1:456; ḥs, al-Ghaybah, pp. 202.

claims; whenever they saw him on the roads and streets, they used to remark, "The young man of Banī-`Abd al-Muḥḥalib talks about the heavens."¹ However, they were not aware of the content of his invitations since he did not proclaim his ideology. Therefore, they would not react harshly.

During this time, some people became Muslims. Then, one of these newly converted, named Arqam, offered his house which was at the foot of ḥafj Mount to be used by the Prophet.

Up to the time when he initiated his open invitation, the Holy Prophet and Muslims would gather at this house, which had become a center for the religious propaganda, and prayed therein.²

The First Muslim Woman and Man

In accordance with the unanimous view of Muslim historians, Khadḥjah was the first woman to accept Islam. Among men, `Alḥ³ was the first man to accept Islam.⁴

¹ Tjrkḥ al-Ya`qfb 2:19; Ibn Sa'd, al-ḥabarj al-Kubrj 1:199; al-Bulḍhar, op cit, 1:115.

² ḥalab, op cit, 1:456-457.

³ Ibn Hushjm mentions the names of the first eight Muslims as follows: `Alḥ, Zayd ibn ḥrith, Abī-Bakr, `Uthmān ibn `Affān, al-Zubayr ibn al-`Awwām, `Abd al-Raḥmān ibn `Awf, Sa'd ibn Abī-Waqqiḥ, and ḥalāh ibn `Ubaydullāh. See al-Sḥrah al-Nabawiyyah 1:262-364.

⁴ Imam `Alḥ was monotheist even at his early age; he never served idols. Thus, his becoming a Muslim does not imply that he stopped worshipping idols like the other companions of the Holy Prophet. Imam `Alḥ accepted Islam that is based on the Divine principle of monotheism. Concerning this, Daḥjān wrote, "Alḥ never practiced

This is because it was natural for the Prophet to inform Khadċjah, his wife, and `Alċ, who was a member of his household and was educated and nourished by him, of his ideology as soon as he returned home from °arċ'. Those two who were familiar with Mu'ammad's sincerity, confirmed him immediately. It would not be difficult to prove this issue even in the absence of valid historical documents. However, there are ample documents, some of which we will address here:

The Reasons Behind `Alċ's Taking the Lead

(1) The Holy Prophet explicitly referred to `Alċ's pioneering in accepting Islam. At the presence of a group of Muslims, he declared:

The first person among you who will meet me at the side of the heavenly fountain [Kawthar], on the Resurrection day, will be `Alċ, who is the first among you who accepted Islam.¹

idolatry. He followed the Holy Prophet closely. It is narrated that three persons were never involved in idolatry; the Faithful of °I-Yċsċn, `Alċ ibn Abċ-±ċlib, and °siyah, Pharaoh's wife." See al-Sċrah al-Nabawiyyah 1:92. Concerning Imam `Alċ, Ibn Sa'd narrates that he never worshipped any idol because he was too young! See Al-±abaqċt al-Kubrċ 3:21. Ibn °ajar (974 AH), quoting Ibn Sa'd's previous statement, states, "For this reason, `Alċ is mentioned with the statement of 'karrama allċhu wajhahċ (May Allah honor his face)". See al-°awċiq al-Mu'riqah, pp. 120.

Regarding `Alċ's age when he accepted Islam, see Shar' Nahċ al-Balċghah, 13:234-235.

¹ Ibn `Abd al-Barr, al-Isċċb 3:28; Ibn Abċ'l-°adċd, op cit, 13:229; al-°ċkim al-Naysċbċrċ, al-Mustadrak `Alċ'l-°a'ċ/ayn 2:81, °alabċ, op cit, 1:432. In some narrations, we read, "The first to join the Divine Pond (on the Resurrection Day) will be the first to accept Islam; namely,

(2) Great and well-known narrators report that Mu'ammad (¶) became a prophet on Monday and `Alċ prayed with him on Tuesday.¹

(3) Imam `Alċ (s), concerning this issue, remarks:

On that day, Islam had not yet entered the house of the Holy Prophet and Khadċjah: I was the third one after them. I could vividly see the light of prophethood and smell its fragrance.²

(4) Elsewhere, Imam `Alċ (s) refers to his pioneering in Islam:

O God, I am the only person who answered the Prophet's call and turned to You. Except for the Prophet, nobody else prayed You before me.³

(5) Imam `Alċ (s) says elsewhere:

I am God's servant and the brother of the trustworthy Prophet. I prayed with him seven years prior to the `Alċ ibn Abċ-±ċlib." See °alabċ, op cit, pp. 432.

¹ Ibn `Abd al-Barr, op cit, pp. 32; Ibn al-Athċr, al-Kċmil fċ'l-Tċrċkh 2:57. Al-°ċkim al-Naysċbċrċ (al-Mustadrak `Alċ'l-°a'ċ/ayn 3:112) has recorded this narration in two ways, "Allah's Messenger received prophethood..." and "Allah's Messenger received the Divine Revelation on Monday." In some narrations, we will read, "The Prophet received prophethood on Monday, and `Alċ accepted Islam on Tuesday." See, Ibn Abċ'l-°adċd, op cit, pp. 229; al-Juwaynċ, Farċ'id al-Simşayn. Emphasizing the same issue, Imam `Alċ used to remark, "Allah's Messenger received the Divine Message on Monday, and I accepted Islam on Tuesday." See al-Suyċşċ, Tċrċkh al-Khulafċ', pp. 166; Mu'ammad al-°abbċn, Isċ'if al-Rċghibċn, pp. 148; Ibn °ajar, al-°awċiq al-Mu'riqah.

² Nahċ al-Balċghah, Sermon 192.

³ Ibid, Sermon 131.

others. Nobody may deny it except for a wicked liar.¹

(6) `Ufayf ibn Qays al-Kindi says:

During the Ignorance Era, I used to be a trader of perfumes. On one of my journeys, I entered Mecca and visited `Abbas, one of the Meccan merchants and the Prophet's uncle, on an extremely hot day. A young man whose face was as bright as the moon came. He looked up at the sky, stood in the direction of the Kaaba and started praying. After a short time, another good-looking young man arrived, stood next to him and started praying. Then a veiled woman arrived, stood behind them and started praying. I was astonished to see three persons praying at the center of the idolaters. I turned my face toward `Abbas and exclaimed, "What restful scenery!" He repeated my sentence and added, "Do you recognize these three?" I replied, No, I do not." He said, "The first person was my nephew, Mu'ammad ibn `Abdullah; the second was my other nephew, `Ala ibn Abi-`lib; the third was Mu'ammad's wife. Mu'ammad claims that his religion has come from Allah. Now, these are the only believers in this religion on the entire earth."²

This issue vividly shows that at the beginning of the

¹ ±abar, op cit, 2:212; Ibn al-Athar, al-Kamil f' l-Tarikh.

The same issue is brought up in al-Mustadrak `Ala' l-'a'ayn 3:112; Ibn Abi'l-°adad, Shar' Nahj al-Balighah 13:200, 228; Ibn Mardawayh, Manqib `Ala ibn Abi-`lib, pp 47-48.

² ±abar, op cit, 2:212; Ibn Abi'l-°adad, op cit, 13:226. Ibn Abi'l-°adad has reported the same from `Abdullah ibn Mas'ud. Ibn `Abd al-Barr, al-Is'ab 3:165; Ibn Isiq, al-Siyar wa'l-Maghaz, pp. 137-138; al-Karjaki, Kanz al-Faw'id 1:262. For further information concerning Ali's pioneering in the acceptance of Islam, see al-Ghadir 2:214, 3:220-224.

spread of Islam, it was Imam `Ala who joined the Prophet after Khadjah. Pioneering in the acceptance of Islam is a value which the Holy Qur'an has highly stressed:

And the foremost are the foremost; these are they who are drawn near to Allah. (56:10-11)

The Holy Qur'an also considers of great value the conversion to Islam of those who, prior to the conquest of Mecca, sacrificed their lives and wealth for God's sake and accepted the new religion:

...not alike; among you are those who spent before the victory and fought. They are more exalted in rank than those who spent and fought afterwards; and Allah has promised good to all; and Allah is aware of what you do. (57:10)

The significance of conversions to Islam prior to the conquest of Mecca (which occurred at the eighth year AH) lies in the fact that they accepted Islam at a time when it was not yet powerful and when Mecca was still the stronghold for the idolaters and Muslims' lives and wealth were at risk from permanent danger. Of course, Muslims achieved some security after their migration to Medina and the acceptance of Islam by the two tribes of Aws and Khazraj and the other neighboring tribes; in later military conflicts, Muslims were triumphant. However, the environment was still dangerous. For these reasons, the acceptance of Islam under those perilous and turbulent times was quite significant. Such early acceptance of Islam was a great honor for the Prophet's close followers. Having this in mind, we will realize how important Imam `Ala's early acceptance could have been.

The Pioneer Groups in Acceptance of Islam

Among the social groups of those days, two groups pioneered in accepting Islam:

A) The youth

A cursory look at the list of the early Muslims indicates that most of them were youth. Elderly people were conservative; idolatry was deeply rooted in them. Due to their bright minds, the youth were more ready to accept the new faith—a fact applying to religious revelations.

On the basis of a historical report, during the early days of the secret invitation to Islam, there were groups of youth and destitute people who joined Islam.¹ When the Holy Prophet started his public invitation and when his followers increased in number, people of Quraysh complained to Abū-Jahl about Muḥammad, saying, “We have come to you several times to ask you to ask your nephew to stop cursing our ancestors and idols and seducing our children, men, women, and servants into the new faith...”²

On the Holy Prophet's journey to ḥijrah for the propagation of Islam, the noblemen refused to accept Islam for fear that their youth might follow Muḥammad.³ After the migration to Abyssinia, representatives of Quraysh went to the royal court of the Abyssinian king, al-Najshah, to force these Muslims to return home. In that court, there were some complaints regarding the spread of Islam among the youth of Mecca.⁴

¹ Ibn Saʿd, Al-ṭabaqāt al-kubrī 1:199.

² al-Bulḍharī, Ansīb al-Ashraf 1:299; Biʾr al-Anwār 18:185.

³ Ibn Saʿd, op cit, pp. 212.

⁴ Ibn Hushaym, op cit, 1:358; ṭabarī, ʿlīm al-Warī, pp. 44; Sibṣ ibn

A man from the Hudhayl tribe entered Mecca and the Holy Prophet invited him to Islam. Abū-Jahl warned him, saying, “Never listen to Muḥammad; this man considers us stupid and says that our dead parents would go to hell. Besides, he utters nonsense.” The man asked, “How come you don’t expel him from your city?” Abū-Jahl replied, “If he is expelled, our youth will go after him and listen to his flowery speech and then they will attack us.”¹

ʿUtbah, a dignitary of Quraysh, complained to Asad ibn Zurārah, a nobleman from the Khazraj tribe in Yathrib, about the inclinations of the youth towards the Holy Prophet.²

An investigation of the list of the early Muslims shows that most of them were under thirty years of age. For instance, Saʿd ibn Abū-Waqqiṣ was either seventeen³ or nineteen⁴ years old; al-Zubayr ibn al-ʿAwwām was fifteen⁵ or sixteen;⁶ ʿAbd al-Rahmān ibn ʿAwf was thirty; he was born ten years after the Elephant Year.⁷ Muḥab ibn ʿUmayr was nearly twenty-five years old; at the time of his martyrdom at the Battle of Uḥud that took place at the third year after Hegira, he was nearly forty years old.⁸

al-Jawzī, Tadhkirat al-Khawṣ, pp. 186.

¹ al-Bulḍharī, op cit, pp. 128.

² ṭabarī, op cit, pp. 56.

³ Ibn Saʿd, op cit, 3:139.

⁴ ṭabarī, al-Sīrah al-ʿalabiyyah 1:446.

⁵ ṭabarī, op cit, 1:434.

⁶ Ibn Saʿd, op cit, 3:102.

⁷ op cit, pp. 124.

⁸ Ibn Saʿd, op cit, 3:222.

Arqam, who submitted his house to the Prophet, was between twenty and thirty years old; when he died in 55 AH, he was eighty years old.¹

B) The Deprived and the Oppressed

By these two expressions, so prevalent in the Islamic sources, is meant the freed slaves who, despite superficial freedom, had some relationships with their previous owners. They were called mawli meaning made free. Another group of these oppressed ones was the strangers who had come to Mecca from other places to live. Since they lacked tribal associations, they had to be under the protection of a certain tribe in order for them to be secured. They did not enjoy the same rights that members of Quraysh had. They were socially disadvantaged.

This group, who had no tribe in Mecca to be affiliated with and who lacked power, represented the pioneers in the acceptance of Islam.² Their conversion to Islam was not tolerated by the infidels, according to a narration; whenever the Holy Prophet (s) sat in the Holy Precinct with his oppressed followers—such as `Ammār ibn Yāsir, Khabbāb ibn al-Aratt, `uhayb ibn Sinjān, Bilāl, Abū-Fakayhah and Amr ibn Fuḥayrah—they were ridiculed by people of Quraysh who sarcastically remarked, “Look at his companions! God has chosen from among us these bare-footed individuals who have adopted Islam!”³

¹ Ibn Sa’d, op cit, 3:244. `Abd al-Muta`īl al-`a`dī al-Miṣrī has written a book entitled Youth of Quraysh in the Beginning of Islam (pp. 33-34) in which he has introduced forty young men from Quraysh who had pioneered in accepting Islam. In his list, Imam `Alī is the first.

² al-Bulḍharī, op cit, 1:156, pp. 181, see Al-ṭabaqāt al-Kubrī 3:248.

³ Op cit.

The chiefs of Quraysh, once, passed by a gathering which the Holy Prophet had held with `uhayb, Khabbāb, Bilāl, `Ammār and some others. Observing this, they addressed the Holy Prophet, saying, “Muḥammad! Have you selected only this few from among your nation and you are happy with them? Should we follow this group? Has God only guided this group? If you dismiss this group, we might then be your followers.” At this time, the following Qur’ānic verses were revealed:

And do not drive away those who call upon their Lord in the morning and the evening, they desire only His favor; neither are you answerable for any reckoning of theirs, nor are they answerable for any reckoning of yours, so that you should drive them away and thus be of the unjust.

And thus, so We try some of them by others so that they say: Are these they upon whom Allah has conferred benefit from among us? Does not Allah best know the grateful? (6:52-53)

During the first years of his mission, people of Quraysh dispatched some representatives to ask about the Holy Prophet. They went to the Jews: “We have come here to seek your advice regarding the event that is taking place in our town. A young orphan thinks that he has been sent by Raḥmān (the All-beneficent God); and we do not know any person by this name except for one living in Yamāmah.” The Jew asked for the characteristics of the Holy Prophet: “Who are his followers?” They replied, “The lowliest persons!” The great Jewish scholar replied smilingly, “This is the same Prophet whose signs are predicted in our Holy Book. His nation will be his worst enemies.”¹

Of course, the rapid inclinations of the oppressed towards Islam did not mean securing the interests or benefits of special social classes; rather, they implied the negation of the worldly domination of man over man; they implied the adoption of Allah's government and domination—an immediate threat to the power of the aggressors and oppressors that excited their severe opposition. This matter had happened with the previous prophets as well:

But the chiefs of those who disbelieved from among his people said: We consider you but a mortal like ourselves, and we do not see who have followed you but those who are the meanest of us at first thought and we do not see in you any excellence over us; nay, we deem you liars. (11:27)

The chief of those who behaved proudly among his people said to those considered weak to those who believed from among them: Do you know that ʾilī is sent by his Lord? They said: Surely, we are believers in what he has been sent with. (7:75-76)

Inviting His Relatives to the New Religion

After three years of his mission, the Holy Prophet received an order from Allah to invite his relatives to his faith:

And warn your nearest relations, and be kind to him who follows you of the believers. But if they disobey you, then say: Surely, I am clear of what you do. (26:214-216)

Having received this revelation, the Holy Prophet ordered Imam ʿAlī to prepare some food and invite the sons of ʿAbd al-Muṣṣalib to hear God's revelation. Imam ʿAlī (s) carried out the order. Nearly forty people showed up. Among them were Abī-ṭalib, ʿamzah and Abī-Lahab. The food seemed insufficiently little; however, every body was able to eat their fill. Abī-Lahab declared, “This man has hypnotized you.” This statement caused the Holy Prophet to abandon his propagation of the faith on that day and the meeting came to an end with no result. Next day, ʿAlī (s) once again prepared some food and invited the same group. This time, the Holy Prophet, after dinner remarked,

I do not know of anybody among Arabs who has brought to his people anything better than what I am bringing to you. I am bringing to you the good of this world and the Other World. God has ordered me to guide you all to Him. Now, who is ready among you to help me and he will be my brother and successor?”¹

¹ Muslim scholars name this issue as bid' al-daʿwah (The Beginning of the Promulgation), yawm al-djir (The Day of the House), and yawm al-indhijr (The Day of Warning). It is reported in the following reference books with some difference: Tjrekh al-ṭabar 2:217; Ibn Athar, al-Kjmil fē'l-Tjrekh 2:63; Ibn Abī-ʿadad, Shar' Nahj al-Balighah 13:211; al-Bayhaqī, Dal'il al-Nubuwwah 1:278; ṭabar, Majma' al-Bayj 7:206; Shaykh Mufīd, al-Irshid, pp. 29; ṭabar, al-ṭarj'if 1:20; ʿalab, al-Serah al-ʿalabiyyah 1:461; al-Majlis, Bi'jr al-Anwjr 18:78, 181, 191, 214; ʿAlīmah Amīn, al-Ghadr 2:278-279; Murtaʿj ʿAskar, the role of the Imams in the revival of the Religion 2:86, 6:17-18; Musnad Aʿmad 1:159. It is worthy noting that among historians, ṭabar has distorted the Holy Prophet's statement drastically in his interpretation: he has changed representative and successor into so and so. Ibn Kathir, too, has distorted the truth in his three books in his three books (Tafsir 3:351, al-Bid'iyah wa'l-Nihjyah 3:40, al-Serah al-Nabawiyyah 1:459). Considering the attitude of these two, it is not difficult to recognize their motive for this dramatic

¹ Ibn Saʿd, op cit, 1:164; ʿalab, op cit, 1:499.

Nobody answered. `Alç (s), who was the youngest among them, said, “O Messenger of God; I will help you.” Then, the Holy Prophet replied, p This event leads us to the basic fact that the issues of prophethood and Imamate are inseparable; during the first years of his prophethood and on the first day of his mission, the Holy Prophet brought up the topic of Imamate and the future leadership of Muslims.

“This is my brother, my representative and my successor. Listen to obey him.”

On the other hand, it should not be assumed that the Holy Prophet, up to his death and during the event of Ghadçr Khumm, brought up `Alç's Imamate. Later on, he brought up the same issue on other occasions, such as in the famous 'adçth al-manzilah (Narration of Position).¹ However, the event of Ghadçr Khumm was the most significant for the announcement of `Alç's successorship due to the fact that there were so many witnesses present.

With regards to the sequence of the sçrahs (chapters of the Holy Qur'ın), it could be understood that the invitation of the relatives could have happened prior to the public invitation to the new faith.²

distortion.

¹ 'adçth al-Manzilah reads: “O `Alç, your position to me is the same as Prophet Aaron's position to Prophet Moses except that there shall be no prophet after me.”

² Sçrah al-Shu'arç' was revealed to the Holy Prophet after Sçrah al-Wıçqı'ah. The following are the Sçrahs that were revealed after that: al-Naml, al-Qaçaç, al-İsrç', Yçnus, Hçd, Yçsuf and then al-ıçjr in which the order for the public invitation was given. See Mu'ammad Hıdç Ma`rifat, al-Tamhçd fç 'Ulçm al-Qur'ın 1:105.

CHAPTER TWO

The Public Propagation and the Start of Oppositions

The Start of the Public Invitation

Having made the public invitation for some time, the Holy Prophet received an order from God to make his propagation public and not to be afraid of the infidels:

Therefore, declare openly what you are bidden and turn aside from the polytheists. Surely, We will suffice you against the scoffers. (15:94-95)

Having received this revelation, the Holy Prophet rose up in the Abṣa¹ and declared:

I am God's apostle. I invite you to my new faith to worship the One and Only God. Stop worshipping idols which are neither useful nor can they create, nor provide you with sustenance, nor give you life, nor cause you to die.²

¹ Abṣu' is a valley near Minj. See Yiq'at al-°amawḩ, Mu`jam al-Buldjn. 1:74. This event probably took place at the time of °ajj when pilgrims had gathered at Minj.

² Tjrekh al-Ya`q'ebḩ 1:19. There are other reports on the Holy Prophet's first open declaration of his faith. Most probably, he invited the idolaters within short time intervals through the same statements. See Tjrekh al-Ya`q'ebḩ, pp. 19; ±abarḩ, op cit, 2:21; al-Bulḩdharḩ, Ansib al-Ashrif 1:121; al-Bayhaḩḩ, op cit, 1:279; ±abarsḩ, I'lm al-Warj, pp. 39; al-Majlisḩ, Bi'jr al-Anwjr 18:185; °alabḩ, op cit, 1:461.

From then on, the Prophet's invitation entered a new stage as he was engaged in the propagation of his faith in social gatherings, at the °ajj ceremonies, at Minj, and among the tribes living in the outskirts of Mecca.

Struggle with Quraysh

People of Quraysh did not show any severe reactions during the early stages of the propagation for Islam. However, as soon as the Holy Prophet started explicitly negating their idols, calling them senseless and useless entities, they became exasperated; they started animosity against him.¹ With regards to the tribal system which existed in Mecca, attacking Mu'ammad (¥) would entail revenge-taking of Banḩ-Hjshim. Therefore, the chiefs of Quraysh, after much deliberation, came to the conclusion that they would better make use of his uncle, Abḩ-±jlib, and talk to him in such a way so that he could discourage his nephew from the way he was following. To this end, they arranged for several meetings with Abḩ-±jlib during which they reminded him of his dignity and high social status. They asked him to discourage his nephew from cursing their idols, humiliating their customs and belittling their ancestors. They used threats at times and tried to bribe him by offering wealth and social ranks. Receiving no positive feedback from him, they offered to exchange Mu'ammad with `Imjrah ibn al-Walḩd ibn al-Mughḩrah, the young, powerful, and handsome poet. Abḩ-±jlib did not accept either. Once, when Abḩ-±jlib and his nephew were threatened with death, the Holy

¹ ±abarḩ, op cit, 2:218; Ibn Hushjm, al-Sḩrah al-Nabawiyyah 1:282; Ibn Sa'd, al-±abaqjt al-Kubrj 1:199; Ibn al-Athḩr, al-Kjmil fḩ'l-Tjrekh 2:63.

Prophet had the following reaction:

"If they put the sun in my right hand and the moon in the left, I would not stop my way. I have two options, either God will help me or I will be destroyed."¹

Abġ-±ilib's Announcement of Assistance

Upon these threats, Abġ-±ilib announced his support to Mu'ammad (¥) and mobilized the members of Banġ-Hġshim, both Muslims and non-Muslims, to protect Mu'ammad (¥). He warned the chiefs of Quraysh against a bloody revenge by Banġ-Hġshim in case anything would happen to his nephew.² Since tribal wars were hazardous and their consequences unpredictable; and due to the fact that the chiefs of Quraysh lacked the capacity for such a war, they could not carry out their threats; rather, they became disillusioned. Out of Banġ-Hġshim, only Abġ-Lahab joined the enemy front.

Motives of Quraysh's Oppositions

A question is raised here as to why the Quraysh did not show animosity toward Mu'ammad (¥) in the first years of his propagations during which not many verses of the Holy Qur'ġn were revealed to him yet. What kind of threats did they feel in the first verses revealed during the early days of prophethood? Did they oppose him because of their insistence on their idolatry or were there other reasons?

¹ ±abarġ, op cit, 2:218-220; Ibn Hushġm, op cit, pp. 282-287, 313, 316; al-Bayhaġġ, op cit, 1:282; Ibn Sa'd, op cit, 1:202-203; al-Bulġdharġ, op cit, 1:231-232; Ibn al-Athġr, al-Kġmil fe'l-Tġrġkh 2:63-65; °alabġ, op cit, 1:462-463; Ibn Kathġr, al-Sġrah al-Nabawiyyah. 1:479; al-Majlisġ, op cit, 18:185.

² Ibn Hushġm, op cit, pp. 287; ±abarġ, op cit, pp. 220; Ibn Shahrġshġb, al-Manġqib 1:59; Ibn al-Athġr, op cit, pp. 65; Ibn Kathġr, op cit, pp. 477, °alabġ, op cit, pp. 463.

Of course, we are talking about the motives of the chiefs of Quraysh, because the general publics were simple and naive followers of those chiefs; and to mobilize them against the new religion was not a hard job. This is because they were not strong believers of their sect and customs anyhow.

Considering Quraysh's influence and high social status in Mecca, we could easily find the reasons behind their opposition. This is because, as we have seen above, Quraysh had monopolized some social privileges related to Mecca, such as social and economic power; they would not tolerate any rival. They used to receive tribute and toll from other tribes by force and imposed their own policies over other tribes related to the pilgrims.

Thus, it was natural for them not to tolerate Mu'ammad (¥), because they found out very early in Mu'ammad's propagations that the new faith was in conflict with their ideology. They could also anticipate that one day, the Holy Prophet would become famous and this was in conflict with their pride.

However, an investigation of the content of some sġrahs and verses revealed to the Holy Prophet at Mecca, we could pinpoint some of the most significant motives for the opposition of Quraysh to the Holy Prophet during the first years of propagations:

(1) Worry over the disintegration of the social order

Concerning the tribal system dominating the social order in Mecca and due to Quraysh's special prerogatives, a form of aristocratic government was prevailing there. The chiefs of Quraysh were accustomed to this system; they did not expect any blow to be leveled against it. This was the social condition while the first followers of Muḥammad (ﷺ) were the youths, the impoverished, the deprived and the slaves. Muḥammad (ﷺ) did not belong to the nobility. From his childhood, he was an orphan; and during his youth, he was poor belonging to the second class inside Quraysh. His uncle, Abī-ṭālib, despite his ancestral prestige and dignity, was insolvent. All these were warnings to the tribal system of Quraysh that the very basis of their social order would be shaken. Having noticed that, they worried about the youth and the deprived for their inclinations towards the new faith. The envoy of Quraysh to Abyssinia to bring back the Muslim migrants introduced themselves to the king as the special envoy of the Meccan nobility.

The Holy Qur'ān reveals the Quraysh's aristocratic attitude in their objection to the idea of prophethood not being offered to one of the noblemen of either Mecca or Ṭīf:

And they say: Why has not the Qur'ān been revealed to a man of importance in the two towns? (43:31)

According to an interpretation, by men of importance is meant Walīd Ibn Mugḥerah, the head of Banī-Makhẓam in Mecca, and `Urwah ibn Mas`ūd al-Thaqafī, the well-known wealthy man of Ṭīf.¹ The reason behind the revelation of this verse is said to be the following event:

Once, Walīd said, “Why should the Qur'ān be revealed to Muḥammad and not to me while I am the head of

¹ Ṭābarsī, Majma` al-Bayān 9:46.

Quraysh?”¹ Thus, the Quraysh showed their animosity to Muḥammad (ﷺ) because his faith was a real threat to their social order.

(2) Economic Worries

Some recent researchers have considered the economic factor among the motives for Quraysh's opposition to Islam. This is because a series of Meccan verses of the Holy Qur'ān² severely reprimand the hoarders and money-mongers of those days. The great Meccan wealthy men, who had earned their huge wealth in the trades and through the supervision over the Kaaba, felt a great danger when they heard these verses. The progress of Islam would jeopardize their benefits badly. Here are some samples of such verses:

Leave Me and him whom I created alone, and give him vast riches, and sons dwelling in his presence, And I adjusted affairs for him adjustably; and yet he desires that I should add more, By no means! Surely, he offers opposition to our communications. (74:11-16)

I will cast him into hell. And what will make you realize what hell is? It leaves naught nor does spare naught. It scorches the mortal. (74:26)³

Perdition overtake both hands of Abī-Lahab, and he will perish. Neither his wealth nor what he earns will avail him. He shall soon burn in fire that flames, and his wife, the bearer of fuel. (111:1-4)¹

¹ Ibn Hushaym, al-Ṣerah al-Nabawiyyah 1:387; Ibn Shahrīsḥfī, al-Manjīb 1:50.

² The Holy Qur'ān's chapters (i.e. Ṣerahs) are divided according to their revelation into Meccan and Medinan.

³ This holy Ṣerah is the fourth in revelation. See al-Tamhīd fī `Ulūm al-Qur'ān 1:104.

Woe to every slanderer, defamer, who amasses wealth and considers it a provision against mishap; He thinks that his wealth will make him immortal. Nay! He shall most certainly be hurled into the crushing disaster, and what will make you realize what the crushing disaster is? It is the fire kindled by Allah, which rises above the hearts. Surely, it shall be closed over upon them, in extended columns. (104:1-7)

Then as for him who gives away and guards against evil, and accepts the best, We will facilitate for him the easy end. And as for him who is niggardly and considers himself from need of Allah, and rejects the best, we will facilitate for him the difficult end. And his wealth will not avail him when he perishes. (92:4:11)²

A careful observation of the content of these s̄frah reveals that they were revealed to the Holy Prophet after Quraysh's opposition. The increase in number of opponents might have been the reason for the revelation of these verses. However, the toughest opponents of the Holy Prophet were the traders and the wealthy. In accordance with a historical report, when the Messenger of God started guiding his people towards the light of the Religion, they at first did not go away from him; rather, they were about to accept his ideology. Then he started insulting their idols and the wealthy people from ʔi'if.³

¹ This S̄frah is the sixth.

² This S̄frah is the ninth.

³ These people, most probably, had invested their money in a Mecca economic center.

These people did not like his statements; they began struggling against him and invoking their followers against him. Then, the mass offended and deserted him.¹

(3) Fear of the Neighboring Power

The Holy Qur'j̄n refers to their fear of the neighboring states and powers and finds this worry baseless:

And they say: If we follow the guidance with you, we shall be carried off from our country. What! Have We not settled them in a safe, sacred territory to which fruits of every kind shall be drawn? Sustenance from Us; but most of them do not know. (28:57)

Once, °j̄rith ibn Nawfal ibn `Abd-Manj̄f said to the Holy Prophet, "We know that what you say is right; but if we believe in you, we fear that the Arabs might throw us out of our land and we are not strong enough to confront

¹ ʔabarʔ, Tj̄rʔkh al-Umam wa'l-Mulʔk 2:221.

Those who look at man from a material prospect only concentrate all their attentions to the economic motive and base all other motives to it. The analysis of Petrosfhsky, a famous Russian analyst of Islam and Iran and a professor of Oriental Studies Department at the University of Leningrad writes, "Meccan chiefs were among the traders and usurers. They opposed Mu'ammad openly. We could not say that the cause of this opposition was religious dogmatism; rather, the Prophet's propagation against their idolatry was the real motive of their opposition because their trade and political supremacy was greatly jeopardized. They assumed that his religious propagation would cause the fall of the Kaaba and the worship of their idols. This might result in fewer pilgrims to visit the Kaaba and a financial loss for them. In this way, the Kaaba might lose its political supremacy. For this reason, the Meccan chiefs interpreted Mu'ammad's religious propaganda as a direct threat to their own interests. They hated him for these reasons. See Islam in Iran, pp. 26. In view of our previous discussions, we do not have to say how baseless the statement of this professor is.

them.¹

From their statements, worry could be observed and fear of the Iranian kings and Roman emperors² could be identified; this was the Arabs' weak point towards the neighboring political powers.

This fear could be seen in the following event: The Holy Prophet had invited some of the great Arab personalities and read them some of the verses of the Holy Qur'ān which dealt with ethical training. All of them were highly impressed and each one of them started admiring them. However, their leader, Muthannī, said, "We are caught between two waters: on one side are the Arab waters and shores, and on the other side there lie Iran and Khosrow rivers. Khosrow has ordered us not to use any turmoil and not to shelter any wrongdoer. The acceptance of your faith by us is not palatable for the kings. If we do anything wrong here in our land, it might be excused. However, such an error around Iran is not pardonable by their king."³

(4) Tribal Competition and Jealousy

Tribal competitions and false pride were prevalent among the Arab tribes and communities. Since the Holy Prophet belonged to Banī-Hāshim, the chiefs of the other tribes—due to their jealousy—could not accept his faith, which was in the long run a sign of dignity for Banī-Hāshim. Abī-Jahl, who was from Banī-Makhẓam tribe and one of the most influential and wealthy people of

¹ Ṭabarī, Majma' al-Bayān 7:260; Ibn Shahrīshub, Manāqib 1:51.

² Manāqib 1:59.

³ Qaṣṣat al-'Arab 2:258; Ibn Kathīr, al-Bid'iyah wa'l-Nihāyah 3:144.

Quraysh, frankly revealed his secret, "We struggled against the children of `Abd-Manjif over the attainment of dignity. They fed the needy; so did we. They gave horses to the needy; so did we. They provided the needy with money; so did we. Then we were neck to neck. But, then, they say that they have a prophet among themselves who gets revelation from God. Now how can we ever get equal to them? By God, we shall never believe in what he says nor shall we ever confirm him."¹

Umayyah ibn Abī-Salt, a nobleman and great poet of Ṭayf, did not believe in Islam for the same reason. For years, he waited for the arrival of the Promised Prophet and at the same time, he wished that he himself would be that Prophet. When he heard about the prophethood of Muḥammad (ﷺ), he abstained from following him and the reason he offered for his denial was the following: "How could I tell the women of Ṭayf that another person had obtained the status of prophethood? I have always told them that I would be the promised prophet. Now how could I endure this shame on my side to follow the young man of `Abd-Manjif?"²

¹ Ibn Hushaym, op cit, 1:337; Ibn Shahrīshub, Manāqib 1:50; Ibn Kathīr, al-Sīrah al-Nabawīyyah 1:506-507.

² Ibn Kathīr, Al-Sīrah al-Nabawīyyah 1:130.

CHAPTER THREE

The consequences and reactions of Opposition to the Qur'ān

Torturing Muslims

With the daily increase in the number of Muslims,¹ Quraysh who had not reached any conclusion with AbŒ-±jlib, who were observing BanŒ-Hjshim's support for the Holy Prophet and who had earned nothing from threatening his life, started torturing Muslims in the hope of stopping them from following Islam. The problem for Quraysh was that the newly-converted Muslims did not belong to one tribe so that they could have been discouraged somehow; rather, a few of these new Muslims belonged to different tribes. A look at the immigrants to Abyssinia, who due to the tortures by the infidels had to leave Mecca, reveal that these escapees were from the following tribes: BanŒ-`Abd Shams, BanŒ-Asad, BanŒ-`Abd al-Djr, BanŒ-Zuhrah, BanŒ-MakhzŒm, BanŒ-Juma', BanŒ-`AdŒ, BanŒ-°urayth, BanŒ-AmŒr and BanŒ-Umayyah. For this reason, the infidels decided to torture Muslims inside their own tribes so that through the interference of other tribes their prejudice might not be excited and not to show any harsh reaction.

¹ TjrŒkh al-±abarŒ 2:221.

Most of torture was leveled against the young who had converted to Islam. These young people, as we have already mentioned, were mostly slaves or strangers who had no tribal protection of any sort.¹ Yjsir and his son `Ammjr, Biljl ibn Rabjl, Khabbjb ibn al-Aratt, AbŒ-Fukayhah, AmŒr ibn Fuhayrah, `uhayb ibn Sinjn, and, among women and female slaves, Sumayyah, Umm-`Ubays, ZinnŒrah, LabŒbah (or Lubaynah) and finally Nahdiyyah² were tortured by various means such like keeping them hungry or thirsty, imprisonment, striking and hitting, being forced to lie on the hot sands of the desert of Mecca at noon or to wear iron coats, or being tied up with rope and ridiculed by children.

Emigration to Abyssinia

Having been protected by AbŒ-±jlib and BanŒ-Hjshim, the Holy Prophet was safe from the aggressions of Quraysh. However, since Muslims were unprotected and vulnerable, the Holy Prophet recommended that they might migrate to Abyssinia and told them, "It is a land of truth and there lives a just king."³ In those days, the only safe place for Muslims was Abyssinia. Neither Iran nor Rome or the dominated areas by these super-powers, such as Damascus or Yemen, would accept the Muslims. Besides, Abyssinia was a well-known land to Muslims because Meccans used to make trade journeys to that land.¹ Furthermore, people of Abyssinia were Christians; they had a lot in common with Muslims, such as belief in God. It is said that the Abyssinian people were Ya`qḥbian Christians who considered God as one entity and not part of a Trinity. For this reason, they were close to the Islamic monotheism.²

¹ al-BuljdharŒ, Ansjb al-Ashrjf 1:197; Ibn al-AthŒr, Al-Kjmil fŒ'l-TjrŒkh 2:66.

² al-BuljdharŒ, op cit, pp. 156-196; Ibn al-AthŒr, op cit, 2:66-70.

³ Ibn Hushjm, Al-SŒrah al-Nabawiyyah; ±abarŒ, TjrŒkh al-Umam wa'l-MulŒk 2:222; Ibn al-AthŒr, Al-Kjmil fŒ'l-TjrŒkh 2:76.

On the Prophet's recommendation, a group of fifteen³ defenseless Muslims in the fifth year after the Divine Mission secretly headed for Abyssinia and arrived there through Shu`aybah port or the Red Sea. This group stayed there for two or three months. Upon the spread of the rumor that people of Quraysh embraced Islam and ceased torturing Muslims, they returned to Mecca.⁴

However, since the torture of Muslims continued, a group of them headed for Abyssinia. This time, there were one hundred and one Muslims (both men and women).⁵ They were sponsored by Ja`far ibn Abḥ-ḥlib. With the passage of time, Muslims' migration brought about worry to the people of Quraysh who, then, dispatched an envoy to the royal court of al-Najjshḥ,

¹ ḥabarḥ, op cit, pp. 221.

² `Umar Farrḥkh, Tjṛḥkh `adr al-Islḥm wa'l-Dawlah al-Umawiyah, pp. 54; `Abbḥs Ziryḥb, Sḥrat Rasḥlillḥ, pp. 169.

³ Ibn Sa`d, op cit, pp. 204; Ibn Hushḥm, op cit, pp. 344; ḥabarḥ, op cit, pp. 221-222.

⁴ al-Bulḥdharḥ, op cit, pp. 227.

⁵ Ibn Sa`d, op cit, pp. 207. The number of emigrants is recorded even less. But the number of their names, recorded in books of history, is the same as the above. See Ibn Hushḥm, op cit, pp. 346-353; Dr. Muḥammad Ibrḥḥm `yatḥ, The History of The Prophet of Islam, pp. 122-132.

asking for the Muslims' deportation. Realizing the conspiracy, Abḥ-ḥlib wrote a letter to al-Najjshḥ asking him to protect the Muslims.¹

After Quraysh had set forth their claim for the return of the Muslims to Mecca, Ja`far ibn Abḥ-ḥlib vehemently defended the Muslims. The king of Abyssinia was greatly moved; he consequently refused to let the Muslims go and decided to protect them.²

Of course, the emigrants included both the tortured ones and others from the strongest tribes whom nobody dared to punish. However, Mecca remained an area of pressure, torture and suppression of beliefs. By sending them to Abyssinia, the Holy Prophet had in mind to build up a center for struggle against idolatry. At the same time, he planned to keep Muslims out of danger. As we know, the Muslims' stay in Abyssinia was accompanied by Islamic propagation, because al-Najjshḥ accepted Islam and established some relations with the Holy ḥabarḥ has recorded that Abḥ-ḥlib wrote the following poetic verses in his letter:

¹ Ibn Hushḥm, op cit, 1:357; al-Majlisḥ, Biḥjr al-Anwḥr 18:418.

King of Abyssinia, be it known to you that Mu'ammad, just like Moses and Jesus son of Mary, is a Prophet.

He came with the true guidance with which they had come; and all of them guide to God's commission and seek His protection.

Verily, you are uttering his name in your Book through authentic, not fabricated, report.

So, do not associate others with God and follow Islam, for the path of the Right can never be darkened.

² ḥabarḥ, op cit, pp. 43-44, Ibn Hushḥm, op cit, pp. 356-360; Ibn al-Athḥr, op cit, 2:79-81.

Prophet.¹ Quraysh, most probably, were worried of this issue; they therefore dispatched their representatives to that area to stop such relationships.

In accordance with some documents, the Holy Prophet followed the news of the emigrants; he received the news of the apostasy and later death of `Ubaydullāh ibn Jalsh.²

This time, the Muslim emigrants stayed there even longer. Eleven of them passed away there. Thirty-nine of them returned to Mecca prior to the Holy Prophet's emigration. Twenty-six men and some women returned to Mecca after the Battle of Badr. The last group, supervised by Ja`far Ibn Abṭ-ṭlib, returned home on the 7th year of Hegira and met the Holy Prophet after the Conquest Khaybar.³

The Birth of Fīṣimah

Shc`ite historians unanimously contend that Lady Fīṣimah was born in Mecca in the fifth year after Hegira.⁴ The youngest child of the Holy Prophet and Khadḡjah, Fīṣimah (¥) married Imam `Alḡ (a.s) in Medina after the Holy Prophet's Hegira. During her early

¹ It is reported that Ja`far ibn Abṭ-ṭlib was escorted by seventy Abyssinians on his way back to Mecca. All of these, converted to Islam after they had had a conversation with the Holy Prophet. See Majma` al-Bayn 3:234.

² Ibn Sa`d, op cit, pp. 208.

³ Ibn Sa`d, op cit, 8:97; Ibn Hushim, op cit, pp. 238; Ibn Kathḡr, al-Bidjyah wa'l-Nihjyah 4:143; ^ayatḡ, op cit, pp. 132.

⁴ al-Majlisḡ, Bi'jr al-Anwjr 43:7.

The majority of Sunni scholars believe that Lady Fīṣimah was born five years after prophethood. See Sayyid Ja`far Shahḡdi, Life of Fīṣimah.

age, she witnessed her father's severest struggles against the unbelievers; she could vividly remember all the troubles of that period.

The Night Ascension (Mi`rij)

The Holy Prophet's nocturnal journey from Mecca to Jerusalem (isrj' [Qur'ān 17:1]) in a supernatural way and his journey from Jerusalem to the Heavens (mi`rijj [Qur'ān: 70]) through God's power are both significant events of Mecca, because these two events are recorded in the Meccan sḡrahs; however, there are disagreements related to the exact date of their occurrence.

The Holy Prophet's objectives of these two journeys was to closely observe God's Grandeur across the heavens and skies, to meet the angels and the souls of the previous prophets, to watch Paradise and Hell and to observe the differing ranks of the dwellers of Paradise and the residents of Hell. God refers to this journey as follows:

Glory be to Him who made His servant to go on a night from the Sacred Mosque to the Remote Mosque of which We have blessed the precincts, so that We may show to him some of Our Signs; Surely, He is the Hearing, the Seeing. (17:1)

Concerning mi`rijj, God remarks:

Certainly, he saw of the greatest signs of his Lord. (53:18)

Imam al-Riḡj (¥) was asked, "Why did God take the Prophet to the skies when He has no definite place?" Imam al-Riḡj (¥) replied, "God would not need any place or time. By taking the Holy Prophet to the skies, God intended to glorify the angels and the sky-dwellers. God also wanted Muḡammad (¥) to observe the extension of the creation so that upon his descent he could inform people of God's Grandeur. God does not need time or place as the skeptics erroneously assume."¹

The Evaluation of the Narrations on mi`rjj

Concerning the Holy Prophet's Divine journey, there are several narrations available. However, ±abirŝ, a well-known exegete of the Holy Qur'ān, has divided these narrations into four headings:

(1) Uninterruptedly reported narrations (mutawātir); they are definite and certain; one of these is the principle of mi`rjj.

(2) Narrations reporting issues that are logically and rationally accepted and are not in opposition with any known principle; such as those reporting the Holy Prophet's travel in the skies for the purpose of visiting Paradise and Hell.

(3) Narrations that are superficially in conflict with the absolute principles derived from the verses of the Holy Qur'ān and Islamic traditions, but are interpretable anyway. Such narrations should be interpreted in such a way that they could be in harmony with correct beliefs. An example is the content of the traditions reporting the Holy Prophet's meeting with a group of people in Paradise and another group in Hell. These scenes are a kind of allegory for us to visualize Paradise and Hell.

(4) Materials that are superficially unacceptable and not interpretable, such as the report that the Holy Prophet saw God with his own eyes, talked to Him and sat on His Throne next to Him. Such issues are null and void.²

¹ Tafsir al-Burhān 2:400.

² Majma' al-Bayān 6:395.

In the opinion of the Twelvers Imāmiyyah, the Holy Prophet's heavenly journey was material; i.e. he made this ascension in body and soul.¹ According to Islamic narrations, during the mi`rjj, the daily and nightly prayers were set at five.² If, prior to mi`rjj, some prayers are observed being performed by either the Holy Prophet or Imam `Alī, it has been either a non-compulsory prayer or a kind of prayer based on the specific situations which was not a regular daily prayer with which we are familiar.³

Economic and Social Boycott Imposed on Banī-Hāshim

The chiefs of Quraysh failed to contact with Abī-ṭālib and to force Muslims in Abyssinia to come back to Mecca. Some socially significant personalities were absorbed by Islam. In view of these two facts, they had no alternative but to impose an economic and social boycott on Banī-Hāshim in the hope that they would cease their protection of the Holy Prophet and submit him to Quraysh. To this end, they reached an agreement that none would marry a woman from Banī-Hāshim or have any transactions with them.⁴

The life of the people of Mecca was based on trade;

¹ al-Majlis, op cit.; 18, pp. 290; Tafsir Nemāneh 12:17. A physics-based explanation of the Night Ascension can be seen in Tafsir Nemāneh 12:17-20 and Furūgh Abadiyyat 2:393.

² Shaykh al-Kulaynī, al-Furūḡ min al-Kifā 3:482-487; Ibn Sa'd, al-ṭabaqāt al-Kubrī 1:213; al-ṭabaqāt al-Bukhārī; al-ʿurr al-ʿamīlī, Was'il al-Shayḥ 3:76; al-Majlis, op cit, 18:238; Tafsir al-Burhān 2:933.

³ Allamah Amīnī, al-Ghadir 3:242.

⁴ Ibn Hushaym, Al-Sīrah al-Nabawiyyah 1:375; ±abar, op cit, 2:225; al-Bulḍharī, Ansīb al-Ashraf 1:234.

economic activities were in the hands of Quraysh; therefore, they were able to deprive anybody or any group of this asset. They had an effective weapon at their disposal and it was expected that Banī-Hāshim would be made destitute within a short time. Hence, the chiefs of Quraysh imposed such sanctions on Banī-Hāshim so as to make them socially deprived.¹

On Abī-ṭalib's recommendation,² all the members of Banī-Hāshim, both Muslims and non-Muslims,³ except for Abī-Lahab, gathered at Abī-ṭalib Col and for three years after the boycott, they lived there. Although Quraysh's sanctions were both social and economic in nature, Abī-ṭalib asked the Holy Prophet and Banī-Hāshim to reside in that col because people of Quraysh had become outrageous; and the only thing which could satisfy them was to kill Muḥammad (ﷺ). Abī-ṭalib appointed forty men⁴ of Banī-Hāshim to guard the col and each night he asked the Holy Prophet to change his bed so that he might be secure. Abī-ṭalib's son, `Alī, then used to replace the Holy Prophet in his bed so as to save him from any anticipated danger.⁵

¹ al-Bulḍharī, op cit, 1:234; Ibn Sa'd, Al-ṭabaqāt al-Kubrī 1:209; Ibn Abī-Ḥāshim, Shar' Nahj al-Balighah 4:58.

² al-Bulḍharī, op cit, pp. 230; Is op cit, 1:63; Ibn Isḥāq, al-Siyar wal-Maghāzī, pp. 159; al-Majlisī, Bi'r al-Anwār 19:18.

³ Ibn Abī-Ḥāshim, Shar' Nahj al-Balighah 14:64; al-Fatḥ al-Nayyibī, Rawḍat al-Wajḥ, pp. 63.

⁴ Ibn Shahrīshab, op cit, 1:63; ṭabarī, Ṭarīkh al-Warī, pp. 49.

⁵ Al-Fatḥ al-Nayyibī, Rawḍat al-Wajḥ, pp. 64; Ibn Shahrīshab, op cit, pp. 64; ṭabarī, op cit, pp. 50; Ibn Abī-Ḥāshim, op cit, 14:64; see Ibn Isḥāq, op cit, pp. 160.

During this harsh time, Quraysh stopped any food from entering the col. The residents of this col could only buy their sustenance during the sacred months.¹ Even at that time, Quraysh warned the caravans that entered Mecca not to sell anything to Banī-Hāshim, lest their wealth would be plundered.² If Banī-Hāshim desired to buy anything, the prices would rise dramatically so that they could not have any buying power.³

At times, Abī-Ḥāshim ibn Rabī' or 'akḥm ibn 'izīm⁵ secretly took some foodstuff for Banī-Hāshim. Among Banī-Hāshim, Imam `Alī (a.s) used to leave the col to bring some foodstuff.⁶ During this period, the Holy Prophet, Abī-ṭalib and Khadījah lost all their wealth.⁷ Khadījah, in particular, spent all her money for the Holy Prophet in that col.⁸

Three years later, the Holy Prophet informed⁹ people of Quraysh, through Abī-ṭalib, that the treaty was rotted by termites and some of the signing parties had become

¹ Ibn Shahrīshab, op cit, pp. 65; Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 209; al-Bulḍharī, op cit, pp. 234; Ibn Isḥāq, op cit, pp. 159.

² ṭabarī, op cit, pp. 50.

³ al-Majlisī, op cit, 19; Ibn Isḥāq, op cit, pp. 159.

⁴ Ibn Shahrīshab, op cit, pp. 65; ṭabarī, op cit, pp. 51.

⁵ Ibn Isḥāq, op cit, pp. 161; Ibn Hushaym, op cit, 1:379; al-Bulḍharī, op cit, pp. 235; al-Majlisī, op cit, pp. 19.

⁶ Ibn Abī-Ḥāshim, Shar' Nahj al-Balighah 13:254.

⁷ Ibn Wāḥid, Tārīkh al-Ya`qūbī 2:25; ṭabarī, Ṭarīkh al-Warī, pp. 50.

⁸ ṭabarī, op cit, pp. 50; Is op cit, 1:65.

⁹ Ibn Isḥāq, op cit, pp. 161; al-Bulḍharī, op cit, 1:234; Ibn Sa'd, op cit, 1:210; Ibn Shahrīshab, op cit, 1:65.

sorry¹ for having signed on such a shameful treaty. Only then, they volunteered to annul this treaty.² In this way, Banī-Hāshim returned home.³ In one of his letters to Muḥīwiyah, Imam `Alī (a.s) remembers those harsh days:

Our own tribe (i.e. Quraysh) decided to murder our Prophet and destroy us completely; they added to our disasters and worries and they did strange things to us. They made our lives bitter, causing us to live in worry and pain. They forced us to live in difficult conditions. They kindled the fire of war and hatred against us. However, God willed that we would be the supporter of His religion. The believers among us hoped that God would bless them and give them rewards. However, the unbelievers continued protecting the interests of their own households. None of Quraysh who had converted to Islam received any torture that we received, because each one of them had somebody among their relatives to take care of him. So, they were secure.⁴

The Death of Khadījah and Abī-ḥilīb

Ten years after prophethood of Muḥammad (ﷺ) and a little time leaving the col, Khadījah passed away. A short time after that, Abī-ḥilīb also passed away.⁵ The passing away of these two persons was a great blow to the Holy

¹ Ibn Isḥāq, op cit, pp. 162, 165, 166; al-Bulḍharī, op cit, p236; Ibn Abī-Ḥatīm, op cit, 14:59; Ibn al-Athar, Al-Kimīyah fī l-Tārīkh 2:88; al-Majlisī, Biḥār al-Anwār 19:19.

² That took place on the tenth year of Hegira. See Ibn Saʿd, op cit, 1:210; al-Bulḍharī, op cit, 1:236.

³ Ṭabarī, op cit, pp. 51-52.

⁴ Nahj al-Balighah, letter 9.

⁵ al-Bulḍharī, op cit, 1:236; Ibn al-Athar, op cit, 2:90.

Prophet.¹

With the death of these two loyal friends, mishaps and disasters fell over the shoulders of the Holy Prophet one by one and he was put in a terribly difficult situation.²

The Role of Khadījah

Naturally, the loss of these two personalities brought about a great sorrow; although Khadījah could not protect the Holy Prophet in the same way that Abī-ḥilīb did, she was so kind and caring wife; she was a staunch supporter of Islam and its Prophet. She was the source of hope for the Holy Prophet against hardships.³ The Holy Prophet kept Khadījah's memories to the last of his life. He would never forget her pioneering in accepting Islam.⁴ Once, he told `A'ishah,

"God has never given me a better wife than Khadījah. She accepted my faith when everyone else rejected; she praised and confirmed me when everyone else denounced; she spent her wealth for me when everyone else deprived me of everything. Finally, God gave me as gifts children from her."⁵

¹ Ibn Wāḥid, Tārīkh al-Ya`qūbī 2:29; the Holy Prophet called that year "Year of Sadness". See Biḥār al-Anwār 19:25.

² Ibn Isḥāq, op cit, pp. 243; Ibn Hushaym, op cit, 2:57; Ṭabarī, ʿIlm al-Warī, pp. 53.

³ Ibn Isḥāq, op cit, pp. 243; Ibn Hushaym, op cit, pp. 57.

⁴ Amr Muḥannī al-Khayyīmī, pp. 62-63; Al-Dīlībī, al-Dhurriyyah al-ḥirah, pp. 63-64.

⁵ Ibn `Abd al-Barr, al-Isḥāq 4:287; Dīlībī, op cit, pp. 51.

The Role of AbĒ-±ilib

Not only was AbĒ-±ilib the Holy Prophet's sponsor in his childhood and adolescence, but he was also a staunch supporter during his prophethood. He stood firm against the aggressions of the unbelievers. As long as he was alive, Quraysh rarely dared to harm Mu'ammad (ﷺ). Once, they incited a man to throw a camel's tripe over the Holy Prophet's body at the sacred Mosque. His body became dirty. When AbĒ-±ilib knew of the event, he drew his sword and, along with °amzah, went to meet the offenders. He ordered °amzah to put the tripe over the face of each one those offenders.¹

With the demise of AbĒ-±ilib, Quraysh became more aggressive and tyrannical toward the Holy Prophet; they even threw dirt on him.² He once said,

“Quraysh had not dared to hurt me until AbĒ-±ilib passed away.”³

AbĒ-±ilib's Faith

Shc'ite scholars unanimously agree that AbĒ-±ilib was Muslim;⁴ but he had not declared his faith so that he

¹ Al-Kulaynċ, al-UŸĒl min al-Kjċ 1:449; `Allĵmah Amċnċ, al-Ghadċr 7:393; al-Majlisċ, Bi'ĵr al-Anwĵr 18:187; al-Ghadċr 7:259, 388, 393; Tĵrċkh al-Ya`qĒbċ 2:20.

² Ibn Sa'd, Al-±abagĵt al-Kubrĵ 1:211; ±abarċ, Tĵrċkh al-Umam wa'l-MulĒk (Tĵrċkh al-±abarċ) 2:229; al-Bayhaqċ, Dalĵ'il al-Nubuwwah 2:80; Ibn al-Athċr, op cit 2:91.

³ Ibn Isĵiq, al-Siyar wal-Maghĵzċ, pp. 239; Ibn Hushĵm, op cit, 2:58; ±abarċ, op cit, pp. 229; Ibn ShahrĵshĒb, Manĵqib 1:67; Ibn al-Athċr, op cit, pp. 91; al-Bayhaqċ, op cit, pp. 80; SibĴ Ibn al-Jawzċ, Tadhkirat al-KhawĵĴĴ, pp. 9.

⁴ Shaykh Mufċd, Awĵ'il al-Maqĵlĵt, pp. 13; al-Fattĵl al-Naysĵbċrċ, op

would protect the Holy Prophet. Because familial prejudices prevailed at that time, he pretended that he was protecting Mu'ammad (ﷺ) out of tribal zeal.¹ In this regard, Imam al-ĵdiq (ﷺ) has said,

AbĒ-±ilib acted like the Companions of the Cave (Seven Sleepers of Ephesus) who concealed their faith and pretended to be unbelievers; so, they received double rewards from God.²

However, some historians claim that AbĒ-±ilib had not embraced the new faith and passed away an unbeliever. There are pieces of evidence which lead us to believe that he was a believer of Mu'ammad's faith and ideology. We will present two of them hereinafter:

(1) His Poems and Statements

We have several statements and poems in which AbĒ-±ilib explicitly refers to Mu'ammad's truthfulness.³ This clearly shows his commitment to Islam. Here are some cit, pp. 155; Ibn Abċ'l-°adċd, Shar' Nahj al-Balĵghah 14:65; ±abarsċ, Majma` al-Bayĵn 3:287; Ibn ±awĒs; al-±arĵ'if, pp. 298.

¹ ±abarsċ, op cit, 7:260.

² Shaykh al-Kulaynċ, op cit, 1:448; °adĒq, al-Amĵlċ, pp. 366; al-Fattĵl al-Naysĵbċrċ, op cit, pp. 156; Allĵmah Amċnċ, al-Ghadċr 7:390; Mufċd, al-IkhtiŸĵĴ, pp. 241.

³ The poems of AbĒ-±ilib has been collected by AbĒ-Na`ċm `Alċ ibn °amzah al-BaŸċrċ al-Tamċmċ, the linguist (375 AD). Shaykh °aghĵ Buzurg Tehrĵnċ saw a copy of this book in the Library of Sayyid `«sĵ al-°ĒĴĵr in Baghdad. This book comprised more than five thousand poetic verses and was published in al-Najaf in AH 1356.

Imam `Alċ liked to see his father's poems being collected. He used to remark, “Learn these poems and teach them to your children. AbĒ-±ilib was a follower of God's religion and his poems contain a lot of knowledge.” al-Ghadċr 7:393.

examples of his poems:

O king of Abyssinia, be aware that Muḥammad, like Moses and Jesus, is a prophet. He has brought the same light of guidance that those two brought to man. All prophets are commissioned by God to lead people away from sins.¹

You should have known that we have believed that Muḥammad, just like Moses, is a Messenger whose name is mentioned in the previous bibles.²

I am certain that Muḥammad's faith is the best faith in the world.³

(2) His Protection of the Holy Prophet

Abḥ-ḥlib's excessive protections of the Holy Prophet against the aggressions of Quraysh, which continued for seven years, are clear indications of his faith. Those who deny his faith ascribe his protections to tribal affiliations with the Holy Prophet. However, familial bonds could not have been so strong as to force him to sacrifice his life for the Holy Prophet. These kinds of sacrifices definitely have their roots in religious fervor. If Abḥ-ḥlib's motives were tribal, why did the other uncles of the Holy Prophet, such as Ḥabbis and Abḥ-Lahab, not make the same

¹ ḥabarsḥ, ʿIlm al-Warj, pp. 45; Majmaʿ al-Bayʿn 4:288; Allmah Amḥḥ, al-Ghadḥ 7:331.

² Shaykh al-Kulaynḥ, op cit, pp. 449. ḥabarsḥ, Majmaʿ al-Bayʿn 4:4, 287; Ibn Hushjm, Al-Sḥrah al-Nabawiyyah 1:277; Ibn Abḥʿl-ʿadḥd, op cit, 14:72; al-Karjakḥ, Kanz al-Fawjʿid 1:181; Amḥḥ, al-Ghadḥ 7:332.

³ Ibn Abḥʿl-ʿadḥd, op cit, pp. 55; Amḥḥ, op cit, p334; Ḥsqalḥḥ, al-Iḥbah 4, pp. 116. Ibn Kathḥr, al-Bidjyah waʿl-Nihjyah 3:42.

sacrifices?¹

In the opinion of some historians, some of those who have tried to prove Abḥ-ḥlib's atheism do so out of political motives and tribal jealousies, because the Holy Prophet's followers (who later turned into his political rivals) were mostly idol-worshippers. Only Ḥlḥ (a.s) lacked such idol-worshipping background since he was nurtured in the Holy Prophet's school. Those who wish to belittle Imam Ḥlḥ claim that his father was not a believer. In this way, they claim that he had idolatry in his blood. In fact, the only guilt Abḥ-ḥlib had was his fatherhood of Ḥlḥ (a.s). He would not receive such an accusation if he had not been Ḥlḥ's father.

The Umayyad and Ḥbbisid rulers were at the center of these cruelties, because their ancestors could never reach the rank of Imam Ḥlḥ (a.s); they never had such a prestige; therefore, they tried in vain to humiliate him in any way they could.

The charges and accusations which they had leveled at Abḥ-ḥlib were more becoming of Ḥbbis ibn Ḥbd al-Muḥḥalib (the Holy Prophet's uncle and the ancestor of the Ḥbbisid rulers), because Ḥbbis used to be in Mecca up to the siege in the 8th year of Hegira. Moreover, he was taken as a prisoner in the army of the unbelievers and was then freed by paying tribute. When the siege of Mecca was underway, he reached the Islamic army and asked the Holy Prophet to release Abŕ-Sufyjn, the head of the unbelievers. Considering all these, nobody has ever claimed that he was an unbeliever! Is this a just evaluation of these two figures? For this reason, scholars look at the accusation of being an atheist on the part of Abŕ-ŕlib as suspect.¹

¹ Many books have been written on Abḥ-ḥlib's Faith. Some are referred to in ḥghj Buzurg's al-Dharḥʿah 2:510-514. Allmah Amḥḥ in, al-Ghadḥ 7:330-403, deals with this issue in some details. He refers to nineteen books written by great Muslim scholars on Abḥ-ḥlib's belief in Islam. He cites forty narrations proving this fact. At the beginning of the eighth volume, he answers the questions of the opponents regarding Abḥ-ḥlib's belief in Islam.

The Prophet's wives

While Khadŕjah was alive, the Holy Prophet did not marry any lady.² After her death, he married several women all of whom, except for `a'ishah, were widows. The first was Sawdah. Her husband was Sakrjn ibn `Amr; one of the emigrants to Abyssinia who had died there leaving his wife without sponsor.

Orientalists have used the Holy Prophet's marriages as an excuse to level inhuman accusations against him. They have referred to his marriages as indulgence in pleasure and lusts.³ A careful and impartial judgment, however, will reveal the fact that behind these marriages, there lay some political and social motives and some gains and common good for Islam; some of those women lost any sponsor or protector; therefore, the Holy Prophet wanted to guide and protect them under the cover of marriage. Some others belonged to great households and the Holy Prophet wanted to have their protections. At some other time, the purpose was to fight against some wrong customs of the Ignorance Era. Here are some evidences:

¹ `Abbjs Ziryjb, Sŕrat Rasŕlilljh, pp. 178-179.

² Ibn `Abd al-Barr, al-Isŕ`jb 4:282; `a'ŕŕ Muslim 15:201.

³ Mu'ammad ŕasanayn Haykal, ŕayjt Mu'ammad, pp. 315-316, 325.

(1) The Holy Prophet married Khadŕjah when he was twenty-five years old and at the zenith of youthful zeal and passion whereas she had lost the passion of youth when she married him. She lived with him for twenty-five years.

(2) The Holy Prophet did not marry any other woman as long as Khadŕjah was alive, while polygamy was prevalent in Arabia at that time.

(3) The other marriages of the Holy Prophet took place after the age of fifty, before or after Hegira, when he was in the center of political, social and military turmoil. Could a person get into pleasure seeking activities under such circumstances? Could the Holy Prophet, while living in Medina, find a chance to be involved in lust and whims?

(4) Was life easy and smooth with different wives, each of whom had a special set of likes and dislikes and a series of womanly jealousies; wives who had hurt the Holy Prophet on various occasions?¹ Is such a life compatible with pleasure-seeking?

(5) Each one of the Holy Prophet's wives belonged to a different tribe; they were not relatives. Was such a marriage accidental and haphazard?

(6) After the Holy Prophet's emigration to Yathrib and the expansion of Islam and an increase in his spiritual influence, his social and political power had greatly risen and the Arab leaders would take pride in having their daughters married to the Holy Prophet. However, most of the women that he married were widows or elderly women lacking any protector, while he encouraged men to marry young girls.

¹ For further information, see commentaries on Sŕrah al-Ta'rŕm, verses 1-5.

Let us introduce some of the Holy Prophet's wives:

(1) Ummu-°ab¢bah

The daughter of Ab£-Sufyjn, the bitter enemy of Islam, Ummu-°ab¢bah emigrated with her husband, `Ubaydulljh ibn Ja'ish, the Holy Prophet's cousin. When `Ubaydulljh reached that land, he apostatized Islam. Due to excessive wine drinking, he died there.¹ When the Holy Prophet knew about this, he sent `Amr ibn Umayyah al-®amar¢² to al-Najjsh¢ asking him to give Ummu-°ab¢bah in marriage to him. That was in the sixth year after the Hegira, and al-Najjsh¢ did. She stayed in Abyssinia for one more year and then returned to Medina with the last group.³ She was between thirty and forty years old.⁴

It is clear that this marriage took place to pacify this Muslim woman not to be carried away through worries and grief. This is because she had cut relations with her unbelieving relatives, including her parents, and had gone to Abyssinia with her husband. Now, in a foreign land, she had lost her husband. What other action could be better than having the privilege of getting married to the Holy Prophet?

¹ Mu'ammad Ibn Sa'd, Al-±abaqjt al-Kubrj 7:97, Shaykh `Abbjs al-Qumm¢, Saf¢nat al-Bi'jr 1:204.

² Ibn al-Ath¢r, Usd al-Ghjbah 5:458; Mas'£d¢, Mur£j al-Dhahab 2:289; °amdulljh Mu¥§afaw¢, Tjr¢kh Goz¢deh, pp. 161.

³ Ibn Kath¢r, al-Bidjyah wa'l-Nihjyah 4:144; °amdulljh Mu¥§afaw¢, Tjr¢kh Goz¢deh, pp. 161.

⁴ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 99; `Abbjs al-Qumm¢, op cit, pp. 204.

Ummu-Salamah

Ummu-Salamah (Hind) was the daughter of Ab¢-Umayyah Makhz£m¢; her ex-husband was Ab£-Salamah (°Abdulljh) Makhz£m¢,¹ one of the Holy Prophet's cousins.² They had four children one of whom was Salamah.³

Ab£-Salamah was wounded in the Battle of U'ud and then passed away in Jumjdj II, in the third year of Hegira.⁴ Most probably, there was no relative of Ummu-Salamah in Medina, because she is reported to have said, "When Ab£-Salamah died, I became very depressed; I said to myself, 'Now that I am lonely, I will weep so much that I become well-known as a great weeper!'"⁵ The Holy Prophet married her in the 4th year of Hegira.⁶ At that time, she had become old.⁷

It is clear that the purpose of this marriage was to sponsor her orphan children. Was it not a hard job for the Holy Prophet to sponsor four orphan children?

After Khad¢jah, Ummu-Salamah ranked high in sincerity, virtue and spirituality. She was second to

¹ `Asqaljn¢, al-I£jbah 4:458; Ibn al-Ath¢r, Usd al-Ghjbah 5:588.

² Ibn al-Ath¢r, op cit, pp. 218.

³ op cit, pp. 588; Ibn Hushjm, Al-S¢rah al-Nabawiyyah 4:294, Ibn Sa'd, op cit, 8:87.

⁴ Ibn `Abd al-Barr, al-Is¢`jb 4:82.

⁵ Al-Khayyim¢, Zawjjt al-Nab¢ wa-Awljduh£, pp. 199.

⁶ Ibn °ajar, op cit, pp. 458; Ibn Sa'd, op cit, 8:87.

⁷ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 90-91; Mu'ammad Ibn °ab¢b, al-Mu'abbar, pp. 84.

Khadġjah in these human traits.¹ She had a special bond with the Household of the Holy Prophet. Most of the time, she kept the secrets of the Divinely leadership of the Holy Prophet's Household.²

Zaynab bint Ja'ish

A close relative of the Holy Prophet, Zaynab was married to Zayd ibn ʿġrithah, the Holy Prophet's stepchild.³ She married the Holy Prophet after her separation from Zayd.

Zayd had been the slave of Khadġjah before he was freed and adopted by the Holy Prophet. From then on, he was called Zayd son of Mu'ammad.⁴

After the prophethood, God made the adoption of sons illegal:

Allah has not made for any man two hearts within him; nor has He made your wives whose backs you liken to the backs of your mothers as your mothers, nor has He made those whom you assert to be your sons your real sons; these are the words of your mouths; And Allah speaks the truth and He guides to the way. Assert their relationship to their fathers; this is more equitable with Allah, but if you do not know their fathers, then they are your brethren in faith and your friends; and there is no blame on you concerning that in which you made a mistake, but concerning that which your hearts do purposely blame may rest

¹ Mġmuqinġ, Tanqġ' al-Maqġl 3:72.

² Mġmuqinġ, op cit, Al-Tustarġ, Qġmġs al-Rġġl 10:396.

³ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, 8:101; Ibn al-Athġr, Usd al-Għġbah 2:226; Ibn ʿajar, al-Iġġbah 4:564.

⁴ Ibn Sa'd, op cit; Ibn al-Athġr, op cit, 2:224; Ibn ʿajar, op cit, pp. 563.

on you, and Allah is Forgiving, Merciful. (33:4-5)

Upon receiving these revelations, the Holy Prophet said to Zayd, "You are Zayd son of ʿġrithah." From then on, he was nicknamed freed by the Holy Prophet.¹

The Holy Prophet proposed Zaynab for himself. However, since she was one of the granddaughters of ʿAbd al-Muġġsalib and she belonged to a well-known tribe, she refused to accept such a proposal in the beginning, because Zayd was not from a Quraysh family; rather, he was freed slave. However, the Holy Prophet insisted; and Zaynab agreed. This marriage was the annihilation of racial and class privileges, which were so emphatically approved of. The Prophet's insistence on such a marriage was aimed at removing such unfounded principles.

Due to some ethical maladjustment, the marriage of Zaynab and Zayd became vulnerable; it was on the threshold of being cut. Several times, Zayd decided to divorce her, but the Holy Prophet called them for more perseverance by saying, "Keep your spouse."² Finally, Zayd divorced her. After their divorce, the Holy Prophet received direction from God to marry Zaynab so that the marriage of an adopted son's divorcee would not create a problem for Muslims. In this way, a wrong custom was broken, because an adopted son was considered real son. For this reason, marrying the wife of such a person was not allowed. The Holy Qur'ġn describes the aim of this marriage in the following manner:

¹ al-ġġsġ, Tafsġr Rġ' al-Ma'ġnġ 21:147.

² Ibn Sa'd, op cit, 8:103.

And when you said to him to whom Allah had shown favor and to whom you had shown a favor: Keep your wife to yourself and be careful of your duty to Allah; and you concealed in your soul what Allah would bring to light, and you feared men, and Allah had a greater right that you should fear Him. But when Zayd had accomplished his want of her, We gave her to you as a wife, so that there should be no difficulty for the believers in respect of the wives of their adopted sons, when they have accomplished their want of them; and Allah's command shall be performed. (33:37)

The unbelievers found an excuse in this marriage to level some accusations against the Holy Prophet: they accused him of marrying the wife of his son!¹ Then God revealed to the Holy Prophet:

Mu'ammad is not the father of any of your men, but he is the Apostle of Allah and the last of the Holy Prophets; and Allah is Cognizant of all things. (33:40)

Some Christian Orientalists have changed this event into a romance and have added unfounded details to it,² but this

¹ Ibn al-Athar, op cit, 7:494; ±abars¢, Majma` al-Bayn 8:337; Qasalni, al-Mawhib al-Ludaniyyah 2:87.

² Islamic Encyclopedia; Mu'ammad °asanayn Haykal, °ayt Mu'ammad, pp. 316, 323.

According to Orientalists, Mu'ammad passed by Zayd's house and accidentally saw his wife, Zaynab. He fell in love with her!! When Zayd noticed this, he divorced Zaynab who was one of the Prophet's relatives and was not unknown to the Prophet since, in those days, women's veil was not yet common!!

To refute this fable, members of a family must know who is beautiful and who is not among them. We should add here that these Orientalists accusation does not comply with the Holy Prophet's traits. Besides, we have seen that the issue was something else and this is vividly explained in the Holy Qur'in.

The aforementioned accounts of the Holy Prophet's wives are enough for an explanation of the real motives behind his polygamy. The other wives of the Holy Prophet had more or less similar traits.

The Holy Prophet's Journey to ±i'if

Seventy-two kilometers away from Mecca, ±i'if is a countryside with mild weather. It was known for its vineyards in those days.¹ Some of Quraysh's noblemen had gardens and pastures there. The citizens of ±i'if were wealthy; they were famous usurers. It was the resort of the strong tribe of Thaq¢f.

After the death of Khad¢jah and Ab¢-±ilib, the tormenting of the Holy Prophet by Quraysh increased and propagating the religion became difficult. However, the invitation to Islam could not be stopped. Therefore, the Holy Prophet decided to journey to ±i'if in order to invite its people to his religion. He hoped to find some have got this fable from some baseless narrations recorded in some reference books, such as Tr¢kh ±abar¢ 3:42; Al-±abaqt al-Kubr 8:101. Some other writers, too, have unknowingly adopted these sources. However, the Holy Qur'in has vividly revealed the truth. Of course, some Muslim scholars have proved the forgery of this story. One of these is Sayyid Murta¢ Alam al-Hud, a well-known Sh¢'ite scholar (436 AH). He has described such reports as dirty and ugly. See Tanz¢h al-Anbiy, pp. 114. Al-°l¢s¢ considers the issue as a myth uttered by story-tellers. He says, "We should acquit the Prophet from such accusations." See Tafs¢r R¢' al-Ma`n¢ 22:24-25.

¹ Yiq¢t al-°amaw¢, Mu`jam al-Buldn 4:9.

protectors there. On this journey, Zayd ibn ʿJrithah¹ and Imam ʿAlī² accompanied him.

The Holy Prophet met three brothers of the noblemen of Thaḳḳf; the wife of one of these three was from a branch of Quraysh, called Banī-Jumal.³ He invited them to Islam and asked them for help. However, they refused and used strong words in reply. He also asked them to keep his journey secret so that the chiefs of Quraysh might not be annoyed. But they did not pay attention to what he said.

The Holy Prophet visited other leaders of ʿJif as well, but they rejected his invitation and feared that their youth might be inclined towards Islam.⁴ The leaders of ʿJif provoked the rogues, the destitute, and their slaves to curse, humiliate and throw stones at him. In this conflict, some parts of the Holy Prophet's legs were badly hurt and Zayd's head was wounded.

The Holy Prophet headed for a vineyard which belonged to ʿUtbah and Shaybah, two chiefs of Quraysh, and rested in the shade of a vine, praying to God.

ʿUtbah and Shaybah, who had been watching the tormenting of the Holy Prophet, sympathized with him; they sent him some grapes through their Christian servant, ʿAddīs, who was from Nineveh. While eating the grapes, the Holy Prophet said, "In the Name of Allah."

¹ ʿabār, Tjrkḥ al-Umam wa'l-Mulḳ 2:230; al-Bulḍhar, Ansib al-Ashraf 1:237.

² Ibn Abī'l-ʿad, Shar' Nahj al-Balighah 14:97 and 4:127-128.

³ ʿabār, op cit, pp. 230; Ibn Hushjm, Al-Serah al-Nabawiyyah 2:60.

⁴ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 212.

This statement roused ʿAddīs's curiosity. After some conversation through which the Holy Prophet told ʿAddīs about his Divine mission, ʿAddīs threw himself at the Holy Prophet's feet, kissed his hands and feet,¹ and became Muslim.² Having stayed in ʿJif³ for ten days and discouraged by the refusal of the Thaḳḳf tribe, he returned to Mecca.

Did the Holy Prophet seek Refuge?

It is said that the Holy Prophet, upon his return to Mecca, asked Muṣ'im ibn ʿAd to give him refuge; he then entered Mecca under his protection. However, with regards to a series of evidence, this seems highly improbable:

(1) How could the Holy Prophet, after ten years of hard struggles and severe confrontations with the idolaters, have accepted the humiliation of asking an idol-worshipper for refuge and asylum while this humiliation he never accepted during his whole life?

(2) Despite the death of Abī-ʿJlib at that time, the rest of Banī-Hjshim were still on the scene; among them, there were brave individuals like ʿamzah whom Quraysh feared very much as is shown in their attempts to unite several tribes to murder the Holy Prophet at the night of his emigration to Yathrib.

(3) According to some historical documents, Zayd and

¹ ʿabār, op cit, 2:230; Ibn Hushjm, op cit, 2:62.

² Ibn Wjīl, Tjrkḥ al-Ya`qḳb 2:30.

³ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, 1:212; Ibn Abī'l-ʿad, op cit, 14:91; al-Majlis, Bi'ir al-Anwjr 19:22. It is also reported that the Holy Prophet stayed at ʿJif more than this period.

Imam `Alç accompanied him. So, they were a group of three persons who could depend on themselves and needed no assistance.

(4) The Holy Prophet was one of the bravest Arabs; weakness has never been seen on him. Recalling the Holy Prophet's bravery in battles, Imam `Alç (a.s) remarks:

When the fire of war was severely kindled, we used to resort to the Holy Prophet; under those circumstances, there was nobody closer to the enemy than he was.¹

(5) The Holy Prophet severely struggled against the system of tribalism which was the source of his calamity. How could he approve of the tradition of taking refuge which was an offshoot of tribalism? How could he confirm it?

(6) As is reported by Bulđdharç and Ibn Sa`d, the Holy Prophet's journey to \pm_j 'if took place at the end of month Shawwıl. If we accept this report as valid, it means that his stay in \pm_j 'if and his return to Mecca could have occurred within the sacred month in which bloodshed and molestation are suspended. Thus, there was no danger against the Holy Prophet's life and consequently he did not need any protection.

With regards to these documents, we may infer that the Holy Prophet, on his return from \pm_j 'if, had entered Wıdç Nakhlah before he entered Mecca. On his return, he spent a night there² when a group of jinn¹ heard the verses of the Holy Qur'in.²

¹ Nahj al-Balıghah, pp. 530.

² This incident took place at a place between \pm_j 'if and Mecca. See al-Sçrah al-Nabawiyyah 3:63.

Attraction of the Holy Qur'in

Inviting people to his religion, the Holy Prophet rarely spoke of himself; rather, he made use of the best means available to him, i.e. the verses of the Holy Qur'in which had enchanting effects on the Arab's ears. The Holy Qur'in is the Holy Prophet's great miracle—a miracle of eloquence. The lexicon and the lexical items, the structure of the verses, and the melody of the Qur'anic verses are so attractive that nobody could ever be able to produce anything even similar to them. For this reason, the Holy Qur'in invites the unbelievers to produce anything like its chapters. (2:23)

The Arabs of ıijz who were mostly poets and experts in poetry were absorbed in and enchanted by the grace and eloquence of the sacred verses of the Holy Qur'in. The words of revelation appeared to them most graceful and elegant. At times, they would be mesmerized and motionless for a long time.

One night, some chiefs of Quraysh, such as Abç-Sufyın and Abç-Jahl hid behind the door of the Holy Prophet's house and listened to the verses that he was uttering. On their return in the morning, they saw one another and started blaming each other by saying, "Let us not do this again, because if people see us, they would think otherwise. They might think that we have become Muslims." However, for the coming nights, they did it again, each time promising not to do it again. (2:23)

¹ \pm abarç, op cit, pp. 231; Ibn Hushım, op cit, pp. 63.

² Al-`a'ç/ min Sçrat al-Nabç al-A``am 2:167-168.

Accusation of Magic

The ceremony of °ajj was the best time for the Holy Prophet to carry out his propagation, because the different Arab tribes came to Mecca then. In those days, the Holy Prophet had a chance to let people hear the call for monotheism. For this reason, the chiefs of Quraysh feared the °ajj time the most.

At the time of °ajj ceremony, a group of noblemen of Quraysh went to visit Walʿd ibn Mughʿrah, an elderly man and the head of Banʿ-Makhzʿm, who said, “It is the °ajj time, people come to your city from everywhere; they have heard Muʿammad’s story. Let us talk about him in a single fashion and not try to contradict one another.” They replied, “Whatever you say, we will follow you. We will say that he is a Jewish priest.” He said, “No, By God. He is not a Jewish priest; we have seen such priests before. He neither hums like such priests nor does he use rhymed speech.” One of them suggested, “Let us say that he is a lunatic.” Walʿd answered, “No! He could not be a lunatic. We have seen lunatic people and we know how they behave. Neither do any of his limbs shake, nor is he tempted by some devil.” They said, “Let us say that he is a poet.” Walʿd answered, “He cannot be a poet either. We know all kinds of poetry. What he says is not poems.” They further suggested, “We shall say that he is a magician.” Walʿd answered, “This is not accurate either. We have seen the magician’s incantations and charms. His work is not sorcery.” They asked, “Then, what shall we say?” He remarked, “By God, his speech is delicious; its roots are vigorous and branches are fruitful. Whatever of these categories you say about him will turn out to be wrong. The best thing for you is to say that he is a magician because through his words he is able to separate children from their parents, brothers from brothers, wives from husbands and tribe members from one another.”¹

Having arrived at this decision, the Arab leaders spread. From then on, they would provoke the °ajj pilgrims not to be carried away by the indoctrinations of the Holy Prophet.²

What the higher council of Quraysh called magic and attributed to the Holy Prophet was in fact an attribute for the attractive verses of the Holy Qurʾān which hypnotized everyone who listened to them. The sanctions against the listening to the Qurʾānic verses reached such a point that the chiefs of Quraysh recommended that a great person such as Asʿad ibn Zurʿrah should insert cotton in his ears in order to be safe against Muʿammad’s magic!”³

Inviting the Arab Tribes to Islam

The Holy Prophet carried out his invitation to people in Mecca and elsewhere. For instance, he went to the following tribes: Kindah, Kalb, Banʿ-°anʿfah and Banʿ-Amʿr ibn ʿaʿYaʿah to invite them to the new religion. However, Abʿ-ʿLahab used to follow him and discourage people from accepting his religion.⁴

¹ Ibn Hushjm, op cit, pp. 288-289.

² Ibn Hushjm, op cit, pp. 288-289.

³ ±abarʿ, ʿlīm al-Warj, pp. 56.

⁴ Ibn Hushjm, op cit, 2:65-66; ±abarʿ, Tjṛekh 2:232-233; al-Buljḍharʿ, Ansib al-Ashrif 1:237-238; Ibn Isiq, al-Siyar waʿl-Maghjzʿ, pp. 232.

He invited the following tribes to Islam one by one: Banʿ-Fazʿrah, Ghassʿn, Banʿ-Murrah, Banʿ-Sulaym, Banʿ-ʿAbs, Banʿ-°irith, Banʿ-ʿUdhrah, al-°aʿrimah, Banʿ-Naʿr, and Banʿ-Bukjʿ. However, none of them accepted his religion. See Ibn Saʿd, Al-±abagʿt al-Kubrj 1:216-

In his dialogues with Banī-ʿamir, the Holy Prophet was told by one of the elderly chiefs of that tribe, named Bayʿarah ibn Firʿs, “If we swear allegiance to you and God makes you victorious over your opponents, will you promise your succession to us?” The Holy Prophet replied, “That is God's affair, not mine. God will nominate anybody He wishes.” Aggressively, the man replied, “You want us to stand against the Arabs for your sake and defend you; and upon your victory, somebody else gets the initiatives? We do not need your religion.”¹

It is narrated that the same issue was brought up by the elders of the Kindah tribe to whom the Holy Prophet gave the same reaction.² This kind of reply and taking position on the part of the Holy Prophet is significant in two ways:

First: He emphasized that the issue of succession is God's affair. This confirms the issue that he has been appointed by God; i.e. his position is a Divine selection and this adoption takes place by God, not through people.

Second: The Holy Prophet, contrary to other statesmen who do everything in order to obtain their objectives, did not make use of unethical instruments. Although the adoption of Islam by the members of a large tribe was of utmost significance and value in those days, the Holy Prophet did not promise anything which he could not keep.

217.

¹ Ibn Hushjm, op cit, 2:66; Zaynʿ Dalljn, Al-Sʿrah al-Nabawiyyah 1:145; Murtaʿij al-ʿamilʿ, al-ʿaʿl min Sʿrat al-Nabʿ al-Aʿam 2:157-176.

² Ibn Kathʿr, al-Bidʿyah waʿl-Nihʿyah 3:140.

During the ʿajj and ʿUmrah ceremonies in which security prevailed due to the sacredness of those months and during which a great number of people could come from different areas to Mecca and Minʿ or the markets outside Mecca, such as the seasonal markets of ʿUkʿ, al-Majannah and Dhʿʿl-Majjz,¹ the Holy Prophet extended his invitation and visited the elderly chiefs of the tribes. Even if the pilgrims themselves did not accept Islam, they spread the news of the Holy Prophet's prophethood in their cities and towns; and this was a step ahead towards victory and success.

¹ Ibn Saʿd, op cit, 1:216.

SECTION FOUR
FROM HEGIRA TO THE UNIVERSAL INVITATION

- Chapter One:
Emigration to Yathrib
- Chapter Two:
The Prophet's Major proceedings in Medina
- Chapter Three:
Conspiracies of the Jews
- Chapter Four:
Establishment of Muslim Military Forces

CHAPTER ONE

Emigration to Yathrib

The Basis of Islam's Influences in Yathrib

Wādī al-Qurī is a long valley along with the trade route from Yemen to Damascus. Along this valley, which runs from the north to the south, there were numerous oases surrounded by grass and pastures.¹ The caravans made use of them on their trips along this valley. On one of these oases, five hundred kilometers north of Mecca, there was the old city of Yathrib which was later called Madīnat al-Rasūl (the city of the Messenger) after the Holy Prophet's emigration to it and then al-Madīnah (Medina).

The structure and social conditions of Yathrib was quite different from those of Mecca whose people were engaged in agriculture and orchard keeping. There lived in this city three great Jewish tribes of Banī'l-Naẓar, Banī-Qaynuqī' and Banī-Quray'ah. The two famous tribes of Aws and Khazraj are originally from the Yemen (i.e. descendants of Qaṣṣīn); but after the destruction of the Ma'rib Dam, they migrated from the south to live in Yathrib along with the Jewish inhabitants.

During the years of the Holy Prophet's promulgation of Islam in Mecca, some events occurred in Yathrib which paved the way for his emigration. These events had made this city the center for the propagation of Islam. Among these events were the following:

The Jews had owned the fertile lands around the city; they had created numerous palm groves, enjoyed wealth and excelled all others economically.¹ Once in a while, some quarrels occurred between them and the tribes of Aws and Khazraj. The Jews used to threaten them, saying, "In the near future, there shall come a new prophet whom we will follow and with his help we will root you out, just like the peoples of 'ād and Iram."²

Because the Jews enjoyed a higher cultural status and they were respected by the idolaters, who believed in whatever the Jews would tell them, the issue of

¹ Montgomery Watt, Muhammad at Medina, pp. 294.

It is said that the Jews had had fifty-nine castles and dwelling-places at Yathrib before the tribes of Aws and Khazraj resided there. On the other side, the Arab tribes had only thirteen castles and dwelling places. See op cit, pp. 293; Wafī al-Wafī 1:165.

This vividly shows the social distances between these two.

² Ibn Hushīm, op cit, 2:70; ṭabarī, op cit, 2:234; al-Bayhaqī, Dalīl al-Nubuwwah 2:128; Ibn Shahrīshūb, Manīqib 1:51; ṭabarī, ʿIlm al-Hudī, pp. 56.

Although they had been expecting the advent of the Promised Prophet, the Jews stood against the Holy Prophet. For this reason, the Holy Qur'ān reprimanded them in the following manner:

And when there came to them [the Israelites] a book from Allah verifying that which they have, and aforesaid they used to pray for victory against those who disbelieve, but when there came to them prophet that which they did not recognize, they disbelieved in him; so Allah's curse is on the unbelievers. (2:89.

¹ Yiqūt al-ʿamawī, Muḥammad al-Buldīn, 4:238.

prophethood had rooted in the minds of the tribes of Aws and Khazraj.

Since older times, wars and bloodshed took place between the tribes of Aws and Khazraj. The last of these conflicts was the war of Bu`iḥ. These conflicts had resulted in a lot of casualties and damages on both sides who, because they had suffered greatly, looked forward to ceasefire and compromise. However, there was no impartial person to carry out such a mission. `Abdullāh Ibn Ubayy, who was not of the elderly chiefs of Khazraj, had announced his impartiality during the battle of Bu`iḥ and desired for a ceasefire and reconciliation so that he might govern both of them. He had prepared for the coronation ceremonies.¹ However, the encounters of Aws and Khazraj with the Holy Prophet in Mecca changed the direction of events dramatically and `Abdullāh Ibn Ubayy lost his chance.

The First Muslim Group of Yathrib

Through their pilgrimages to Mecca, the people of Yathrib had known about the Holy Prophet's mission since the early years of his open invitations to Islam. Some of them had met him in Mecca and become Muslims; but later on, they had either died or been killed.² They had never been able to invite anybody into Islam. In the eleventh year of prophethood, the Holy Prophet met six of the elderly chiefs of Khazraj during the season of °ajj and invited them to Islam. They told ¹ ±abarṣ, op cit, pp. 57.

² Ibn Hushjm, op cit, 2:67-70; ±abarṣ, op cit, 2:233; al-Bulḍharṣ, Ansib Al-Ashrif 1:238; al-Bayhaṣ, op cit, 2:118.

each other, "Be aware; this is the same prophet predicted by the Jews. Now we should not fall behind them in accepting his religion." Then, they accepted Islam by telling the Holy Prophet, "We have left our people in the worst form of enmity. We hope that God will make them conciliate through you. Now, we will return to Yathrib and start inviting them to Islam. If they accept this religion, there will be nobody dearer to us than you."

Upon their return to Yathrib, this group invited people to Islam. Not long after, the name of Islam was heard in every house of Yathrib and the Holy Prophet's name was uttered by everybody.¹

The First Treaty of `Aqabah

By the twelfth year of the prophethood, twelve people of Yathrib swore allegiance to the Holy Prophet at the foot of the `Aqabah of Min² at the time of °ajj.³ Among this group, ten people were from Khazraj and two others from Aws. This showed that these two groups had set their quarrel aside and showed interest in coming under the banner of Islam. They swore that they would not associate anybody with God, steal, engage themselves in adultery, kill their own children, accuse one another, and they would obey the Holy Prophet in performing good deeds.⁴

¹ Ibn Hushjm, op cit, pp. 70-73; ±abarṣ, op cit, pp. 234-235; al-Bayhaṣ, op cit, 2:128; al-Majlisṣ, Bi'ir al-Anwjr 19:25.

² `Aqabah, meaning a pass, is situated to the west of Mecca.

³ Five of them had sworn allegiance with the Holy Prophet in the last year, while seven paid homage this year.

⁴ This treaty was termed bay`at al-nisj', because the issues of war not

The Holy Prophet promised them heaven as a reward for their keeping this treaty.¹ After the °ajj ceremony, they returned to Yathrib and asked the Holy Prophet to appoint a teacher to teach them the Holy Qur'ān and the principles of Islam. The Holy Prophet sent Muḥab ibn `Umayr to them.² Due to his hard work in propagation, a great number of people accepted the Islamic faith. In Mecca, the chiefs opposed Islam; but the youth and the deprived ones accepted it as religion. However, in Yathrib, it was the other way round; the chiefs pioneered to adopt Islam and people naturally followed their suit. This was one of the factors for the spread of Islam in this city.

The Second Treaty of `Aqabah

In the thirteenth year of prophethood and at the °ajj ceremony, a group of seventy-five people, eleven of included in it. After the conquest of Mecca, the Holy Prophet asked women to swear their allegiance. This issue is brought up in a verse in Sūrah al-Mumta'anah that reads, O Prophet! When believing women come to you giving you a pledge that they will not associate aught with Allah, and will not steal, and will not commit fornication, and will not kill their children, and will not bring a calumny which they have forged of themselves, and will not disobey you in what is good; accept their pledge, and ask forgiveness for them from Allah; surely Allah is Forgiving, Merciful. (60:12.

¹ op cit, Ibn Sa'd, Al-ṭabaqāt al-Kubrī 1:220.

² Muḥab was a young man from a rich family that belonged to Banū `Abd al-Dīr, Quraysh. Although his parents loved him passionately, he was deprived of everything due to his belief in Islam. He was a zealous Muslim who had migrated to Abyssinia twice. See Ibn al-Athar, Usd al-Ghābah 4:368-370.

whom were from Aws and two women, entered Mecca. On the twelfth of Dhu'l-°ijjah, the second treaty of `Aqabah was concluded with a lot of precautions. The signers pledged that if the Holy Prophet emigrated to their city, they would protect him like their own relatives and children and fight anybody who would fight against him. For this reason, this treaty came to be called bay'at al-'arb (the pledge of war). At the end of this meeting, the signers elected twelve representatives to manage their affairs upon their return to Yathrib.¹

The initial Stages of emigration to Yathrib

Despite all the precautions that the Holy Prophet and the people of Yathrib had taken, Quraysh found out the secrets behind this treaty. Consequently, they endeavored to arrest the treaty signers. Since those who paid homage to the Holy Prophet had left Mecca in time, they could flee to safety except for one who was arrested.

After the departure of the people of Yathrib, Quraysh increased their pressure on Muslims, because they realized that the Holy Prophet had safeguarded a stronghold in Yathrib; they therefore increased their pressures on Muslims. Once again, life in Mecca had become intolerable.² For this reason, the Holy Prophet ordered Muslims to emigrate to Yathrib, telling them, "Go to Yathrib; God will provide you with brethren and a safe place.”¹ For two and a half months, (i.e. from the middle of Dhu’l-^oijjah up to the end of ⁻afar)² Muslims gradually headed for Yathrib despite all hardships that Quraysh put in their way. Hence, no Muslim remained in Mecca except for the Holy Prophet, Imam `Alġ, Abġ-Bakr and some others. In the history of Islam, those Muslims who emigrated to Yathrib are called muhġjrġn (Emigrants) and those who helped out the Holy Prophet in Yathrib are called anġġjr.

¹ Al-Bayhaqī, op cit, pp. 132-140; Ibn Hushīm, op cit, pp. 81-90; al-Buljdhārī, op cit, pp. 240-254; Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 221-223; ṭabarī, op cit, pp. 237; ṭabarī, ʿIlm al-Warī, pp. 54; al-Majlisī, op cit, 19:25-26.

² al-Buljdhārī, op cit, 1:357; ṭabarī, op cit, 2:240-241; Ibn Sa'd, op cit, 1:226; al-Majlisī, op cit, pp. 26.

Conspiracy of murdering the Holy Prophet

After the settlement in Yathrib of Meccan Muslims, the chiefs of Quraysh realized that Yathrib had turned into a strong shelter for the Holy Prophet and his followers, and that people of Yathrib were ready to fight for their faith. For this reason, they feared the Holy Prophet's emigration. This matter caused the Quraysh to face several problems:

(1) Muslims were no longer under their domination and control, because Yathrib was an independent city and Quraysh had no power there.

(2) Since people of Yathrib had convened a war treaty with the Holy Prophet, he might then start a siege on Mecca for revenge.³

(3) Even without a probable war, Quraysh were still at a loss, because Yathrib was a lucrative market for their merchants and they would face economic disasters through losing control over this city.

¹ Ibn Hushjm, op cit, 2:111; Ibn Shahrjshfb, al-Manjqib 1:182, Ibn Kathqr, al-Bidjyah wa'l-Nihjyah 3:169.

² °alabç, al-Sçrah al-°alabiyyah 2:189.

³ op cit.

(4) Yathrib was on the trade route from Mecca to Damascus and Muslims could easily make this route unsafe and vulnerable; they might also jeopardize trade as a whole.

These worries forced the chiefs of Quraysh to gather at Ḍj̣r al-Nidwah (the consular center) for further consultation and deliberations. Some proposed that the Holy Prophet be exiled or imprisoned. However, these two proposals were rejected for certain reasons. Finally, they decided to murder him although such an act would not look very simple, because Baṇʿ-Ḥ̣shim would seek revenge. To avoid such expected vengeance, they decided to appoint one young man from every tribe so that they could murder him in his bed. In this way, Baṇʿ-Ḥ̣shim could not rise to avenge because the assassination would have taken place with several men from different tribes; and Baṇʿ-Ḥ̣shim could not fight all these tribes; so, they would have to receive ransom and blood-money and the story would come to an end. To carry out their plot, chiefs of Quraysh selected the first night of Raḅʿ al-Awwal. God refers to their conspiracy with the following words:

And when those who disbelieved devised plans against you that they might confine you, slay you, or drive you away; and they devised plans and Allah too had arranged a plan; and Allah is the best of planners. (8:30)

The Prophet's Migration

Through Divine revelation, the Holy Prophet knew about the conspiracy of Ḍir al-Nidwah; he was then ordered by God to leave Mecca. He informed Imam `Alī

(a.s) about his plan and ordered him to replace him in bed that night and cover himself with his bedspread. Imam `Alç (a.s) immediately accepted this mission.

Accompanied by AbŒ- Bakr, the Holy Prophet headed for Thawr Cave to the south of Mecca that night and stayed there for three days until chiefs of Quraysh despaired of finding him. He wanted to find a safe time to continue his migration. God, in the Holy Qur'jn, refers to the Holy Prophet's loneliness and to the worries of his companion. Despite all precautions actions that the chiefs of Quraysh had taken, they could not locate the Holy Prophet:

If you will not aid him, Allah certainly being the second of the two, when they were both in the cave, when he said to his companion: Grieve not, surely Allah is with us, So Allah sent down His tranquility upon him and strengthened him with hosts which you did not see, and made lowest the word of those who disbelieved; and the word of Allah that is the highest; and Allah is Mighty, Wise. (9:40)

A Great Sacrifice

That night, Imam `Alç (a.s) replaced the Holy Prophet in bed. The armed forces of Quraysh besieged the Holy Prophet's house. In the morning, they drew their swords and entered the house in a rampage, but they found Imam `Alç, not the Holy Prophet, in the bed. Realizing that they had been betrayed, they charged against `Alç. Drawing his sword, he stood opposite against and refused to tell them where the Holy Prophet was.¹

¹ The event of Djr al-Nidwah (House of Consultation) and Laylat al-Mabçt (the Night of Staying) have been recorded in the following

Anybody who would replace the Holy Prophet in bed had little chance to survive. However, `Alç, who had replaced the Holy Prophet in bed many times before that event, such as he had done when they were besieged in AbŒ-±jlib Col, in purpose of securing his safety, sacrificed his life to protect the Holy Prophet's. Referring to this bravery and sacrifice of Imam `Alç, Almighty God says:

And among men is he who sells himself to seek the pleasure of Allah; and Allah is Affectionate to the servants. (2:207) reference books, yet with little difference: Tjrçkh al-±abarç 2:242-245; al-Sçrah al-Nabawiyyah 2:124-128; Al-±abaqjt al-Kubrj 1:227-228; Dalj'il al-Nubuwwah 2:147; Ansjb al-Ashrjç 1:259- 260; al-Kjmil fç'l-Tjrçkh 2:101-103; Tjrçkh al-Ya`qEbç 2:32; Çljm al-Warj, pp. 61; Shaykh al-±Œsç's al-Amjç, pp. 245- 247 and 463- 471; Ibn ShahrjshŒb's Manjqib 1:182- 183; al-Khawjrzmi's Manjqib, p73; al-Karjçakç's Kanz al-Fawj'id 2:55; Ibn Kathçr's al-Bidjyah wa'l-Nihjyah 3:175-180; Ibn Hushjm's al-Sçrah al-Nabawiyyah 2:189-206; al-KhaŒçb al-Baghdjç's Tjrçkh Baghdjd 13:191-192; Bi'jr al-Anwjr 19:47- 65.

Exegetes of the Holy Qur'jn agree that this verse was revealed on account of the sacrifice and bravery of `Alç at that night, which is called laylat al-mabçt.¹

¹ Al-Fattjl al-NaysjbŒrç, Rawbat al-Wj'içn, pp. 117; Ibn al-Athçr, Usd al-Ghjbah 4:25; Shablanjç, Nçr al-AbŒjr, pp. 86; ±abarsç, Majma` al-Bayjn 1:301; Ibn Abç'l-°adçd, Shar' Nahj al-Baljghah 13:262; SibŒ ibn al-Jawzç, Tadhkirat al-Khawjç, pp. 35; AbŒ-Bakr °amawç, Thamarat al-Awrjq, pp. 20; `Alljmah Amçnç, al-Ghadçr 2:48. `Alljmah Amçnç has reported this event from different reference books, such as, al-Mu`affar's Dalj'il al-`idq 2:80. Al-Mu`affar, al-Tha`labç, al-QanadŒç, al-°jkim al-NaysjbŒrç, Almad ibn °anbal, AbŒ'l-Sa`jdjt, al-Ghazzjlç, al-Fakhr al-Rjzç, and al-Dhahbç—all

Referring to the conspiracy of Quraysh during that dangerous night, Imam `Alç, in one of his sermons, describes his mental condition as follows:

The Prophet ordered me to spend that night on his bed (while he would be leaving for Medina) and use my life as a shield for the protection of his life. I accepted it on the spot. I would be glad to die for him. The Prophet left me and I slept on his bed. The Quraysh armed forces entered, hoping to murder him. When they charged at the room where I was staying, I stood up, drew my sword and protected myself. This is the issue of which God is aware and people know.”¹

The Prophet's Arrival at Qubî

Prior to his departure from Mecca, the Holy Prophet asked Imam `Alç to give back people's deposits² and prepare for the departure of his daughter, Fîşimah, and some other men and women from Banî-Hîshim, who had not yet departed Mecca.³

On the fourth of Rabç` al-Awwal (the 14th year after prophethood), the Holy Prophet left Thawr Cave for Yathrib.⁴ Eight days after that, he arrived at the district of these Sunni master scholars report that this verse was revealed about Imam `Alç's self-sacrifice at that night.

¹ - adÊq, al-Khiÿl 2:367; Mufçd, al-Ikhtiÿÿ, pp. 165.

² Ibn Hushîm, al-Sçrah al-Nabawiyyah 2:129; ±abarç, op cit, 2:247; al-Bulîdharç, Ansîb al-Ashrîf 1:261; Ibn Shahrîshÿb, al-Manîqib 1:183.

³ Shaykh al-±Êsç, al-Amîlç, pp. 468; Mufçd, al-Ikhtiÿÿ, pp. 147; al-SuyÊşç, Tîrçekh al-Khulafî, pp. 166.

⁴ Mu'ammad Ibn Sa'd, Al-±abaqî al-Kubrî 1:292; al-Majlisç, Bi'îr al-Anwîr 19:87.

Qubî, on the outskirts of Yathrib, where the tribe Banî-`Amr ibn `Awf lived.¹ He waited there for a few days, waiting for `Alç's arrival. During this time, he established a mosque there.²

After the Holy Prophet's migration, `Alç (a.s) stayed for three days in Mecca and carried out his obligations and tasks.³ He then accompanied his mother Fîşimah bint Asad and Fîşimah daughter of the Holy Prophet and Fîşimah daughter of al-Zubayr ibn `Abd al-Muşşalib and two others to Qubî where they joined the Holy Prophet.⁴

Arrival at Yathrib

Upon the arrival of `Alç at Qubî, the Holy Prophet headed for Yathrib with a group of Banî'l-Najjîr (his maternal uncles). On their way, he performed the first Friday Prayer at the resort of Banî-Sîlim ibn `Awf. Upon their arrival at Yathrib, they were passionately welcomed by people. The heads and chiefs of the tribes took the rein of the Holy Prophet's palfrey and begged him to stay with them. He answered, "Let the camel proceed; it has a mission to perform; wherever it sleeps, I will stay."

By this decision, the Holy Prophet most probably wanted not to give the honor of being the host to any

¹ Ibn Hushîm, op cit, pp. 137; ±abarç, op cit, pp. 248; ±abarsç, Îlîm al-Warî, pp. 64; al-Bulîdharç, op cit, pp. 263; al-Bayhaqç, Dalîl al-Nubuwwah 2:172

² Ibn Shahrîshÿb, op cit, op cit, 1:185; al-Bayhaqç, op cit, pp. 166, 172; ±abarç, op cit, 2:249.

³ Ibn Hushîm, op cit, pp. 138; ±abarç, op cit, pp. 249.

⁴ Ibn Shahrîshÿb, op cit, pp. 183; see Îlîm al-Warî, pp. 66; Tîrçekh al-Ya`qÿbç 2:34

special group so that he could avoid future conflicts. His discretion was similar to one concerning the place of the installation of the Black Stone of the Kaaba.

Finally, the camel came to rest in the district of Banī-l-Najjār, on a piece of land belonging to the two orphans, close to the house of Abī-Ayyūb Anṣārī (Khilid ibn Zayd Khazrajī). All people were now crowding around the Holy Prophet; they asked him to give them the honor to be their guest. Abī-Ayyūb took the Holy Prophet's baggage to his own home and the Holy Prophet followed. He stayed there until the Masjid al-Nabī (The Prophet's Mosque) was established and there was a room built next to it for the Holy Prophet to live in.¹

The Start of the Hijri Calendar

The Prophet's migration was the basis of a great change; it was a focal point in the progress of Islam. Due to this historic event, Muslims were free from shackles and they could live freely and run gatherings. This was of utmost significance at that time. If this migration had not occurred, Islam would have been strangled in Mecca and it would have never had any chance to grow. After the migration, Muslims could establish their political and military organization and Islam grew in the Arabian Peninsula.

However, the following two questions require answer: Who established this calendar for the first time? Since when was it put into effect? Muslim historians unanimously agree that this feat was done by `Umar ibn al-Khaṣṣīb after consultation and deliberations with the Holy Prophet's grand companions.¹ However, another research indicates that the initiator for this feat was the Holy Prophet himself. Some great Muslim historians have written that the Holy Prophet, after his migration to Yathrib in Rabī` al-Awwal, ordered that events should be referred in relation to this day.² The documents for this claim are some of the Holy Prophet's letters, documents and communications which are handed down to us and dated from the above date. There are two samples here:

¹ op cit.

(1) The Holy Prophet signed a treaty with the Jews of Muqna ending with the following statement: Written by `Alī ibn Abī-ṭlib in the ninth year of Hegira.³

(2) In a treaty with the Christians of Najrīn, we read the following: The Holy Prophet ordered `Alī to write down: This treaty is signed in the fifth year of Hegira.⁴

Based on some documents, the recording of events and affairs up to the fifth year of Hegira took place on the basis of months alone. Here are some such documents:

Abī-Sa`d Khidrī says: Fasting during the month of Ramaḍān was enacted as obligatory one month after the change of the kīblah (i.e. the direction faced in prayers)

¹ Tjṛekh al-Ya`qūbī 2:135; Mas`ūdī, al-Tanbēh wa'l-Ishrīf, pp. 252, Ibn al-Athār, Al-Kimīl fī'l-Tjṛekh 1:10; `Abd al-Qādir Badrīn, Tahdhīb Tjṛekh Dimashq 1:23-24.

² Tjṛekh al-ṭabarī 2:252; Nūr al-Dīn al-Samhūdī, Wafī' al-Wafī' 1:248; al-Majlisī, Bi'ir al-Anwār 40:218 as reported by Ibn Shahrīshīb.

³ al-Bulḍharī, Futū' al-Buldān, pp. 71-72. In the body of this document, the name of `Alī ibn Abī-ṭlib is recorded; see 3:46-48.

⁴ `Abd al-`ayy al-Kittānī, al-Tarīḥ al-Idrīyyah 1:181.

during the eighteenth month of Hegira.¹

ʿAbdullāh Ibn Unays, the commander of the army sent to war against Sufyān ibn Kḥlīd writes: I left Medina on Monday, the fifth of Muḥarram; the fiftieth month of Hegira.”²

Muḥammad ibn Maslamah, recounting the campaign against the tribe of Qurṣi,³ writes: I left Medina on the tenth of Muḥarram and returned on the last night of Muḥarram, the fiftieth month after Hegira, after a leave of nineteen days.”⁴

For these reasons, the founder of the Hijri calendar was the Holy Prophet;⁵ and since, in the reign of ʿUmar, there appeared some disagreements on the exact dates of some historical events,⁶ he formalized this calendar on the sixteenth year of Hegira, and in place of Rabʿ al-Awwal—the month in which the Holy Prophet arrived in Medina—he appointed Muḥarram as the starting point of the Hijri calendar.⁷

¹ ʿUsayn Diyārbakr, Tj̣ṛḳh al-Khaṃs 1:368.

² al-Wiqid, al-Magḥẓe 2:531.

³ A branch of Banī-Bakr tribe.

⁴ al-Wiqid, op cit, pp. 534.

⁵ Murtaḥī al-ʿaḥīl, al-ʿaḥīl min Ṣ̣rat al-Naḅī al-Aḥīl 3:55.

⁶ ʿAbbar, op cit, pp. 252; Ibn Katḥir, al-Biḍyah waʾl-Niḥyah 7:73-74; Ibn Aḅī ʿAḍd, Sharʾ Naḥj al-Baḷghah 12:74; Ibn al-Atḥar, Al-Ḳmil f̣ī ʾl-Ṭj̣ṛḳh 1:10-11.

⁷ Ibn Shahṛsḥḅ, Maṇqib 1:175; Murtaḥī al-ʿaḥīl, al-ʿaḥīl min Ṣ̣rat al-Naḅī al-Aḥīl 3:35. Refer to this book for further information.

CHAPTER TWO

The Prophet's Major proceedings in Medina

The Construction of a Mosque

Having settled in Yathrib,¹ the Holy Prophet deemed necessary to construct a mosque in order to provide Muslims with a center for religious education and a place for their congregation at Friday Prayers. For this reason, he purchased the ground on which the camel had sat on his first arrival and which belonged to the two orphans, from their guardian and constructed a mosque with the assistance of Muslims.² This mosque came to be called Masjid al-Nabī. This was the Holy Prophet's first social act after Hegira. Upon the completion of the mosque, two chambers were erected close to it as a house for the Holy Prophet and his wives.³ Then, he left Abū-Ayyūb's home to live in his new chambers⁴ until his demise.

¹ Yiqūt al-°amaw, Mu`jam al-Buld 5:430.

² Ibn Sa`d, Al-°abāqit al-Kubrī 1:239; °abar, Tjrekħ 2:256; al-Bayhaq, Dal`il al-Nubuwwah 2:187; Ibn Shahrīshb, al-Manāqib 3:215; al-°alab, al-Serah al-°alabiyyah 2:252; al-Majlis, Bi`ir al-Anwār 19:124.

³ One of these two chambers was for Sawdah and the other for °a`ishah. See Ibn Sa`d, al-°abāqit al-Kubrī, op cit, pp. 240; al-Serah al-°alabiyyah, op cit, pp. 273.

⁴ Ibn Hushīm, Al-Serah al-Nabawiyyah 2:143; Ibn Shahrīshb,

The °uffah Followers

Upon the migration to Yathrib, the Anṣār housed the Muhājirīn and prepared their accommodation to the best of their abilities.¹ However, the °uffah followers were a group of strangers and poor individuals who were deprived of everything. A shade was established at the end side of the mosque as a temporary resort for them. The Holy Prophet took good care of them so far as he provided them with food and encouraged the rich Anṣār to help them. This group who were zealous in their religion, passionate and virtuous Muslims came to be called the °uffah followers.² Any new comer to Medina would join his relatives; otherwise, he joined the °uffah group. The number of this group varied: those who could find accommodation would leave the group and at times new comers would join them.³

General Treaty (Contract)

Having settled in Medina, the Holy Prophet worked for Manāqib, op cit, pp. 186.

¹ Ibn Wāṣil, Tjrekħ al-Ya`qub 2:34.

² Ibn Sa`d, op cit, pp. 255; Nār al-Dīn al-Samhūdī, Wafī' al-Wafī' 2:453-458; al-Majlis, Bi`ir al-Anwār 17:81, 22:66, 118, 310, 70:128-129, 72:38; Majma' al-Bayān 2:386; °Abd al-°ayy al-Kittīn, al-Tarjīb al-Idjriyyah 1:473-480.

³ Abū-Na`°m °fahīn, °ilyat al-Awliyyī' 1:339-340. Abū-Na`°m has given a detailed account of the °uffah Followers. He introduces all the members of this group who were fifty-one in number one by one. Among them, there is no name of any woman. Some of them were Bilāl, al-Barī' Ibn Mīlik, Jundab ibn Janīdah, °udhayfah ibn al-Yamīn, Khabbīb ibn al-Aratt, Dhu'l-Bilādayn, Salmīn, Sa`°d ibn Abū-Waqqīṣ, Sa`d ibn Mīlik (Abū-Sa`°d al-Khidr), Sīlim (Abū-°udhayfah's freed slave) and °Abdullāh ibn Mas`°d.

guaranteeing better social conditions for its people. In order to envisage and achieve great ultimate goals, he had to have peace and tranquility within the community. Of course, this was hard to achieve because the social structure in Medina was quite heterogeneous. There were different groups of Arabs who belonged to either the tribe of Aws or that of Khazraj. There were also some Jews living in this city who were in touch with those Arabs. There were also new Muslim comers from Mecca. This state of affairs could have ended in social unrest and disasters. For this reason, the Holy Prophet initiated the draft of the first constitution or the greatest historic document in Islam. This contract defined the rights of the citizens of the various groups and secured peace and justice for all citizens. Here, we will mention some items and paragraphs of this great contract:

(1) Muslims and Jews¹ constitute a single nation (ummah).

(2) Muslims and Jews are free to follow their faith.

(3) The emigrants of Quraysh, like the pre-Islamic days, should pay blood-money. If anyone of them commits homicide or becomes captive, others should pay the ransom in accordance with accepted terms among believers and free the captive in this way.

(4) Banʿ-ʿAmr ibn ʿAwf (a tribe of Anʿir) and other branches should pay blood-money like others.

¹ These are the Jews of Banʿ-ʿAmr ibn ʿAwf and other native Jews of Medina. However, the other three Jewish tribes of Banʿ-ʿQaynuqīʿ, Banʿ-ʿl-Naʿṣr, and Banʿ-ʿQurayʿah signed another treaty with the Holy Prophet the description of which will be given later.

(5) Nobody is allowed to give asylum to anybody's slaves, children or other family members without his consent.

(6) The signers of this contract collectively have to defend the city of Medina.

(7) Medina is a sacred city and any kind of bloodshed is forbidden there.

(8) The final judge and arbitrator for the settlement of the probable disagreements and conflicts will be Muʿammad (ﷺ).¹

A cursory look at the events of those days shows that this contract, which was concluded in the earlier months of the Holy Prophet's arrival at Medina,² was effective in securing tranquility for citizens. Up to the second year of Hegira, i.e. until the Battle of Badr which occurred due to the conspiracies of Banʿ-ʿQaynuqīʿ, no disturbance or turbulence is recorded.

A Brotherly Contract between Muhjir and Anʿir

The Prophet's second social act of significance during the first year of Hegira³ was the convention of a brotherly treaty between the Muhjir and Anʿir. Previously, these two Muslim groups had some rivalry over business and racial issues, because Anʿir had migrated from the south (Yemen) and were from the Qaṣṣini race, and Muhjir belonged to the Northern Arabs and to the Ḥadrami race; and during the days of Ignorance, there were severe racial conflicts between the two.

¹ Ibn Hushjm, op cit, 2:147-150. For more information concerning the paragraphs of this contract, see Furʿgh Abadiyyat 1:462-465.

² Muslim historians have asserted that this treaty was signed after the Holy Prophet's first sermon in Medina, which shows that it was one of the first actions of the Holy Prophet in this city.

³ That was five or eight months after Hegira. See al-Samhʿdʿ, op cit, 1:267; al-Majlisʿ, Biʿir al-Anwʿir 19:130.

Anṣār also used to work in agriculture and gardening, while the Meccan Arabs were traders who considered agriculture lowly and classless affair. Furthermore, these two groups had been brought up in two quite different social settings and now they were considered religious brethren. They had gathered in Medina and the probabilities existed that the remnants of the previous cultures still remained in their souls and minds; and that some ancient obstacles might be renewed. For this reason, the Holy Prophet initiated a brotherly contract between these two groups designating each Muhjir (Meccan emigrant) as a brother for a corresponding Anṣār,¹ except for Ḥalīf who was proclaimed a brother for every Muslim although the Holy Prophet fraternized him with himself.²

Of course, in concluding this brotherly convention between Muhjir and Anṣār, their degrees of faith and virtue were taken into consideration.¹ The brotherhood of the Holy Prophet and Ḥalīf, both of whom belonged to Muhjir is justifiable.

¹ Ibn Hushaym, op cit, 2:150; Ibn Saʿd, op cit, 1:238; ʿalab, op cit, 2:292; al-Majlis, op cit, 19:130. This fraternization was based on the common Faith, as confirmed in the following narration, “Allah’s Messenger associated as brothers between Muhjir and Anṣār by the brotherhood of faith.” See ʿalab, al-Amj, pp. 587.

² Ibn Hushaym, op cit, 2:150; ʿAsqalīnī, al-Iṣṣāḥ 2:507; Qanadẓ, Yanḥ 1:55; Sibṣ ibn al-Jawẓ, Tadhkirat al-Khawẓ, pp. 20, 22,23; Musnad Aʿmad; Ibn ʿAbd al-Barr, al-Isṣṣ 3:35; ʿalab, op cit, 2:292; Samḥḍ, op cit, 1:268; Al-Muʿaffar, Dalʿil al-ʿidq 2:268-271.

This treaty brought forth more unity among Muhjir and Anṣār. This is shown in the financial support of Anṣār to Muhjir.

At the time of the distribution of the booties of the Battle of Banī-Naṣr, Anṣār gave them all to Muhjir.² Anṣār’s immense generosity caused Muhjir to thank them in the presence of the Holy Prophet.³ God has appreciated their benevolence in the following words:

It is the poor who fled, those who were driven from their homes and their possessions, seeking grace of Allah and His pleasure, and assisting Allah and His Apostle: These it is that are the truthful.

And those who made their abode in the city and in the faith before them love those who have fled to them, and do not find in their hearts a need of what they are given, and prefer them before themselves though

¹ Qanadẓ, op cit, 1:55 as quoted from Musnad Aʿmad; Amṣ, al-Ghadḥ 3:112; Murṭaḥ al-ʿamīl, al-ʿaḥ min Ṣḥrat al-Nabḥ al-ʿam 3:60; ʿalab, al-Amj, pp. 587.

The reports of the brotherhood between Imam Ḥalīf and the Holy Prophet are authentic. Accordingly, the statements of Ibn Taymiyah and Ibn Kathḥr reveal their personal attitudes. They lack any scientific authenticity. See al-Ghadḥ 3:112-125, 174, 227 and 7:336.

² Al-Wiqid, al-Maghẓ 1:379; Ibn Shabbah, Tirḥ al-Madḥnah al-Munawwarah 2:289.

³ Musnad Aʿmad 3:204; ʿalab, op cit, 2:292; Ibn Kathḥr, op cit, 3:338; Ibn Shabbah, op cit, pp. 490.

poverty may afflict them, and whoever is preserved from the niggardliness of his soul, these it is that are the successful ones.

Nonaggression Pact with Three Jewish Tribes

Besides a general treaty in which both Aws and Khazraj and other Jews of these two tribes had participated, the Holy Prophet convened separate treaties with the three Jewish tribes of Banī-Qaynuqā', Banī'l-Naḍir and Banī-Qurayyah. This treaty could be termed a nonaggression pact.

As we have already said, these three tribes lived in Medina and its suburbs.¹ In this contract, the signatories

¹ There are disagreement among historians concerning the birthplace, previous homeland, and lineage of these three Jewish tribes. It is said that after the pressures which were leveled at them by the Roman Empire at Damascus, the Jews came to the Arabian Peninsula, specifically Yathrib, and lived there. See Mu'jam al-Buldīn 5:84; Wafī' al-Wafī' 1:160.

Then, the Qaṣṣini tribes, namely Aws and Khazraj, went there to live after the destructions of the Ma'rib Dam. See Mu'jam al-Buldīn 1:36; Ibn al-Athar, Al-Kimil fī'l-Tjrekḥ 1:656.

As we have already said, there were continual conflicts between these two groups. However, some historians contend that they were the Arab natives of the Arabian Peninsula and they had adopted this religion due to Jewish propagation. See Almad Sṣah, Mufaṣṣal al-'Arab wa'l-Yahfḥf' l-Tjrekḥ, pp. 627-629.

Some others ascribe the Jewish settlement at Yathrib to the time of Prophet Moses. This, However, seems to be legendary. See Mu'jam al-Buldīn 5:84; Wafī' al-Wafī' 1:157.

According to some historical documents and narrations, the Jews, having realized some of the signs of the forthcoming advent of the Promised Prophet, went to Fadak, Khaybar, Taymī' and Yathrib in were obliged:

(1) Not to cooperate with the enemies of Muslims and not to provide them with horses and weaponry;

(2) Not to take any step against the Holy Prophet and Muslims;

(3) To be punished by the Holy Prophet through killing them or enslaving their children and wives or confiscating their wealth if they ever tried to ignore any article of this contract.

This contract was signed by the heads of the three abovementioned tribes, i.e. Mukhayraq, ʿuyay ibn search of his emigration. They thus settled there. See Mu'jam al-Buldīn 5:84; Wafī' al-Wafī' 1:160; Shaykh al-Kulaynī, al-Rawṣah min al-Kif, pp. 309; al-Majlisī, Bi'r al-Anwār 15:226.

This issue is in harmony with the first hypothesis. Upon receiving a lot of pressures from Rome, the Jews might have headed of this place from prophecies. Some narrations confirm this issue. See Badrīn, Tahdhīb Tjrekḥ Dimashq 1:351; Wafī' al-Wafī' 1:160.

There are some disagreements concerning the lineage of these three Jewish tribes as to whether they belonged to the Israelites or the Arabs. The majority of scholars emphasize the second view. See Almad Sṣah, op cit, pp. 627. Yaḥqḥb, too considers the tribes of Banī'l-Naḍir and Banī-Qurayyah as Arabs. See Tjrekḥ al-Yaḥqḥb 2:40, 42; Wafī' al-Wafī' 1:162.

The following evidence confirms the validity of the first view:

(1) Numerous verses of the Holy Qur'ān are addressing the Jews as Israelites.

(2) The Jews' opposition to the Holy Prophet is based on racial grounds; that is to say, the Holy Prophet did not belong to the Israelites.

(3) Arab genealogists have not referred to these Jews as Arabs.

Akhṣab and Ka'b ibn Asad.¹ Apparently, in those days the Jews neither felt any threat from Muslims nor reckoned their impartiality as an asset, since they assumed the Muslims' other enemies would suffice them. That was the reason for their taking the lead in signing the contract.² Thus, through these proceedings, the environments of Medina and the neighboring districts became calm; and the Holy Prophet was at ease. Now it was the time for him to confront Quraysh's inevitable threats and to prepare himself for the establishment of a new society.

The Hypocrites

In addition to the Jews, there was another group of opponents, called munḥiqḥ (hypocrites) by the Holy Qur'ān. They were formed after the Holy Prophet's migration to Yathrib. The members of this group called themselves Muslims on the surface, but they were actually either idolaters³ or Jews.⁴ Having observed Islam's daily increasing popularity and their lacking of power, the hypocrites kept their faces, pretended to be Muslims and entered the rank of Muslims, but behind the curtains, they had some secret affairs with the Jews and conspired against Muslims. Their leader was `Abdullāh

¹ ṭabarsī, ʿIlm al-Warī, pp. 69; al-Majlisī, Bi'jr al-Anwār 1:176, 365, 367 and 2:464; Ibn Hushām, al-S̄rah al-Nabawīyah 3:231; Tjrekh al-Ya`qūbī, 2:43. After that, the Holy Prophet punished these three tribes because they breached their treaties with him.

² al-Majlisī, op cit, pp. 69, 110.

³ Ibn Hushām, op cit, 2:160, 166; al-Nuwayrī, Nihyat al-ʿArab 1:332.

⁴ ṭabarsī, al-S̄rat al-ʿalabiyyah 1:337; al-Nuwayrī, op cit, p339; Ibn Hushām, op cit, pp. 174.

ibn Ubayy who had prepared himself for ascendance to power in Yathrib. However, he was deprived of such leadership due to the Holy Prophet's arrival at the political arena. For this reason, he secretly hated the Holy Prophet.¹

The hypocrites performed a series of destructive actions against Islam. In S̄rahs al-Baqarah (No. 2), ʿl-Imrīn (No. 3), al-Tawbah or Barī'ah (No. 9), al-Nisī' (No. 4), al-Mī'dah (No. 5), al-Anfīl (No. 8), al-ʿAnkabūt (No. 29), al-Aʿzīb (No. 33), al-Fatḥ (No. 48), al-ʿadḥ (No. 57), al-Munḥiqḥ (No. 63), al-ʿashr (No. 59) and al-Taḥrīm (No. 66), the Holy Qur'ān has referred to them. It was more difficult for the Holy Prophet to confront this group than the unbelievers or the Jews, because he could not fight them since they pretended to be Muslims. The sabotage and obstruction of this group continued in a systematized way up to the death of `Abdullāh ibn Ubayy in the ninth year of Hegira.² Later, this movement lost its vigor gradually.

¹ Ibn Hushām, op cit, pp. 237-238; al-Bayhaqī, op cit, 2:165; al-Nuwayrī, op cit, 1:338; Ibn Shabbah, Tjrekh al-Mad̄nah al-Munawwarah 1:357; Dāilīn, Al-S̄rah al-Nabawīyah wa'l-ʿahjir al-Mu'ammadiyyah 1:184.

² Mas'ūdī, al-Tanbēh wa'l-Ishrīf, pp. 237.

CHAPTER THREE

Conspiracies of the Jews

The Jews' Sabotage

The Jews, like Christians, were aware of the advent of the Holy Prophet. In the word of the Holy Qur'ān, the people of the Book considered the Holy Prophet their own child:

Those whom We have given the Book recognize him as they recognize their sons. (2:146)

They had seen his attributes in the Torah and the Gospel;¹ they were therefore expected to become Muslims even earlier than the tribes of Aws and Khazraj, because the Jews had threatened them that they would take revenge on them when the Promised Prophet would come with the Divine Mission. However, only a few of them accepted Islam. At the beginning of Hegira, however, their relationships with Muslims were usual as is concluded from their signing of the nonaggression pact with the Holy Prophet. However, this tranquility did not last long; after a while, they started quarrelling. Among their sabotages was their denial of the Holy Prophet's unique attributes by claiming that they could not find Mu'ammad's traits and characteristics in their Book and that the attributes of the Promised Prophet could not be identified in the Holy Prophet.¹ The Holy Qur'ān has condemned this approach:

And when there came to them a Book from Allah verifying that which they have, and for a time they used to pray for victory against those who disbelieve. But when there came to them (prophet) that which they did not recognize, they disbelieved in him; so Allah's curse is on the unbelievers. (2:89)

The Jews engaged in sabotage through different approaches:

(1) They had irrational and illogical demands, such as receiving a letter from the skies.²

(2) They put out complicated religious questions to disturb the Muslims' thoughts and minds.³ However, they always received strong reactions and answers from the Holy Prophet.

(3) They endeavored to weaken the base of the Muslims' faith by saying:

Avow belief in that which has been revealed to those who believe, in the first part of the day, and disbelieve at the end of it, perhaps they go back on their religion. (3:72)

(4) They attempted to bring about division and turbulence among Muslims. Sha's Ibn Qays, a Jew, tried to enliven once again the old hatreds among Aws and Khazraj. However, this act became futile through the proper act of the Holy Prophet.⁴

¹ °alabç, op cit, 1:302; al-Bayhaqç, op cit, 2:186; Ibn Shahrjshfb, Manjib 1:51; al-Maghizç 1:367.

² Qur'ān 4:153; Qur'ān 3:183.

³ Ibn Hushjm, op cit, 2:160; Ibn Shahrjshfb, Manjib 1:54; °alabç, op cit, 1:321-322; Zaynç Daljn, Al-Sçrah al-Nabawiyah 1:178-180.

⁴ Ibn Hushjm, op cit, 2:204-205; °alabç, op cit, 2:319-320.

¹ Qur'ān 7:157; 2: 26, 89, 101; 3: 81, 187; 6: 114; 28: 52

Motives of the Jews' Oppositions

The Jews were generally interest-seeking, greedy and stubborn people.¹ The Holy Qur'ān regards the polytheists and them as the most violent enemies of Islam:

Certainly you will find the most violent of people in enmity for those who believe to be the Jews and those who are polytheists, and you will certainly find the nearest in friendship to those who believe to be those who say: We are Christians; this is because there are priests and monks among them and because they do not behave proudly. (5:82)

This was because these two groups were not rational beings and they did not stop showing their animosities and aggressions against Islam. The Jews opposed Islam for the following reasons:

(1) The Jews treated the Holy Prophet racially; they were jealous because he was Jew; rather an Arab.²

(2) Prior to the influence of Islam in Yathrib, the Jews enjoyed a better socio-economic status because they had had control over the economy of the city through crafts, industry, agriculture,³ and usury.¹ At the same time,

¹ Qur'ān, 2:96.

² Qur'ān 2:90, 109; 4:54; Ibn Hushīm, op cit, 2:160; Zayn al-Dīn, op cit, 1:176; al-Maghīzī 1:365.

³ Banī-Qaynuqī' were engaged in silversmith's trade. (Montgomery, Mu'ammad at Medina). There was a market in Medina carrying their name. (Ibn Shabbah, Tārīkh al-Madīnah al-Munawwarah 1:306; Yiq'at al-'amawī, Mu'jam al-Buld 4:424).

Banī'l-Naḍir and Banī-Quray'ah constructed housing buildings and castles in the outskirts of Medina. They were engaged in agriculture and gardening. (Yiq'at al-'amawī, op cit; al-Sam'ānī, Wafī' al-Wafī' 1:161) taking advantage of the differences between Aws and Khazraj, the Jews weakened their powers. Through their contracts with Banī-Qaynuqī' who belonged to the tribe of Khazraj and through unity with Banī'l-Naḍir and Banī-Quray'ah who belonged to the tribe of Aws, they could easily create animosity between these two tribes.² After the Holy Prophet's migration, the two tribes united and went under the banner of Islam thus increasing the power of Islam tremendously. The Jews realized that the dominating power would very soon be in the hands of Muslims and they would inevitably be the big losers. This situation was quite unbearable for them.

(3) The Jewish clerks and rabbis were prestigious; they enjoyed a lot of respect among the illiterate people who blindly followed them without questioning. At times, these clerks and rabbis issued orders contrary to God's. Nevertheless, people followed them without asking.³ Furthermore, they used to receive a lot of gifts and charities as the protectors of the Torah. They therefore feared that they might lose this source of income with the progress of Islam.⁴

(4) They showed animosity to Archangel Gabriel who brought God's messages to Mu'ammad (ﷺ);⁵ they used this as an excuse to antagonize the Holy Prophet.

¹ Qur'ān 4:161.

² Ibn Hushīm, Al-Sīrah al-Nabawīyah 2:188.

³ Qur'ān 9:31.

⁴ Qur'ān 2:79, 3:187, 9:34; al-Bayhaqī, Dalīl al-Nubuwwah.

⁵ Qur'ān 2:97-98; Ibn Sa'd, Al-ṭabaqāt al-Kubrī 1:175; al-Ḍalabī, al-Sīrah al-ḍalabīyah 1:329.

(5) The Holy Qur'ān condemned many of the Jews' acts and behaviors and many of the Torah's instructions¹ and disagreed with the Jews in many ordinances.² This issue had its roots in the past. Prior to Islam, they were culturally superior to the idolaters and they were respected by the unbelievers.³ After the advent of Islam, this trend, more or less, continued; some times Muslims in Medina used to ask them some religious questions and they translated the Torah into Arabic for Muslims, while their religious data were mostly skewed and erroneous. For this reason, the Holy Prophet recommended Muslims not to accept their statements.⁴ Once, the Holy Prophet told `Umar ibn al-Khaṣṣib, "I swear to God in Whose hands is my soul that if Moses were alive now, he would follow me."⁵ These issues added to the Jews' hatred and enmity towards Islam; they sometimes used to say, "This man has planned to disagree with all of our plans."⁶

Changing the kiblah

While living in Mecca and some time after Hegira, the Holy Prophet used to pray facing the direction of Jerusalem. After the Jews surfaced their enmity, they used this issue as a means to oppose him; they said, "Muḥammad is not independent in his religion; he uses

¹ Qur'ān 4:46, 155-158, 9:30.

² Murtaḥī al-`amīl, al-`a'ī min Sūrat al-Nabī al-A`am 3:106; `a'ī' al-Bukhārī 7:486; `a'ī' Muslim 14:80.

³ Murtaḥī al-`amīl, op cit, 1:175-176.

⁴ `a'ī' al-Bukhārī, 9:772.

⁵ `alab, op cit, 1:372; Ibn Shahrīshb, Manḥiqib 1:52.

⁶ `alab, op cit, 2:332.

our kiblah through different techniques." They over exaggerated this issue. Now, the Holy Prophet was under undue pressure. At nights, he used to stare at the skies, waiting for some revelations so that the Jews' propaganda could be stopped. Seventeen months after Hegira,¹ while he was performing the Noon (ṣuhr) Prayer with Muslims facing Jerusalem, the Angel of Revelation came to the Holy Prophet and ordered him to change the direction of kiblah towards Kaaba; therefore, he faced the Kaaba at that very prayer. This was God's command:

Indeed, We see the turning of your face to heaven, so We shall surely turn you to a kiblah which you shall like; turn then your face towards the sacred mosque. And wherever you are, turn your face towards it, and those who have been given the Book most surely know that it is the truth from their Lord; and Allah is not at all Heedless of what they do. (2:144)

The change of kiblah, which brought forth independence for Muslims, brought disastrous consequences for the Jews. They looked for another excuse and asked, "Why have Muslims put aside their previous kiblah?" Prior to the change of kiblah, God made the Holy Prophet realize their position; He told him that east or west, everywhere belonged to God and people should face any direction which He orders when they perform their prayers. God told the Holy Prophet that no

¹ Ibn Wazīl, Tārīkh al-Ya`qūbī 2:34; Ibn Sa'd, op cit, 1:242; al-`urr al-`amīl, Was'il al-Sha`h, pp. 216; ṣabī'ī, al-Maẓn 1:331.

The date of the change of kiblah is reported to have been between seven and eighteen months after the migration. See Wafī' al-Wafī' 1:361-364; Bi'ir al-Anwār 19:113. As for `Allīmah ṣabī'ī, he confirms that it was seventeen months after the migration.

place on the earth has any innate honor of its own:

The fool will say: what has turned them from their kiblah which they had? Say: The east and the west belong only to Allah; He guides whom He likes to the right path. (2:142)

With this answer, the Jews had no excuse to delve into negative propaganda and with the change of kiblah, the common grounds between the two old and new religions were gone and the relationship between the two weakened:

And even if you bring to those who have been given the Book every sign, they would not follow your kiblah nor can you be a follower of their kiblah; neither are they the followers of each other's kiblah; and if you follow their desires after the knowledge that has come to you, then you shall most surely be among the unjust. (2:145)

What is understood from the Qur'ān is to stop the Jews' nagging and to test Muslims as to what degree they are obedient to Allah:

And thus We have made you a medium (just) nation that you may be witnesses over the people and that the Apostle may be a witness over you; and We did not make that which you would have to be the kiblah but that We might distinguish him who follows the Apostle from him who turns back upon his heels, and this was surely hard except for those whom Allah has guided aright; and Allah was not going to make your faith to be fruitless; most surely Allah is Affectionate, Merciful. (2:143)

In some narrations, this test of faith has been interpreted in the following way: Meccan people preferred the Kaaba; but God made Jerusalem the kiblah to distinguish the true and genuine believers who, contrary to their own wishes and only for God's sake, worship Him in this issue from those acting obstinately. For the people of Medina who preferred Jerusalem, God made the Kaaba the Muslims' kiblah so that these two could be identified.¹

¹ ±abîṣabî'ç, al-Mæẓjn 1:333. Based on some reports, the Holy Prophet never turned his back to the Kaaba throughout his residence in Mecca. See Wasj'il al-Shæ`ah 3:216.

However, the Holy Prophet considered the Kaaba to be equal to Jerusalem; therefore, he used to face both directions in prayer. See °alabç, al-Sçrah al-°alabiyyah 2:357.

CHAPTER FOUR

Establishment of Muslim Military Forces

Formation of the Islamic Army

During his stay in Mecca and propagation of Islam, the Holy Prophet acted only as a Divinely commissioned leader. His activities were restricted to guiding people and struggling against the idolaters. However, after he settled in Yathrib, his function included both religious and political leadership, because the social conditions had drastically changed in Medina and the Holy Prophet was taking great steps in founding a new society based on Islamic instructions. For this reason, he could clearly envisage the probable hardships and obstacles. As a farsighted political figure, he was constantly searching for proper political solutions. His convention of a brotherly treaty between two groups of Muslims; the initiation and completion of a general treaty; and the convening of a nonaggression pact with the Jews—all these were within his precautionary activities.

The Qur'anic texts carrying political and social orders that were revealed in Medina were all appropriate guidelines for the Holy Prophet's proceedings. Then, he was ordered to prepare for war and defense.¹

¹ Permission to fight is given to those upon whom war is made

Consequently, he decided to form a defense force. The establishment of such a force was significant because the Meccan unbelievers, who could no longer torture Muslims after the Holy Prophet's Hegira, might probably plot a military strike at the very center of Islam (i.e. Medina). For this reason, the Holy Prophet planned initial stages for the formation of an Islamic army so as to encounter any such probabilities. This army was initially very limited in human sources and military equipment. However, within a short time, it developed in both aspects. At the beginning of this army's formation, garrisons dispatched for military operations or surveillance did not exceed sixty; and this number did not exceed two hundred at most.¹ In the second year and the Battle of Badr, the number was a little more than three hundred. However, in the eighth year and during the Meccan siege, the number of the Islam's soldiers was nearly ten thousand well-equipped soldiers.

Thus, the trend of events showed that the Holy Prophet's predictions came true. Beginning with the second year, there were numerous conflicts and confrontations between the believers and the unbelievers. If Muslims had lacked the required military forces, they would have been completely wiped out by their enemies.²

because they are oppressed, and most surely Allah is well able to assist them; those who have been expelled from their homes without a just cause. (Qur'n, 22:39-40)

See al-M'ezjn 14:383; Tj'r'ekh Ya`q'eb' 2:36.

¹ Ibn al-Ath'ar, Al-Kj'mil f' l-Tj'r'ekh 2:112.

² The number of the wars in which the Holy Prophet took part is said to be twenty-six, while expeditions were thirty-six. See Ibn

Military Maneuvers

With the small number of the armed forces which the Holy Prophet had at his disposal, he prepared for a series of military operations which could not be considered full-fledged wars. In none of these maneuvers did any military confrontation occur. Examples of such expeditions were the following:

The 30-man strong expedition called °amzah ibn `Abd al-Muṣṣalib in the eighth month of Hegira chased the caravan of Quraysh on their return to Mecca.

The 60-man strong expedition called `Ubaydah ibn al-°irith in the eighth month of Hegira prosecuted Abf-Sufyjn.

The 20-man strong expedition called Sa`d Ibn Abf-Waqqi¥ in the ninth month of Hegira prosecuted the caravan of Quraysh but did not reach it.¹ In the eleventh month of Hegira, the Holy Prophet, accompanied by a group of Muslims, chased the caravan of Quraysh up to the land of Abwı but no confrontation took place. During Shahrjshfb, Manjqib 1:186; ±abarsf, l`lm al-Warj, pp. 72.

Some historians have considered the number of such expeditions to be more than this number. See Mas`Edf, Murfj al-Dhahab 2:282.

Bukhırf recognizes this number to be nineteen. See `a'cf' al-Bukhırf 6:327.

¹ al-Wıqidf, al-Maghjzcf 1:9-11; al-±abarcf, Tjrfkh al-Umam wa'l-Mulfk 2:259; Ibn Hushıj, al-Scfrah al-Nabawiyyah 2:245, 251. Ibn Isıq states that these expeditions took place in the second year of Hegira. (±abarcf: op cit). If we accept this, we have to set the date of the formation of the Islamic army at the second year of Hegira. This too, would not take away anything of the significance of the Holy Prophet's preventative procedures.

this expedition, he convened a treaty with the tribe of Banf-°amrah according to which they promised to remain impartial and not to cooperate with the enemies of Islam. In Rabf` al-Awwal (the twelfth month), the Holy Prophet chased Kurz ibn Jıbir al-Fahrcf, who had plundered a Medinan flock, up to the land of Badr but missed him. In the month of Jumıdjı al-°khir, the Holy Prophet, accompanied by one hundred and fifty (or two hundred) troops, chased the trade caravan of Quraysh, headed by Abf-Sufyjn on his journey to Damascus, but this time, he could not reach the caravan. However, during this time, he convened a treaty with the tribe Banf-Mudlij and returned to Medina.¹ These kinds of small military operations could be called military maneuvers and strength show, but not real wars.

The Prophet's Objectives of Military Maneuvers

According to several documents and pieces of evidence, the Holy Prophet's purpose behind these wars was neither plundering the enemies nor creating wars and conflicts, because, as we have already seen, the number of the Islamic troops was small if compared with the enemies. In some of these wars, An¥jr took part although they had promised, in the course of the treaty of the second `Aqabah, to protect the Holy Prophet at Medina and not to be involved in wars outside it.

Furthermore, the citizens of Medina were farmers and gardeners; they were not in the habit of plundering as the nomad tribes were. The conflicts between Aws and Khazraj were local conflicts and it was the Jews who ignited the fire of difference between these two tribes. They had never plundered any tribe. Furthermore, when confronted by enemies, Muslims never showed any inclination to war. ʿamzah, for example, avoided engaging himself in war when an impartial person acted as an intermediary to stop it.¹ Considering all these factors, the Holy Prophet carried out all those military maneuvers for specific objectives. The following were among his aims:

¹ al-Wıqidf, op cit, pp. 11-13; ±abarcf, op cit, pp. 259-261.

(1) The Holy Prophet aimed at threatening the trade route from Quraysh to Damascus. The Meccan trade caravans used to move between Medina and the shores of the Red Sea as they could not go more than 130 kilometers away from the city.² Through his maneuvers, the Holy Prophet wished to let Quraysh know that if they wanted to hinder the Muslims' free actions in Medina, their trade routes would be endangered and their goods could be confiscated by Muslims.³ This threat was definitely a warning for the Meccan unbelievers for whom trade was of vital significance. This treaty forced them to review their strategies against Muslims.

No doubt, Muslims were right in confiscating the Meccan goods and properties since they had forced Muhjirġn out of their homes in Mecca and had confiscated their belongings.⁴ It should be noted that the

¹ al-Wiqidġ, op cit, pp. 9.

² Montgomery, Mu'ammad at Medina, pp. 5.

³ Later on, this threat was implemented. As a consequence, Quraysh tried to find another route for trade because they worried about the cut off of the trade route to Damascus.

⁴ After the Holy Prophet's emigration, ʿAqġl confiscated his residential conflicts were not personal anymore; rather, these conflicts had turned into conflicts between two powers each of which did its best to weaken the other. Later on, this threat became real and Quraysh, having been worried about the cutting off of the trade route to Damascus, tried to find another route.

From Muslims' point of view, the economic damage to the enemy and the creation of worry and anxiety to them seemed more significant than the booties they could collect. This could be seen in Muslims' not receiving any wealth from the unbelievers at the expeditions of ʿAbdullġh Ibn Ja'sh and Badr.

(2) These maneuvers were a show of Muslims' military force and a warning to the Meccan unbelievers not to think of military expeditions against them. It was also aimed at showing the unbelievers that Muslims were area in Mecca as well as the houses of Banġ-Hġshim's emigrants. When the Holy Prophet conquered Mecca, he established a tent at ʿajġn outside Mecca. He was asked why he had not gone to his pervious house. He answered, "Has ʿAqġl left any house for us?" See al-Wiqidġ, al-Maghġzġ 3:828; Ibn Sa'd, Al-ġbaġit al-Kubrġ 2:136; Qasġalġn, al-Mawġhib al-Ludaniyyah 1:318.

ʿAqġl's heirs sold that house to al-ʿajġġ ibn Yġsuf's brother with one hundred thousand Dġnġrs! See ʿalabġ, al-Sġrah al-Nabawiyyah 1:101-102.

After the emigration of Banġ-Ja'sh ibn Ri'ġb, their houses were empty. Under the pretext that his daughter was the wife of one of those, Abġ-Sufyġn confiscated their houses. Ibn Hushġm, al-Sġrah al-Nabawiyyah 2:145.

Besides, when ġuhayb emigrated to Medina, The unbelievers started to chase him and took away from him his money but he escaped to safety (Ibn Hushġm, op cit, 2:121).

strong enough to defend themselves. While the Holy Prophet was in Mecca and the number of Muslims was small, chiefs of Quraysh could easily envisage their economic fall. Now that the city of Medina had turned into a stronghold for Islam, how could the money-minded Meccan people ever feel safe? For this reason, Muslims had to be prompt so that they could discourage the unbelievers from planning anything hostile against this city.

(3) Most probably, these military actions were meant to warn the Jews of Medina as well, who had revealed their enmity, so that they might stop their conspiracies and military operations.¹

The Expedition of `Abdullāh Ibn Jaʿsh

In the month of Rajab of the second year, the Holy Prophet sent `Abdullāh Ibn Jaʿsh and eight others on a reconnaissance mission. The Holy Prophet gave him a sealed letter and asked him to open it after two days of walking and do as he is directed to do and not to force any one of his followers to follow him. Having walked for two days, he opened the letter in which the following was written: "If you read my letter, continue with your journey and stand on the land of Nakhlah between Mecca and ʿijʿif. There, waylay the movements of Quraysh and inform us of the result."

`Abdullāh told his followers that he would follow the orders. He also told them that if they were ready to be martyred, they could stay lest they were free to leave him. All of them showed readiness. They therefore stayed at

¹ Mu'ammad ʿasanayn Haykal, ʿayit Mu'ammad, pp. 224-248.

Nakhlah. There was a Quraysh caravan, headed by `Amr al-ʿaṣram, returning to Mecca from ʿijʿif. `Abdullāh and his followers wished to attack the caravan but it was the last day of Rajab. They told each other that if Quraysh entered Mecca, they could not attack them; and if they attacked them there, they would disobey and violate the prohibition of war during the sacred months.

Finally, they attacked the caravan, killing `Amr and taking two prisoners. Then, they returned to Medina with the booties and the prisoners. However, the Holy Prophet was angry with them for their act. He even refused to receive the prisoners or the booties, saying, "I had already warned you not to fight during the sacred months."

This event had drastic consequences; Muslims did not appreciate this bloodshed during the sacred months and reprimanded `Abdullāh for his action. On the other hand, Quraysh used this event as a pretext to defame the Holy Prophet by accusing him of involvement in bloodshed during the sacred months. The Jews, too, started poisoning the environment by saying that Muslims were losers. At this time, the angel of revelation appeared to the Holy Prophet, conveying the following:

They ask you concerning the sacred month about fighting in it. Say: Fighting in it is a grave matter, and hindering men from Allah's way and denying Him, and hindering men from the sacred mosque and turning its people out of it are still graver with Allah, and persecution is graver than slaughter; and they will not cease fighting with you until they turn you back from your religion, if they can. (2:217)

With the revelation of these holy verses, which implicitly exonerated `Abdullāh, Quraysh was introduced as the agent of sedition and trouble and their sins were considered greater than the involvement in war and bloodshed during the sacred months. Upon the Quraysh representatives' request, the Holy Prophet released the prisoners one of whom became Muslim.¹

The Battle of Badr

This event, which took place following the Prophet's military maneuvers and the threat against the Quraysh trade route, was the first complete war between Muslims and the unbelievers. As we have seen, in the month of Jumʿad al-^akhir, the Holy Prophet chased Quraysh's caravan—headed by Abʿ-Ṣufyān—which was heading towards Damascus up to the land of Dhāt al-ʿUshayrah but he could not catch them. By sending spies to the district of Damascus, he knew about the caravan's return.² From an economic point of view, this is said to be one thousand and the worth of the merchandise is estimated as high as fifty-thousand Ḍḡnīrs. All Quraysh people had their shares in this investment.³

The natural route of the caravan crossed the district of Badr.⁴ In order to confiscate the goods,¹ the Holy Prophet

¹ Ibn Hushjm, al-Sʿrah al-Nabawīyyah 2:255; al-Bulḍharʿ Ansib al-Ashrif 1:371-372; al-Wiqidʿ, op cit, 1:13-19; al-ṭabarʿ, Tjṛḡkh al-Umam wa'l-Mulʿk 2:262-264; Ibn Shabbah, Tjṛḡkh al-Madʿnah al-Munawwarah 1:472-477.

² al-Wiqidʿ, op cit, 1:20.

³ Al-Wiqidʿ, op cit, pp. 27; al-Majlisʿ, Bi'jr al-Anwjr 19:245-274.

⁴ Badr is located in the southwest of Medina. Today, it is a city. The highway between Jeddah and Mecca passes through this district. It is 153 kilometers away from Medina and 343 kilometers from Mecca. See Mu'ammad `Abduh al-Yamīnʿ, Badr al-Kubrj, pp. 25.

had three hundred and thirteen troops.² With the minimum amount of ammunition,³ he headed for Badr. On his way back from Damascus, Abʿ-Ṣufyān became aware of the Holy Prophet's decision and sent a messenger to Mecca asking for help.⁴ He changed his direction to the shores of the Red Sea and speedily got the caravan out of the danger zone.⁵ Upon Abʿ-Ṣufyān's call, nine hundred and fifty soldiers⁶ left Mecca towards Medina to help the caravan. Abʿ-Ṣufyān's obstinacy led his troops to the battle. While Muslims were looking for the signs of the Quraysh caravan, the Holy Prophet became aware of the caravan's arrival at Badr. They had to decide on the spot. This decision was hard to make because Muslims had time to confiscate the caravan, not to be involved in a war the troops of which were three

Since the construction of Medina-Mecca highway, pilgrims do not cross this direction during the ʿajj ceremonies.

¹ Ibn Hushjm, op cit, 2:258.

² Mu'ammad ibn Sa'd, Al-ṭabarʿ al-Kubrj 2:20, ṭabarʿ, op cit, 2:272.

³ Muslims had seventy camels; several persons would ride one camel. (al-Wiqidi, op cit, pp. 26; Ibn Hushjm, op cit, pp. 264.) They had only one horse. (Shaykh al-Mufʿd, al-Irshjd, pp. 73; Ibn Shahrīshʿb, Manjib, 1:187; al-Majlisʿ, Bi'jr al-Anwjr 19:323; Musnad A'mad 1:125) Some historians say that they had two horses. (al-Wiqidʿ, op cit, pp. 26; Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 12-24; Tjṛḡkh Ya'qʿbʿ 2:37). They had six armors and eight swords. (Ibn Shahrīshʿb, op cit, pp. 187; al-Majlisʿ, op cit, 19:323)

⁴ Ibn Hushjm, op cit, 2:258; Al-Wiqid, op cit, 1:28.

⁵ Ibn Hushjm, op cit, pp. 270; Al-Wiqid, op cit, pp. 41.

⁶ Ibn Hushjm, op cit, 2:269; Ibn Sa'd, op cit, 2:15; Is op cit, 1:187; al-Majlisʿ, op cit, 19:219.

times more numerous than theirs. If they decided to go back, they would lose the effects of their military maneuvers and the enemy would chase them and attack Medina. So, a military council was held in which the Holy Prophet sought consult of Muslims in general and Anṣār in particular. Miqdād's zealous speech and Sa'd ibn `Abdah's enthusiastic encouragements brought forth the decision to fight.¹

The war started on the seventeenth of Ramaḍān.² At first, `amzah, `Ubaydah and `Alq killed Shaybah, `Utbah and Walīd Ibn `Utbah.³ This was a hard blow over the chiefs of Quraysh.⁴ Then, war broke out. The troops of Islam overcame and by noon, the battle ended with the defeat and retreat of the enemy troops. Out of the unbelievers' troops, seventy were killed⁵ and another seventy were taken as prisoners.⁶ From the Muslim troops, only fourteen were martyred.⁷

Then, with the permission of the Holy Prophet, the

¹ Ibn Hushīm, op cit, pp. 266-268; al-Wiqidī, op cit, pp. 48-49; Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 14.

² Ibn Hushīm, op cit, pp. 278; Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 15-19; pp. 20.

³ Ibn Hushīm, op cit, pp. 277; Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 17-23; al-Majlisī, op cit, 19:279; Ibn al-Athar, Al-Kimīl fī l-Tjrekh 2:125.

⁴ Shaykh Mufīd, al-Irshīd, pp. 69.

⁵ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 18; `abarī, op cit, 2:294; Tjrekh al-Ya`qūb 2:37.

⁶ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 18-22; al-Wiqidī, op cit, pp. 116; `abarī, op cit, pp. 294; Tjrekh al-Ya`qūb 2:37; Ibn Shahrīshab, al-Manjīb 1:189; al-Majlisī, op cit, 19:291.

⁷ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 17; Tjrekh al-Ya`qūb 2:37; Ibn Shahrīshab, op cit, p189.

prisoners were freed upon the payment of ransoms. Prisoners who were moneyless but literate were forced to teach ten Muslim individuals reading and writing to earn their freedom.¹ Later, the rest of the prisoners were freed thanks to the Holy Prophet's generosity.²

Factors of Victory

The Muslims' unprecedented victory broke the Quraysh's dignity in their first military confrontation. They were completely overwhelmed and taken by surprise. The defeat of Quraysh's troops was so sudden that when the Holy Prophet's envoy entered Medina to announce victory, Muslims could not believe what they heard and assumed that the envoy was a defeated soldier who had fled the battlefield.³ However, it was not long before the prisoners of war were taken into the city. The aftermath of this victory reached even the king of Abyssinia, al-Najjshī, who became extremely delighted; therefore, he summoned the Muslim migrants to tell them the good news.⁴ The Holy Prophet said:

The Battle of Badr was the first encounter in which God endeared Islam and humiliated the unbelievers.⁵

On the day of the Battle of Badr, Satan was extremely humiliated.⁶

¹ Zayd ibn Thābit learnt reading and writing in this way. (Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 22-26)

² Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 18.

³ al-Wiqidī, op cit, pp. 115.

⁴ op cit, pp. 121.

⁵ op cit, pp. 21.

⁶ op cit, pp. 78.

The factors which contributed to this outstanding victory could be summed up as follows:

(1) This battle was excellently managed by the Holy Prophet who showed unmatched bravery.¹ Remembering this war, Imam `Alç said,

When the fire of war was kindled, we would resort to the Holy Prophet; and in those moments, he was the closest to the enemy.²

(2) Imam `Alç showed outstanding bravery, killing half of the slain ones.³ Naming thirty-five of the dead ones in Badr, Shaykh al-Mufçd writes down:

Narrators unanimously agree that `Alç ibn Abç-±lib killed this group except for those whose slayers are not pinpointed.⁴

¹ Prior to his prophethood, the Holy Prophet did not have any military experience. Historians refer to his limited war experience in his youth during the Battle of al-Fujjr. Yet, he acted in the Battle of Badr as an experienced warrior.

² Ibn Sa`d, op cit, 2:23; Musnad A/mad 1:126; Ibn Abç'l-°adçd, Shar' Nahj al-Balighah.

³ Ibn Abç'l-°adçd, op cit, 1:24; Shaykh al-Mufçd, Kitjb al-Irshjd, pp. 72

⁴ Shaykh Mufçd, op cit, pp. 70-72; al-Buljdharç and al-Wiqidç state that this group consisted of eighteen members. (Ansjb al-Ashrjf 1:297-301; al-Maghjzç 1:152; Bi'jr al-Anwjr 1:293). During the Battle of the Allies (al-Azjb, also called the Battle of al-Khandaq) in the third year of Hegira, `Amr ibn `Abd-Wudd, a great Arab warrior, called for an opponent to fight. It was Imam `Alç who faced him. Belittling Imam `Alç, `Amr said, "Your father was a friend of mine, I do not desire to kill you." Ibn Abç'l-°adçd writes, "Amr was a liar; he had seen how Imam `Alç fought in the Battle of Badr; therefore, he was sure that `Alç would kill him. That is why he bluffed."

(3) In spite of the fact that some Muslims, while leaving Medina, showed reluctance to take part in the war (Qur'jn, 8:5-6) and some leading personalities of Muhjjiræn surfaced their fear and worry at the military councils,¹ uttering despairing words, the majority of Muslim warriors showed great strength in their souls and fought bravely.

(4) Divine contributions (Qur'jn 3:123) took place in different ways:

a) Raining at the night before the battle helped Muslims in water-supply and hardened the ground on which they could easily move. (Qur'jn 3:123)

b) At that night, Muslims could sleep with tranquility (Qur'jn 8:11);² the Holy Prophet alone was wakeful until morning, praying for victory.³

c) Angels participated in that battle. (Qur'jn 8:9)⁴

d) The hearts of the unbelievers were filled with fear. (Qur'jn 8:12)

Results of Muslims' Victory

The victory of the Islamic troops has certain consequences some of which will be dealt with hereinafter:

¹ al-Wiqidç, op cit, pp. 4; °alabç, al-Sçrah al-°alabiyyah 2:385-386; al-Majlisç, Bi'jr al-Anwjr 19:247.

² al-Wiqidç, op cit, pp. 54; °alabç, op cit, pp. 392. The army of Quraysh could not sleep due to their worry; they even could not eat. (al-Wiqidç, op cit, pp. 54).

³ Shaykh Mufçd, op cit, pp. 73; Musnad A/mad 1:125; al-Majlisç, Bi'jr al-Anwjr 19:279.

⁴ Al-Wiqidç, op cit, pp. 76-79; Ibn Hushjm, op cit, 2:286.

(1) God has previously promised Muslims victory over the Meccan troops (Qur'ān 8:7) and the Holy Prophet informed them about this promise at the end of their military discussions.¹ With this victory, Muslims relied more on God's assistance and became stronger in their faith.

(2) Both the hypocrites and the Jews of Medina became upset and humiliated by this victory. When the Holy Prophet's envoy reached Medina to announce the Muslims' victory, the Hypocrites spread the rumor that Muḥammad was killed and Muslims were defeated and spread apart.²

The Jews surfaced their hatred.³ Ka'b al-Ashraf, one of the leaders of Jews, said,

"Those who are said to be killed were among the noblemen. If this news is correct, then to die is preferred to living on the earth."⁴

(3) The tribes living around Medina reckoned this victory as a sign of the truthfulness of Islam and showed inclinations to it. Ya'qūb writes:

"After God granted His Prophet victory in the Battle of Badr and killed many of troops of Quraysh, the Arab tribes showed inclinations to Islam and sent their representatives to the Holy Prophet. Four or five months after the Battle of Badr, the tribe of Rab'ah, at the district of Dhāqir, fought with Khosrow. They

¹ al-Wāqidī, op cit, pp. 49.

² al-Wāqidī, op cit, pp. 115; al-Bulḍharī, Ansīb al-Ashraf 1:294.

³ Ṭabarī, op cit, 2:297.

⁴ al-Wāqidī, op cit, 1:121; Ibn Hushīm, op cit, 3:55; al-Bayhaqī, 2:341.

told one another that they should raise the slogan of tihim (Muḥammad) in the battlefield. Then, they would utter, O Muḥammad, Oh Muḥammad. Following this, they won over their enemies."¹

(4) Quraysh realized they had made mistakes in estimating Muḥammad's power; they had never imagined that they could be beaten so easily by a group of escapees and farmers! They thus concluded that their trade was endangered and that they could never rely on the Mecca-Damascus trade route which crossed Badr. In a gathering, Ṭafwīn ibn Umayyah said:

"Muḥammad and his followers have endangered our trade. We do not know what to do with them. They would not abandon the shores as long as the shore-dwellers have united with them. We do not know where to go. Our life subsistence in this city is provided by our summer trip to Damascus and winter trip to Abyssinia. If we are stuck in this city, we have to consume our capital and lose our income and wealth."

Quraysh, then, decided to make their trade trip to Damascus via Iraq. Ṭafwīn headed a caravan towards Damascus through Iraq. His share of the merchandize was three hundred thousand Dīnārs. When the Holy Prophet knew about this, he sent a one-hundred strong troop under the leadership of Zayd ibn Ḥarithah to confiscate the goods. That was in Jumādī al-akhīr, the third year of Hījra. The caravan men fled and the goods were confiscated by the Muslim troops. Moreover, one or two prisoners were taken to Medina.¹ This mission is referred to, in books of history,² as Sariyyat al-Qaradah.³

¹ Tārīkh al-Ya'qūbī 2:38.

Breach of Banī-Qaynuqī Treaty

Banī-Qaynuqī was the first Jewish tribe that violated the nonaggression pact. This was because Muslims' victory was bitter for both the Jews and the infidels. After the Battle of Badr and the victory of Muslims, both the Jews and the hypocrites became so furious. The first group that started incurring animosity of Islam was Banī-Qaynuqī although the Holy Prophet had warned them against so and advised them to learn a lesson from the defeat of Quraysh and to be Muslims. He told them they had learned about his traits in their Book.⁴

Their reply was, "Your victory over Quraysh has made you proud. Quraysh were a trade group. If you ever fight us, you will know how real warriors look like!"

Stricken by false pride, they did not take the Holy Prophet's warnings seriously; rather, they continued in aggression. Once, one of these Jews insulted the wife of one of Anṣār in the mart of this tribe outside Medina,

¹ al-Wiqidī, op cit, 1:197-198.

² It is also called Sariyyat al-Qardah. See Bi'ir al-Anwār 20:4; ±abarī, op cit, 3:5.

³ Ibn Hushīm, op cit, 3:53-54; al-Majlisī, Bi'ir al-Anwār 20:4-5.

⁴ "Say to those who disbelieve: you shall be vanquished, and driven together to hell; and evil is the resting-place. Indeed there was a sign for you in the two hosts which met together in encounter; one party fighting in the way of Allah and the other unbelieving, whom they saw twice as many as themselves with the sight of the eye; and Allah strengthens whom He pleases most surely there is a lesson in this for those who have sight." (Qur'ān 3:12-13)

creating turmoil. The woman called for help and a Muslim killed that intruder. Then, the Jews collectively killed that Muslim. Although two persons were killed, they could have stopped the situation at this point. However, they returned to their castles and readied themselves to attack. The Holy Prophet ordered their castle to be besieged. After fifteen days of siege, the Holy Prophet accepted the intermediation of `Abdullāh Ibn Ubayy, who had been already an ally of them, and permitted them to leave Medina after submitting their weapons. They migrated to a place called Adhrujt, in Damascus. This event occurred in the month of Shawwāl of the second year of Hegira.¹

Having been the bravest Jews,² Banī-Qaynuqī used to take pride in their power. They relied on their allies from Khazraj and Banī-`Awf.³ However, Khazraj could not save them from banishment.⁴ `Abdāh ibn `imī al-`Awfī gave them up.⁵ The two Jewish tribes of Banī'l-Naḍir and Banī-Quray'ah, who were the previous allies of Aws, could not help them either. Sa'd ibn Mu'adh, the chief of Aws, did not have any role in preventing their interferences in this crisis. Thus, the banishment of this tribe from Medina benefited Muslims in the sense that the power of these three tribes was disintegrated. It was also

¹ al-Wiqidī, op cit, 1:176; Ibn Hushīm, op cit, 3:50-52; al-Bulḍharī, op cit, 1:308-309; ±abarī, op cit, 2:297-298.

² al-Wiqidī, op cit, pp. 178.

³ al-Wiqidī, op cit, pp. 178; Ibn Hushīm, op cit, 3:50.

⁴ It seems that the Holy Prophet accepted the arbitration of `Abdullāh ibn Ubayy because he was superficially Muslim and the Holy Prophet would do everything to keep the unity of Muslims.

⁵ al-Wiqidī, op cit, pp. 179.

a warning to the other Jews of Medina not to commit the same mistake.

The Marriage of Imam `Alī and Lady Fāṣimah

Upon the victory in the Battle of Badr that added to the Muslim's dignity, another auspicious event took place; it was the marriage of Imam `Alī and Fāṣimah that was held at the Holy Prophet's house.¹ Due to her father's special charisma and high social status in addition to her own supreme personality, Lady Fāṣimah had numerous suitors some of whom were wealthy. However, the Holy Prophet would not consent² saying, "I am waiting for the Divine decision."³ Then, they provoked `Alī who was extremely poor to ask her father to marry her to him. Imam `Alī did. Upon consulting with Fāṣimah, the Holy Prophet informed Imam `Alī of her consent.⁴ He said to his daughter,

"I consent to your marriage with a man who is most advanced in moral aspects and adoption of Islam."⁵

Then the Holy Prophet said to Imam `Alī,

"There are several men of Quraysh who were offended because I could not agree with any one of them to marry Fāṣimah, telling them that I was awaiting a Divine decision, because I was certain that nobody deserved being Fāṣimah's spouse other than `Alī."⁶

¹ al-Majlisī, Bi'ir al-Anwār 43:97

² al-Majlisī, op cit, pp. 108; Ibn Wāṣil, Tārīkh al-Ya`qūbī 2:34.

³ Ibn Sa'd, Al-ṭabaqāt al-Kubrī 8:19.

⁴ al-Majlisī, op cit, pp. 93.

⁵ Amṣarī, al-Ghadīr 3:20.

⁶ al-Majlisī, op cit, pp. 92.

This marriage, which took place in the simplest ceremony and with the least amount of dowry¹ and trousseau,² is one the most obvious manifestations of the spiritual value of the bond of marriage in Islam.

The Battle of Uḥud

After the Battle of Badr, Quraysh who had earned a great income through the safe return of their trade caravan prepared themselves to avenge their defeat.³ Having been ensured the cooperation of some tribes, Quraysh left Mecca with ample supplies⁴ taking a group of women to encourage the soldiers in the battlefield.⁵ The Holy Prophet, through secret information received from his uncle `Abbās at Mecca, knew about their plan.⁶ He discussed the matter with his military consultants as how to confront the enemy. `Abdullāh ibn Ubayy and

¹ al-Majlisī, op cit, pp. 112.

² For further information, refer to Ja'far Shahīdī, Zandegīn-e Fāṣimah, pp 44-76; Al-Khayyīmī, Zawjāt al-Nabī wa-Awladuh, pp. 322-328.

³ al-Wāqidī, op cit, 1:200; Ibn Hushīm, op cit, 3:64; Ibn Sa'd, Al-ṭabaqāt al-Kubrī 2:37.

⁴ The number of the enemy troops was three thousand, seven hundred of whom wore armors. They had two hundred horses and one thousand camels. See al-Wāqidī, op cit, pp. 203-204; Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 37; Ibn Abī'l-ʿAdūd, Shar' Nahj al-Balghah, 14:217.

⁵ al-Wāqidī, op cit, pp. 202-203, Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 37, Ibn Hushīm, op cit, 3:66.

⁶ al-Wāqidī, op cit, pp. 204, 206; Ibn Abī'l-ʿAdūd, op cit, 14:37. According to some narrations, Banī-Khuzā'ah, the allies of the Holy Prophet, relayed the information to the Holy Prophet who might have received it from both sources. See Ibn Abī'l-ʿAdūd, op cit, pp. 218.

some merchants from Anẖjr, as well as some individuals from MuhjirEn such as ʿamzah, preferred that the confrontation would take place outside the city borders because they believed that if Muslims remained in town, the enemy would become more daring and would consider it weak point.¹ Ultimately, the Holy Prophet accepted the proposal of this brave group of consultants and left the town for Mount Uʿud² with a thousand troops.³ On the way, ʿAbdullāh ibn Ubayy returned with his troops of three hundred to Medina defying the Holy Prophet’s plan, because he had accepted the plans of the younger consultants⁴ and he assumed that no war would take place (Qurʾān 3:167).⁵ The Holy Prophet stationed the troop which had decreased to the number of seven hundred at the outskirts of Mount Uʿud, which became behind the Muslims while Mount ʿAynayn was on the left side.⁶ Muslim troops faced the west and the enemy faced the east.⁷ Looking at the battlefield militarily, the Holy

¹ al-Wāqidī op cit, pp. 210, 212, 213; Ibn Hushīm, op cit, 3:67; Ibn Saʿd, op cit, pp. 38.

² Mount Uʿud is to north of Medina. Due to the natural obstacles to the south, the enemy could not penetrate into Medina; they had to go around the city to attack it from the north. See Muḥammad ʿamḍullāh, Rasʿl Akram dar Maydīn Jang, pp. 79-85.

³ Ibn Shahrīshab, Manqib 1:191; al-Majlisī, op cit, 20:117.

⁴ al-Wāqidī, op cit, 1:219; Ibn Saʿd, op cit, 2:39; Ibn Hushīm, op cit, 3:68.

⁵ al-Wāqidī, op cit, pp. 219; ʿabarsī, Majmaʿ al-Bayn 2:533.

⁶ al-Wāqidī, op cit. pp. 220; Ibn Saʿd, op cit, pp. 39; al-Samhūdī, Wafīʿ al-Wafīʿ 1:225.

⁷ al-Wāqidī, op cit p.220.

Prophet noticed the significance of Mount ʿAynayn since the enemy might invade the Muslims while the fight was going on; therefore, he appointed an officer called ʿAbdullāh ibn Jubayr to defend that location with fifty archers, declaring, “Whether we win or lose, you must stay here to defend us against the enemy’s attack.”¹

Abū-Sufyān, too, engaged himself in the adoption of standard-bearers. In those days, the role of standard-bearers was of crucial importance; only the brave ones could carry the standard. The strength and stamina of a standard-bearer was a source of encouragement for the troops. On the other hand, his fall would lead to the soldier’s discouragement. Having selected the standard-bearer from among the tribe of Banū-ʿAbd al-Djār who were famous for their courage, Abū-Sufyān told them, “We all are sure that you, Banū-ʿAbd al-Djār are the worthiest of carrying the standards. Keep hold of the standards and make us feel secure in that issue; a troop falls as soon as its standards fall.”²

Muslims’ victory at the initial stage of the battle

The war flared up on the fifteenth of Shawwāl, the third year of Hegira.³ In a short time, Muslims were victorious and the enemy troops absconded. Their defeat was not due to the great number of casualties, which, according to the most reliable sources, did not exceed fifty;¹ rather, it was the fall of nine standard-bearers who had been destroyed by Imam `Alç,² causing damage to their spirituality.³

¹ al-Majlisī, op cit, 20:49; Ibn Hushīm 3:70; Ibn Saʿd, op cit, 2:34-40; Samhūdī, op cit, 1:285; ʿabarī, Tjrekḥ al-Umam waʿl-Mulḥ 3:14.

² al-Wāqidī, op cit, 1:221; Ibn Hushīm, op cit, 3:106.

³ Majlisī, Biʿr al-Anwār 20:18; al-ʿAsqalīnī, al-Iʿbah 1:354. Other historians state that the battle broke out on the third, seventh, eighth, ninth, or eleventh of Shawwāl. See Tjrekḥ al-ʿabarī 3:14; al-Samhūdī, Wafīʿ al-Wafīʿ 1:281.

On various occasions after the Battle of Uluđ, Imam `Alç used to put stress on this event. In the six-member council which was held after the assassination of `Umar ibn al-Khaṣṣib to elect the next caliph, Imam `Alç referred to this event as a point of honor and the members of that committee could not deny.⁴

Upon the destruction of the standard-bearers of Quraysh, there was confusion among the enemy's troops who chose to take flight. Upon their retreat, Muslims started collecting the booty. Most of the archers left their strongholds, assuming that the battle was over. Thus, they did not listen to the warnings of `Abdułlĥ ibn Jubayr concerning the Holy Prophet's orders. (Qur'in, 3:152)

The Enemy's Victory

The archers' mistake and miscalculation had a tremendous effect on the battle, because Khilid ibn al-Walĥđ attacked that position with two hundred troops and killed `Abdułlĥ ibn Jubayr with ten others. He then

¹ Al-Sçrah al-°alabiyyah 2:547. It is also said that the casualties of the enemies were twenty-three or twenty-eight. See Ibn Abç'l-°adçđ, Shar' Nahj al-Balıghah 15:54; Ibn Sa'd, al-±abaqıt al-Kubrj 2:43; al-Bulđdharç, Ansıb al-Ashrj 1:328.

² Shaykh al-Mufçđ, Kitjb al-Irshjđ, pp. 88; al-Majlisç, Bi'jr al-Anwjr 20:51; al-±abrisç, Majma' al-Bayjn 2:496.

³ Tjrçkh al-±abarç 3:17; Ibn Sa'd, al-±abaqıt al-Kubrj 2:41; al-Samhçđç, Wafj' al-Wafj' 1:288; al-Majlisç, Bi'jr al-Anwjr 20:26.

⁴ Shaykh al-°adçq, al-Khişjl, pp. 560.

attacked other Muslims from behind. On the other side, `Amrah bint `Alqamah, together with other women from Quraysh, took up the standards and waved them in the air;¹ so, the battle started over again.² Muslims suffered a great blow this time because there was no coordination between the troops and their commanders. There were secondary factors which contributed to this defeat:

(1) A rumor had it that the Holy Prophet was killed.³

(2) In those days, the two parties of the military conflict did not have a uniform distinguishing them from the other party. At the battlefield, they were recognized only through slogans. The Muslim troops did not recognize one another; they therefore started drawing swords against one another.⁴ For instance, °usayl ibn Jjbir, a Muslim warrior, was killed by his party.⁵

¹ Ibn Hushjm, al-Sçrah al-Nabawiyyah 3:83; Tjrçkh al-±abarç 3:17; al-Majlisç, Bi'jr al-Anwjr 20:51; al-±abrisç, Majma' al-Bayjn 2:496. Referring to this incident, °assjn ibn Thjbıbit, the Holy Prophet's poet, composed the following:

*Had it not been for the banner of that woman of Ban£-°jrıth,
They would have become a cheap commodity in marts!*

See Ibn Hushjm, al-Sçrah al-Nabawiyyah 3:84; Ibn Abç'l-°adçđ, Shar' Nahj al-Balıghah 14:217.

² Ibn Sa'd, al-±abaqıt al-Kubrj 2:41-42; Ibn Hushjm, al-Sçrah al-Nabawiyyah 3:82; Tjrçkh al-±abarç 3:17; al-Majlisç, Bi'jr al-Anwjr 20:26-29.

³ Ibn Hushjm, op cit, 3:82; al-Majlisç, op cit, 20:26-27.

⁴ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, 2:42; al-Samhçđç, Wafj' al-Wafj' 1:286.

⁵ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, 2:43, 45; Ibn Hushjm, op cit, 3:93; al-Samhçđç, op cit, 1:288; Sayyid `Alç-Khjn Madanç, al-Darajıt al-Rafç`ah, pp. 283.

However, as soon as Muslims became aware of the situation and started uttering slogans, the conditions changed drastically.¹

(3) Another factor was the direction of the wind which was blowing from the west, making it hard for Muslims to carry on with the war.²

At any rate, much confusion occurred to the Muslim troops most of whom fled the battlefield or climbed the mountain, leaving the Holy Prophet in the battlefield defending Muslims and asking the escapees to stay firm.³

Imam `Alç and a few warriors resisted the enemies in the battlefield.⁴ He fought bravely next to the Holy Prophet, defending him several times.⁵

With his unique perseverance, a Divine call echoed in the sky of Uḥud, "There is no sword beyond Dhə'l-Faqīr (Imam `Alç's sword) and there is no combatant save `Alç."⁶

In order to weaken the morale of Muslims, AbŒ-Sufyīn started psychological warfare by uttering the slogan, "Be proud Hubal! Be proud Hubal." Answering him, the Holy

¹ al-Bulḍharç, Ansġb al-Ashrġf, pp. 322.

² Ibn Sa`d, op cit, 2:42.

³ Holy Qur`īn 3:153-154; al-Bulḍharç, op cit, pp. 318; ±abarç, op cit, 3:20; Ibn Sa`d, op cit, 2:47; Ibn Abç`l-°adçd, op cit, 15:23, 25.

⁴ Ibn Sa`d, op cit, 2:47; Ibn Abç`l-°adçd, op cit, 15:21, 29.

⁵ Shaykh al-Mufçd, Kitġb al-Irshġd, pp. 89; ±abarç, op cit, 3:17; Ibn al-Athçr, al-Kġmil fç`l-Tġrçkh 2:154; Ibn Abç`l-°adçd, op cit, 14:250; Ibn `Asġkir, Tġrçkh Madçnat Dimashq 1:150; al-Majlisç, op cit, 20:88.

⁶ ±abarç, op cit, 3:17; Ibn Abç`l-°adçd, op cit, 14:251; Shaykh al-Mufçd, op cit, pp. 87; al-Majlisç, op cit, 20:54, 103, 105, 107.

Prophet ordered his men to cry out, "Allah is Greater and more Majestic." Then AbŒ-Sufyīn said, "We have `Uzzġ and you have none." The Holy Prophet asked a Muslim to reply, "We have Allah as our Master; and you have none."¹

It is reported that in that battle, seventy Muslims, including °amzah—the Holy Prophet's uncle—and MuŒ`ab ibn `Umayr, were martyred.

Although Muslims were defeated² and the troops of Quraysh were intact, the chiefs of Quraysh who were worried about its consequences³ preferred to leave Medina and go back to Mecca. They were merely happy that they had avenged their previous losses. All this happened with no damage done to either Medina or the Damascus trade route.

In order to demonstrate that Muslims were still firm and invincible, the Holy Prophet chased the enemy to the land of °amrġ' al-Asad in order to prevent them from attacking Medina.⁴

Consequences of the defeat at Uḥud

(1) Although Muslims were militarily defeated in this

¹ Ibn Sa`d, op cit, 2:47-48; al-Bulḍharç, op cit, 1:327; ±abarç, op cit, 3:24; Ibn Abç`l-°adçd, op cit, 15:30-31; KhargŒshç Sharaf al-Nabç; °alabç, op cit, 2:531; al-Majlisç, op cit, 20:32 and 45.

² al-Bulḍharç, op cit, 1:328; ±abarsç, Œġm al-Warġ, pp. 82; KhargŒshç, op cit pp. 346; SamhŒdç, op cit, 1:291-292; al-Majlisç, op cit, 20:18; °alabç 2:547.

³ Ibn Hushġm, op cit, 3:110; °alabç, op cit, 2:550.

⁴ Ibn Hushġm, op cit, 3:107, 110; Ibn Abç`l-°adçd, op cit, 15:31, 33; °alabç, op cit, 2:550; al-Majlisç, op cit, 20:40, 41, 99.

battle, they learned not to disregard the Holy Prophet's orders. Such disobediences never happened in the following wars.

(2) The hypocrites started all sorts of conspiracies; they rejoiced on the Muslims' defeat and blamed them.¹

(3) The Jews, too, surfaced their hatred, saying, "No prophet has been defeated to this degree!"²

(4) The enemies of Islam around Medina were emboldened to initiate conspiracies. Banī-Asad, for instance, attempted to attack Medina. Other events the most famous of which were known as al-Rajē` and Bi'r Ma`ḥnah took place as a result of the Muslims' defeat at the Battle of Uḥud.

(5) Upon the return of Muslims to Medina, the shadow of grief and despair prevailed over the city. Conspiracies of the hypocrites and the Jews worsened the situation. God removed these signs of despair and strengthened the Muslims' morale through a revelation of some verses. According to Ibn Isḥāq, sixty verses were revealed about the Battle of Uḥud.³ God, in these verses, mentions the mysteries behind the Muslims' failure and warns them not to despair even if they suffer a defeat. God the Almighty adds that the very reason for Muslims' zeal was their seeking of worldly material. Muslims were victorious in the Battle of Badr, because they fought for the sake of God only. However, in the Battle of Uḥud, they were after booties:

¹ al-Wḥidī, op cit, 1:317-318.

² al-Wḥidī, op cit, 1:317; °alabī, op cit, 2:549.

³ Ibn Hushīm, op cit, 3:112.

And Allah did certainly assist you at Badr when you were weak; be careful of your duty to Allah then, that you may give thanks.

And be not infirm, and be not grieving, and you shall have the upper hand if you are believers.

If a wound has afflicted you at Uḥud, a wound like it has also afflicted the unbelieving people; and We bring these days to men by turns, and that Allah may know those who believe and take witness from among you; and Allah does not love the unjust.

Do you think that you will enter the garden while Allah has not yet known those who strive hard from among you, and He has not known the patient.

And certainly, you desired death before you met it; so indeed you may have seen it and looked at it.

And certainly Allah made good to you His promise, when you slew them by His permission, until when you became weak- hearted and disputed about the affair and disobeyed after He had shown you that which you loved; of you were some who desired this world and of you were some who desired the hereafter; then He turned you away from them that He might try you; and He has certainly pardoned you, and Allah is Gracious to the believers.

What! When a misfortune befell you, and you had certainly afflicted the unbelievers with twice as much, you began to say: Whence is this? Say: it is from yourselves; surely, Allah has power over all things.¹

The defeat and failure in the Battle of Uḥud damaged the Muslims' military credentials badly and caused the infidels and hypocrites to indulge in conspiracies against them. Choosing this very time to attack Muslims was due to Muslims' weak points.¹ Here are some examples of their conspiracies:

¹ Holy Qur'ān 3:123, 134, 140, 142, 143, 152, 165.

The Unsuccessful Attack of Banī-Asad

The Holy Prophet was informed of Banī-Asad's intention to attack Medina. He dispatched Abī-Salamah with one hundred and fifty troops and ordered them to attack the enemy before they would have any chance. The troops arrived at the place of Banī-Asad with tremendous speed. The tribesmen became overwhelmed and fled the scene. Abī-Salamah returned to Medina with some prisoners and booties.²

This victory boosted the Muslims' military credentials to some degree. The hypocrites, Jews and the tribes living around Medina realized that Muslims were not truly defeated.

The Event of Bi'r Ma' Enah

This event was even more disastrous than the event of Rajī'. It took place in ʿafar, the 4th year of Hegira. Abī-Barī', the chief of Banī-ʿamir, came to see the Holy Prophet in Medina. Showing no inclination to Islam, he made the proposal that the Holy Prophet would send a group of his followers to Najd to invite people to Islam. The Holy Prophet replied, "I fear that the Najd people might hurt Muslims." Abī-Barī' said, "I will protect them." The Holy Prophet, then, dispatched seventy¹ of the Qur'ān instructors and true companions. Arriving at Bi'r Ma' Enah, this group sent a letter to ʿamir ibn ʿufayl, who killed the messenger without even looking at the letter. Then, he asked Banī-ʿamir to kill the Holy Prophet's envoy. They refused to do so thanks to Abī-Barī's promise of protection. ʿamir ibn ʿufayl, together with some branches of Banī-Sulaym, charged at the Holy Prophet's envoy who, in return, had to defend themselves and all were martyred except for Ka'b ibn Zayd and ʿAmr ibn Umayyah al-ʿamarī² who had fallen captive to the enemy and then set free. On his return to Medina, he killed two members of Banī-ʿamir, without knowing that they had been on a contract with the Holy Prophet.³

¹ al-Wiqidī, op cit, 1:342.

² Al-Wiqidī, op cit, pp. 340-343; Mu'ammad Ibn Sa'd. Al-ʿabaqit al-Kubrī 2:50.

Campaign against Banī Naʿr

Following the murder of two members of Banī-ʿamir,⁴ the Holy Prophet expressed his condolences and grief. He said, "I have to pay their blood-money."⁵ Banī-ʿamir sent

¹ According to some accounts, it was forty people. See ʿabarī, Tjrkhh al-Umam wa'l-Mulūk 3:34; Ibn Hushīm al-Sʿrah al-Nabawiyyah 3:194; al-Wiqidī, al-Maghīzī 1:347.

² ʿabarī, op cit, 3:33-34; ʿabarsī, Majma' al-Bayn 2:533; Ibn Shahrjshīb, Manjīb 1:195-196; al-Majlisī, op cit, 20:147-148; al-Wiqidī, op cit, pp. 346-348; Ibn Hushīm, op cit, 3:193; Ibn Sa'd, al-ʿabaqit al-Kubrī 2:51-53.

³ ʿabarī, op cit, pp. 34; Ibn Hushīm, op cit, 3:195; Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 53.

⁴ Some historians have set the date of this event prior to the Battle of U'ud, mentioned other reasons. Sayyid Ja'far Murtaʿī al-ʿamilī consents to this opinion. Al-ʿa' min Sʿrat al-Nabī al-A'ʿam 6:32-44.

⁵ Ibn Sa'd, Al-ʿabaqit al-Kubrī 2:53; Ibn Hushīm, op cit, 3:195; ʿabarī, Tjrkhh al-Umam wa'l-Mulūk 3:35; al-Wiqidī, op cit, 1:352.

Having been misled by `Abduļh's false promises, Banŕ'l-Naŕ preferred to stay. By the command of the Holy Prophet, the Muslim troops surrounded their castle for fifteen days during which there was no sign of supporting troops! Banŕ'l-Naŕ had to surrender and take their possessions on camels; some going to ² al-Bayhaqı, op cit, pp. 335; al-Wıqidı, op cit, 1:365-366; \pm abarsı, İlm al-Warj, pp. 88.

⁴ Samhŋdç, op cit, 1:298.

God, in the Holy Qur'ān, mentions the treason of Banī'l-Naḍr and their fate with the following words:

And had it not been that Allah had decreed for them the exile, He would certainly have punished them in this world, and in the Hereafter, they shall have chastisement of the fire.

That is because they acted in opposition to Allah and His Apostle, and whoever acts in opposition to Allah, then surely, Allah is severe in requiting evil.³

² Samh̄d̄, op cit, pp. 299; Ibn Hush̄m, op cit, pp. 201; al-W̄qid̄, op cit, 1:377; al-Majlis̄, op cit, pp. 171-172.

³ Holy Qur'ān 59: 2-4. Ibn 'Abbās gives Sārah al-ʿashr the name of

The Battle of the Ditch

This battle, which is also called al-khandaq (the ditch) or al-a'zjb (the Allies), took place in Shawwāl, the 5th year of Hegira¹ when ʿUyay ibn Akhṣab, some chiefs of Banʿl-Naḍr who had taken refuge in Khaybar and a group of Banʿ-Wiʿil had visited Quraysh in Mecca and encouraged them to take part in a war against the Holy Prophet. They promised them of all sorts of assistance. Quraysh asked them, “Which one is better; our religion or Muʿammad’s?” Although the Jews doctrinally believed in God and they should not have supported idolatry, they answered, “Your religion is better than Muʿammad’s and you are closer to the reality.”

Having heard this, Quraysh were encouraged to fight the Holy Prophet. God condemns this hostile judgment of theirs in the following manner:

Have you not seen those to whom a portion of the book has been given? They believe in idols and false deities and say of those who disbelieve: They are better guided in the path than those who believe.

Those are they whom Allah curses you shall not find any helper for him. (4:51-52)

This hostile judgment of the Jewish leaders was so far away from logic and justice that some current Jews condemn it. In his book entitled The History of Judaism in the Land of Arabs, Dr. Israel Wolfinson, a Jewish historian, writes:

“They should not have committed such an obnoxious

Serah Banʿl-Naḍr. See ṭabarsī, Majmaʿ al-Bayʿn 10:258.

¹ al-Bulḍharī, op cit, 1:343; Ibn Saʿd, op cit, 2:65; Ibn Hushīm, op cit, 3:224.

blunder; they should not have deemed the worshiping of idols superior to the Islamic monotheism even if they would fall out of Quraysh’s love and care. This is because the Israelites have been carrying the banner of monotheists among the idol-worshippers for centuries.¹”

Next, the Jewish leaders resorted to the chiefs of the Ghaṣafīn tribe asking for assistance in a war against Muslims.² Out of this tribe, the branches Banʿ-Fazīrah, Banʿ-Murrah and Banʿ-Ashjaʿ declared their cooperation.³ Then the agreement of Banʿ-Sulaym and Banʿ-Asad was obtained.⁴ Quraysh gained the support of their previous allies; Banʿ-Thaqif and Banʿ-Kinānah.⁵ As a result, a strong military force consisting of ten thousand troops⁶ and headed by Abʿ-Ṣufyīn started moving towards Medina. On their way, ʿUyay ibn Akhṣab pledged Abʿ-Ṣufyīn the cooperation of Banʿ-Qurayʿah who had seventy-five warriors.⁷

Concerning the great capital which both Quraysh and the Jews had spent on the preparation for this war, they considered it epoch-making and were determined to

¹ Muʿammad ʿasanayn Haykal, ʿayit Muʿammad, pp. 329.

² They promised to pay the yield of dates of Khaybar to Ghaṣafīn due to their alliance. See al-Bulḍharī, op cit, 1:343; al-Wiqidī, op cit, 2:44.

³ ṭabarsī, op cit, 3:44; Ibn Hushīm, op cit, 3:225.

⁴ Muʿammad Ibn Saʿd, op cit, 2:66; al-Wiqidī, op cit, 2:443; Ibn Shahrīshūb, Manāqib 1:197; al-Majlisī, Biʿr al-Anwār 20:197.

⁵ al-Bulḍharī, op cit, 1:343.

⁶ Ibn Saʿd, 62, pp. 66; ṭabarsī, 63, pp. 46; Ibn Hushīm, 63, pp. 230; Samḥīdī, 61, pp. 301; al-Majlisī, 620, pp. 200.

⁷ al-Wiqidī, op cit, 2:454.

annihilate Muslims forever.

Through the secret reports of Banī-Khuzā'ah who were allies of Muslims, the Holy Prophet knew about the movement of the enemy troops.¹ In a military session held by the Holy Prophet, nobody agreed to leave Medina; the vote was unanimous.²

There were palm-groves around the city and they hindered the enemy's free access.³ Salmān proposed that they would dig a ditch around the part of the city in which there were no natural obstructions so that the enemy could not pass.⁴ The ditch was dug in a short time due to the participation of all Muslims, including the Holy Prophet.⁵ He had women and children relocated to the castles and shelters inside the city.⁶ The Islamic

¹ °alabç, al-Sçrah al-°alabiyyah 2:631.

² Shaykh al-Mufçd, al-Irshjd, pp. 96; Ibn Shahrīshf, op cit, 1:197.

³ °alabç, op cit 2:636; al-Wjīdç, op cit, 2:66.

⁴ al-Buljdharç, op cit, pp. 343; Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 2, pp. 66; ±abarç, op cit, 3:44; Ibn Shahrīshf, op cit, 1:198; ±abarsç, I'ljm al-Warj, pp. 90; al-Majlisç, Bi'jr al-Anwjr 20:218.

⁵ According to Ibn Sa'd, it took them six days to dig the ditch. (Al-±abaqjt al-Kubrj 2:67). Mu'ammad °amçdulljh, a contemporary researcher who has observed the battlefields of the Muslim wars closely, believes that the ditch was built in the shape of the letter N, being five and a half kilometers long (RasEl Akram dar Maydjn Jang, pp. 113-114). The basis of this calculation has most probably been the fact that at the time of digging, all of the three thousand troops were divided in groups of ten individuals, and each group dug forty cubits (±abarç, op cit, 3:46; al-Majlisç, op cit, 20:198). Each person had to dig four cubits, which was equal to six kilometers.

⁶ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, 2:67; ±abarç, op cit, 3:46; °alabç, op cit, 2:636.

forces, consisting of three thousand,¹ stayed between the ditch and Mount Sala`, having it behind them.²

The commanders of the allies expected the war to take place outside Medina like the Battle of U'ud. However, this did not happen. Arriving at the city borders and noticing the ditch, they were bewildered, because the digging of the ditch was unprecedented among Arabs as a war technique.³ Thus, they had to surround the city behind the ditch.

The siege lasted for nearly twenty days and both parties started shooting at each other. The warriors of Quraysh started special military maneuvers to frighten the Muslim troops.⁴ Due to the enemy's siege of the city, Muslims were caught in a severe plight, which is described by God in the following words:

[Those who believe remember the day] when they came upon you from above you and from below you, and when the eyes turned dull, and the hearts rose up to the throats, and you began to think diverse thoughts of Allah. There the believers were tried and they were shaken with severe shaking. (33:10-11)

The Treason of Banī-Quray'ah

At this time, something else took place and jeopardized the Muslims' status even more; Banī-Quray'ah breached

¹ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, 2:66; ±abarç, op cit, 3:46; Ibn Hushjm, op cit, 3:231; al-Majlisç, op cit, 20:200, Samhfdç, op cit, 1:301.

² al-Buljdharç, op cit, pp. 343; Mu'ammad Ibn Sa'd, op cit, 2:66; Ibn Hushjm, op cit, 3:231; ±abarç, op cit, 3:46; Samhfdç, op cit, 1:301.

³ al-Buljdharç, op cit, 1:343; ±abarç, op cit, 3:48; Ibn Wjīl, Tjrçkh al-Ya`qfç 2:41; °alabç, op cit, 2:636, 657.

⁴ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, 2:67; °alabç, op cit, 2:636-637

their nonaggression pact with Muslims. They did so on account of ʿUyay ibn Akhṣab's temptations.¹ Moreover, they committed two other acts of treason: first, they brought ammunitions to the allies who were short in supplies. At Qubj, Muslims waylaid a caravan, arranged by Banī-Qurayʿah, carrying dates and barely for the enemy and they confiscated it.² Second, they spread terror in women's shelters. As one of them entered the castle where women were sheltering, he was killed by ʿAfiyyah, the Holy Prophet's aunt.³ One night, Banī-Qurayʿah decided to attack the center of Medina. For this purpose, they sent ʿUyay ibn Akhṣab to Mecca asking the chiefs of Quraysh for one thousand troops. They also asked Ghaṣafīn the same. Reports of these movements and proceedings reached the Holy Prophet, who, as a result, appointed five hundred warriors to protect the city, which was panic-stricken. These warriors stayed overnight crying out ʿallḥu-akbar (Allah is the Most Great) and protected the civil sections.⁴

Reasons of the failure of the Allies

In addition to the digging of the ditch, several factors

¹ Ibn Saʿd, op cit, pp. 67; Ibn Hushīm, op cit, 3:231; ʿabār, op cit, 3:46-47; Samhūd, op cit, 1:303; al-Majlis, op cit, 20:200-201.

² Samhūd, op cit, 1:304; ʿalab, op cit, 2:647.

³ al-Bulḍhar, op cit, 1:347; al-Wiqid, 2, pp. 462-463; ʿabār, op cit, 3:50; Samhūd, op cit, 1:302.

⁴ al-Wiqid, op cit, 2:460; ʿalab, op cit, 2:636.

Abī-Bakr is reported to have said that during the Battle of the Allies and due to Banī-Qurayʿah's treason, the danger of Banī-Qurayʿah on the lives of women and children inside Medina was greater than the danger of Quraysh and Ghaṣafīn al-Wiqid, op cit, pp. 460.

contributed to the failure of the troops of the Allies:

(1) Disagreement between Banī-Qurayʿah and the Allies

Nuʿaym ibn Masʿūd, a member of Ghaṣafīn tribe, had recently accepted Islam. Having acquired permission of the Holy Prophet to use deceptive tactics against the enemy,¹ he met with Banī-Qurayʿah and, pretending to be their friends, started reproaching them, saying, "Your position is different from Quraysh's. If they lose the war, they will return home; but you have nowhere to go to if you lose. Muslims will then destroy you altogether." He then suggested that they should take as hostages several chiefs of the Allies and keep them to the end of the war. He then revealed this military secret made by Banī-Qurayʿah to the chiefs of Quraysh and Ghaṣafīn, saying, "Banī-Qurayʿah have decided to surrender to Muḥammad and give him these chiefs as a sign of goodwill." He then warned them not to accept such a proposal. This plan worked well; differences developed between these two groups and the Allies were destroyed from within.²

(2) The killing of ʿAmr ibn ʿAbd-Wudd

Quraysh had to bring the war to an end because they were pressure for three reasons:

First: Because the war took a longer period than expected, there was shortage in supplies.

Second: The weather became so cold that they could not bear staying inside tents.

¹ The Holy Prophet is reported to have said, "War depends upon tactics."

² Ibn Saʿd, op cit, 2:64; Ibn Hushīm, op cit, 3:240; ʿabār, op cit, 3:50-51; ʿalab, op cit, 2:650; Samhūd, op cit, 1:304; al-Majlis, op cit, 20:207.

Third: Dhū'l-Qa'dah, one of the sacred months in which fighting was forbidden, was approaching. If the war could not end in Shawwāl, it would certainly be postponed for three months.¹ Therefore, the Allies were determined to bring the war to an end at all costs. For this purpose, five of the bravest warriors jumped with their horses to the other side of the ditch² and demanded equal opponents to fight. One of them was the famous Arab warrior, `Amr ibn `Abd-Wudd, who was famed as the hero of yalyal and the hero of Quraysh.³ Having crossed the ditch, `Amr shouted, "Is there any fighter to face me?". None of the Muslim troops answered him.⁴ He repeated this call seven times and each time Imam `Alī would rise and ask the Holy Prophet to permit him to confront this warrior. Finally, permission was given to Imam `Alī. As he proceeded to confront `Amr, the Holy Prophet said,

"The entire Islam will face the entire unbelief."⁵

¹ Mu'ammad °amēdullāh, Rasāl Akram dar Maydīn Jang, pp. 128.

² Ibn Sa'd, op cit, 2:68; al-Wāqidī, op cit, 2:470; ±abarē, op cit, 3:48; Shaykh al-Mufīd, al-Irshād; al-Majlisē, op cit, 20:203.

³ At a place called Yalyal, `Amr, alone, fought a group of enemies. See Bi'jr al-Anwjr 20:203.

Because he had been wounded at the Battle of Badr, he did not participate in the Battle of U'ud. See Ibn Hushīm, al-Sērāh al-Nabawīyyah 3:235; ±abarē, Tjrekh al-Umam wa'l-Mulēk 3:48; Ibn al-Athēr, al-Kjmil fē'l-Tjrekh 2:181.

⁴ al-Wāqidī, op cit, 2:470; Ibn Abē'l-°adēd, Shar' Nahj al-Balighah 13:291 and 19:63; al-Majlisē, Bi'jr al-Anwjr 20:203.

⁵ Ibn Abē'l-°adēd, op cit, 19:61; al-Majlisē, op cit, 20:215.

In a great duel, Imam `Alī could kill `Amr. Seeing this, the other four warriors who had passed the ditch flew. One of them had fallen in the ditch with his horse before he was killed by Muslims.¹

Seeing this great bravery of Imam `Alī, the Holy Prophet said,

"Your deed today is superior to all deeds of Muslims put together. As `Amr is killed, all houses of the enemies are miserable and all houses of Muslims feel dignity."²

On the word of al-°ikim al-Naysībē, a great Sunni traditionist, the Holy Prophet had declared:

"`Alī's fighting with `Amr at the ditch is more favorable than the good deeds of all Muslims up to the Resurrection Day."³

With the killing of `Amr, the Allies lost their morale; signs of defeat appeared in their camp so evidently that each tribe decided to retreat.⁴

(3) Divine Assistance

The last blow to the enemy was done by God Who caused a terrible storm to dominate over them at night. The storm destroyed their tents completely. As a consequence, Abē-Sufyīn ordered them to return to Mecca.⁵ Referring to this victory, God the Almighty

¹ al-Buljdhārē, op cit, 1:345; Mu'ammad Ibn Sa'd, op cit, 2:68; Ibn Hushīm, op cit, 3:236; ±abarē, op cit, 3:48; Samhēdē, op cit, 1:303.

² Al-Karījākē, Kanz al-Fawj'id 1:298; al-Majlisē, Bi'jr al-Anwjr 20:205-216.

³ Al-°ikim al-Naysībē, al-Mustadrak `Alj'l-a'ē'ayn 3:32.

⁴ Al-Karījākē, op cit, pp. 299.

⁵ al-Buljdhārē, op cit, 1:345; Ibn Sa'd, op cit, 2:71; ±abarē, op cit, 3:51-52; Ibn Shahrjshēb, Manjgib 1:198; ±abarsē, I'ljm al-Warj, pp.

states in the Holy Qur'an:

O you who believe; call to mind the favor of Allah to you when there came down upon you hosts; so, We sent against them a strong wind and hosts that you saw not, and Allah is Seeing what you do. (33:9)

And Allah tuned back the unbelievers in their rage; they did not obtain any advantage, and Allah sufficed the believers in fighting; and Allah is Strong, Mighty. (33:25)

Despite the enemy's great expenditure on his war, the results of were bitter and disastrous because they could neither damage Medina nor free the Damascus trade route. In this way, Abū-Sufyān's military credit was greatly damaged and the status of Quraysh was badly hurt. After this war, Muslims had more courage to attack their enemy. The Holy Prophet said, "From now on, we will attack and they will have no ability to attack us."¹ The martyrs in this war are reported to be six² and the enemy casualties were three.³

92; Samhūdī, op cit, 1:305; al-Majlisī, op cit, 20:208-209.

¹ Shaykh al-Mufīd, al-Irshād, pp. 106; al-Bukhārī 5:215; abarsī, Majma' al-Bayān 8:345; al-Majlisī, op cit, 20:209.

² Ibn Wajīd, Tārīkh al-Ya'qūbī 2:42; al-Wajīdī, al-Maghīzī 2:492; Ibn Hushām al-Sīrah al-Nabawīyah 3:264; abarsī, op cit, 3:58; Ibn Shahrīshab, Manqib 1:198.

The number of the martyrs of this war is reported to have been higher than this. See Mu'ammad Ibrāhīm 'ayātī, the History of the Prophet of Islam, pp. 372.

³ al-Wajīdī, op cit, 2:496; Ibn Hushām, op cit, 3:265; abarsī, op cit, 3:59; Ibn Shahrīshab, op cit, 1:198. Ya'qūbī has recorded the number of martyrs as eight. (Tārīkh al-Ya'qūbī 2:42).

The War of Banī-Quray'ah

After the retreat of the Allies, the Holy Prophet was commissioned to go after Banī-Quray'ah. In the evening of the next day, the Holy Prophet ordered his men to surround the stronghold of Banī-Quray'ah whose members were shooting from this stronghold and insulting the Holy Prophet.

After a twenty-five day siege, Banī-Quray'ah had to surrender. Aws who were in a military pact with Banī-Quray'ah asked the Holy Prophet to treat their allies the same way as he had treated Banī-Qaynuqī', the Allies of Khazaraj. The Holy Prophet said, "Let your leader, Sa'd ibn Mu'adh, be a judge in this issue." The people of Aws and Banī-Quray'ah accepted. Traditionally, Sa'd should have favored Banī-Quray'ah. Uninfluenced by the recommendation of his tribe, Sa'd declared that he would not fear any criticism. When he obtained the permission of both sides, he issued that men of Banī-Quray'ah should be killed, their women and children taken as captives and their possessions confiscated. This verdict was immediately put into action. 'Uyay ibn Akhṣab, the chief of Banī'l-Naṣr who had encouraged Banī-Quray'ah to breach their pact with Muslims, was also killed. In his last moments, he was severely reproached for his acts of treason. Instead of confessing his errors and feeling remorse, he deemed the unfortunate fate of Banī-Quray'ah and him the result of God's predeterminism. He addressed the Holy Prophet saying, "I do not regret my enmity to you; rather, one whom God decides to be miserable will be miserable forever." He then turned to people and said, "We should surrender to God's wishes; this defeat was imposed by God over the Israelites.¹”

The Holy Prophet sent a group of captives to Najd in order to buy horses and ammunitions.² Referring to their disastrous fate, the Holy Qur'ān remarks:

And He drove down those of the followers of the Book who backed them from their fortresses and He cast awe into their hearts; some you killed and you took captive another part. And He made you heirs to their land and their dwellings and their property; and to a land which you have not yet trodden, and Allah has power over all things. (33: 26-27)

Analysis and Criticism

Although the details of this issue are ambiguous for historians, we will deal with two views hereinafter:

(1) Some European authors have criticized the treatment that Banī-Quray'ah received as barbarous and inhumane.³ However, this criticism cannot be held

¹ For further information concerning this war, refer to the following reference books: Al-ṭabaqāt al-Kubrī 2:74-78; Tārīkh al-Umam wa'l-Mulūk 3:53-58; al-Maghāzī 2:496-524; al-Sīrah al-Nabawīyah 3:244-261; Wafī' al-Wafī' 1:305-309; Bi'ār al-Anwār 20:233-238.

² Ibn Hushaym, al-Sīrah al-Nabawīyah 3:256; ṭabarq, Tārīkh al-Umam wa'l-Mulūk 3:58.

The Holy Prophet sent another group to Damascus under the leadership of Sa'd ibn 'Abīdah. (al-Wāqīdī, al-Maghāzī 2:533). For further information about the Battle of the Allies and Banī-Quray'ah, refer to al-Maẓnī fī Tafsīr al-Qur'ān 16:291-303.

³ Montgomery Watt, Mu'ammad at Medina, pp. 327. The writer criticizes this verdict. Referring Banī-Quray'ah's treason, he writes, "At the Battle of the Allies and the siege of Medina, the status of Muslims was extremely perilous and there was the danger of Banī-Quray'ah's joining the enemies. In that case, Muslim's conditions considering the crimes they had committed, because they not only broke their contract with Muslims but also committed acts of treason inside Medina when they supplied the enemies with ammunition. We know that in warfare, these acts could not be pardonable.

The Holy Prophet could have punished them himself; but due to the request of the people of Aws, he accepted the judgment of Sa'd. This proposal was accepted by both Aws and Banī-Quray'ah. So, there is no room left for criticism.

This question still holds: Whom should be treated kindly; and where should affections be used? Should those who have bypassed human values and whose very nature is filled with hatred be eligible to receive mercy?¹ Were the Jews of Banī'l-Naḍir, under the leadership of 'Uyay ibn Akhṣab, not pardoned? However, they did not cease conspiring against Muslims and they practically waged a war against Muslims. How could 'Uyay ibn Akhṣab and Ka'b ibn Asad convince others that they would neither resume their previous viciousness nor would they prepare forces to destroy Muslims? Was leniency appropriate in their case? During the siege of would have become even worse and the Islamic movement would have ceased for ever. They should have been treated kindly by Mu'ammad." See Muṣṣafī 'usaynī ṭabīṣabī'q, Treason in the Historical Accounts 3:164-165.

¹ The secret reports of Banī-Quray'ah show their extreme aggression and obstinacy. Although one of them, together with his wife and children, was pardoned by the Holy Prophet upon the request of some Muslims, he preferred death to stopping obstinacy! See Ibn Hushaym, al-Sīrah al-Nabawīyah 3:253-254.

Medina, Ab£-Sufyjn wrote a threatening letter to the Holy Prophet, saying:

"I swear to Ljt and `Uzzj that I have come here with this army to fight you. We will not need any further fight; I am determined to destroy you this time. However, if we return to Mecca, we will make for you a day like the day of U|ud when women will not stop mourning."¹

If this had happened would Ban£-Quray`ah not have cooperated with the Allies?

Sa`d's judgment was in accordance with the commands in the Torah—whose penal laws must have been known by him—that reads:

"When you approach a city to engage in fight, first propose peace. If they open the doors to you, all of them will fall slaves to you. If they refuse to have peace, then you must fight and kill their men, take their women and children as captives, and confiscate their property."²

(2) A contemporary researcher has denied the punishment of Ban£-Quray`ah. Referring to some records, he has reckoned impossible such a severe punishment by the Holy Prophet.³ Although his statements could be used as a protection to defend the

¹ al-Wjqid£, al-Maghjz£ 2:492.

² The Old Testament, Book of Deuteronomy, Chapter 20. For further information about Sa`d's judgment, see Ja`far Sub|jn£, Fur£gh-e-Abadiyyat 2:154-157; Mus£afj ±abj£abj'£, Treason in the Historical Accounts 3:161-173.

³ Sayyid Ja`far Shah£d£, Tjr£kh Ta'll£l£ Isljm tj Pjyjn Umawiyyjn, pp. 73-75.

Muslim status vis-à-vis the European and Zionist propaganda, the reasons this writer has offered are not valid.¹ In his reasoning, he has not paid attention to verse 26 of S£rah al-A|zjb (No. 33) which refers to this issue. Furthermore, after the Battle of the Allies (A'zjb), there is no mention of Ban£-Quray`ah in historical records. If the issue of punishment had not existed, there should have been some mentions of their existence as such.

The War of Ban£'l-Mu¥£alaq

In Sha`b|n² of the sixth year of Hegira, the Holy Prophet was informed that °j|rith ibn Ab£-®|rjr, the chief of Ban£'l-Mu¥£alaq—a branch of Ban£-Khuzj`ah—had mobilized some men together with some Arabs of that region to attack Medina. The Holy Prophet mobilized Muslim troops and went forward as far as Musayr£`Well³ in the coastal areas of the Red Sea. The war took place there. Ban£'l-Mu¥£alaq were easily defeated; many captives were taken and their property was confiscated.⁴

Juwayriyah, daughter of °j|rith, was among the captives. In order to free his daughter, °j|rith met the Holy Prophet in Medina. He embraced Islam when the Holy Prophet

¹ Sayyid `Al£ M£r Shar£f£, A quick Look at the War of Ban£-Quray`ah.

² Some historians, including al-Buljdhar£, al-Wjqid£, and Mu£ammad Ibn Sa`d, reckon this war among the events of the fifth year of Hegira. For this reason, they have put it before the Battle of the Allies. Some reasons confirm their position. See al-S£rah al-Nabawiyyah 3:302; Wafj' al-Wafj' 1:314.

³ For this reason, it is also called the Battle of Musayr£`.

⁴ Ibn Hushjm, op cit, 3:302-308; ±abar£, op cit, 3:63-66; al-Majlis£, op cit, 20:281-290.

told him that he hid two camels which he had determined to offer to the Holy Prophet as her daughter's ransom. The Holy Prophet first freed Juwayriyah and then married her.¹

In honor of the Holy Prophet, Muslims made free the captives who had now become relatives by marriage of the Holy Prophet. For this reason, Juwayriyah is remembered as the Holy Prophet's most blessed wife.² This marriage could be regarded as an instance of the Holy Prophet's marriages purposed for social consequences and personal considerations.

The Journey for `Umrah

In the 6th year of Hegira, the Holy Prophet decided to go to Mecca for `Umrah (minor pilgrimage). Muslims could not go on such rituals since the emigration. This journey, besides spiritual phases, was a kind of religious demonstration. It attracted the Meccan pilgrims and showed the increasing number of the Holy Prophet's followers. It also showed that the ceremonies of °ajj and `Umrah, which were significant religious events for the infidels, were also accepted by Mu'ammad's religion and was among its acts of worship. This fact had tremendous effects on their hearts and affections. If Quraysh tried to stop the ceremony of `Umrah, it would have a bad effect on the public opinion and this would be a disadvantage for them. Quraysh had always encouraged pilgrimage; they used to entertain the pilgrims—an act that they always recognized as point of honor. Now if they stopped the Muslim participants, this would bring forth people's hatred.¹

¹ Ibn Hushjm, op cit, 3:308; Muf'ed, al-Irshid, pp. 118-119; Ibn Shahrjshfb, Manjqib 1:201.

² Ibn Hushjm, op cit, 3:307-308; al-Wiqidg, op cit, 1:411; ±abarsg, Iljm al-Warj, pp. 94. In some other historical records, there is another account of this marriage.

In Dhç'l-Qa`dah, the Holy Prophet entered Mecca with eighteen hundred followers.² During this journey, he ordered his men to carry only one sword as weapon and take the sacrificial camels from Medina so that everybody could see that they did not intend to fight.

Quraysh became aware of the Holy Prophet's decision to enter Mecca. For this purpose, they left the city with their military troops. The Holy Prophet unwillingly had to stop at the land of °udaybiyah. Quraysh sent several couriers to find out his intention. Each time, he informed them, "We have no intention to fight; we have come here to perform the ceremony of `Umrah." However, Quraysh still made trouble for their entrance into Mecca.

The Riªwin Allegiance

Ultimately, the Holy Prophet sent `Uthmjn ibn `Affjn

¹ When Quraysh stopped the entrance of Muslims to Mecca, a great man of Mecca, named °ulays ibn `Alqamah, threatened that if they continued in this way, he would mobilize his tribe against them. See Ibn Hushjm, Al-Sçrah al-Nabawiyyah 3:326; Tjrçkh al-±abarç 3:75; Mu'ammad Ibn Sa`d, Al-±abaqjt al-Kubrj 2:96; °alabç, al-Sçrah al-°alabiyyah 2:696.

² Shaykh al-Kulaynç, al-Rawªah min al-Kjfc, pp. 322. The number of the Holy Prophet's companions is said to have been seven hundred, or one thousand and three hundred, or four hundred and twenty-five, or six hundred. See al-Sçrah al-°alabiyyah 2:689; al-Maghjzç 2:614; Al-±abaqjt al-Kubrj 2:95, 98; Tjrçkh al-±abarç 3:72; Ibn Hushjm, al-Sçrah al-Nabawiyyah 3:332; Majma` al-Bayjn 9:110.

to explain to Quraysh the Holy Prophet's aims. It took long for `Uthmīn to return. Rumors had it that he was killed.¹ Now, the Holy Prophet asked his men to gather under a tree to convene an allegiance for perseverance.² After this ceremony, it turned out that the rumor of `Uthmīn's death was not true. Since this allegiance was held under a tree and God was pleased with the believers who participated in it, this pledge of allegiance was called Riḥwīn (Pleasure) Allegiance or the Pledge of the Tree.³

The °udaybiyah Truce

After the fruitless return of `Uthmīn, Suhayl ibn `Amr was sent to the Holy Prophet on the part of Quraysh for negotiation. He specified as a pre-condition of a conclusion of a truce that Muslims would not perform `Umrah that year.⁴ This negotiation terminated in the convention of the famous °udaybiyah Truce that contained the following paragraphs:

(1) The two parties agree on ten-year ceasefire, protection of people's security, refraining from molesting one another.

(2) Mu'ammad and Muslims should not enter Mecca

¹ al-Maghīẓ 2:602.

² Ibn Hushīm, op cit, pp. 330; ±abarç, op cit, pp. 78; Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 97, 99; al-Bulḍharç, Ansīb al-Ashraf 1:350; ±abarsç, l'lm al-Warj, pp. 96.

³ The Holy Qur'īn reads, "Certainly Allah was well pleased with the believers when they swore allegiance to you under the tree, and He knew what was in their hearts, so He sent down tranquility on them and rewarded them with a near victory. (48:18)"

⁴ ±abarç, op cit, pp. 78; Ibn Hushīm, op cit, pp. 331.

that year. The next year, Quraysh would leave Mecca for three days during which Muslims would enter there to perform `Umrah on condition that each Muslim could carry one sword only.¹

(3) If an individual from Quraysh joins Mu'ammad without his father's consent, Mu'ammad shall send him back to Mecca; but if one of Mu'ammad's followers joins Quraysh, he will never be sent back.

(4) Every tribe is free to enter into treaties with Mu'ammad or Quraysh.²

(5) No party will betray the other or enter in a truce with the other party's enemy and no party will practice any act of aggression against the other.

(6) Following the faith of Islam is free in Mecca and nobody is persecuted because of his belief.³

(7) Anyone of Mu'ammad's followers who enters Mecca for °ajj or `Umrah or for trade shall have his or her life and property protected.⁴

The Prophet's Prediction

After reaching an agreement over the principles of

¹ On the basis of this paragraph, the Holy Prophet and Muslims had to perform the `Umrah ceremony in the seventh year of Hegira. It is thus called `Umrāt al-Qaḥī'.

² The tribe of Khuzī'ah announced paid homage to the Muslims; while Banī-Bakr convened a contract with Quraysh.

³ ±abarsç, op cit, pp. 97; al-Bulḍharç, op cit, pp. 350-351; Ibn Hushīm, op cit, pp. 332; ±abarsç, l'lm al-Warj, pp. 97; al-Majlisç, Bi'īr al-Anwīr 20:352; and see Al-±abaqīt al-Kubrī 2:97, 101, 102.

⁴ ±abarsç, l'lm al-Warj, pp. 97; °alabç, al-Sçrah al-°alabiyyah, 2:77; al-Majlisç, Bi'īr al-Anwīr 20:350, 352.

truce, Imam `Alç wrote down the written form of the truce beginning with, 'bismillîhir-ra'mîjnir-ra'çm (In the Name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful)'. The representative of Quraysh objected to this statement and to the title of 'rasîl allîh (the Messenger of God)' given to the Holy Prophet. It took them a long time to settle this dispute. Finally, the Holy Prophet consented to it after realizing its benefits. While Imam `Alç was erasing the statement, the Holy Prophet foretold him, "One day, this will happen to you and you will have to accept."¹

This prediction came true when Imam `Alç had to erase the title of 'amçr al-mu'minçn (the Commander of the Believers)' during the truce he had to sign with Mu`jwiyah immediately after the Battle of `iffçn.²

Bearings of the °udaybiyah Truce

Because they could not foresee the results, Muslims regarded this truce as loss.³ Some of them insisted on the Holy Prophet not to sign it.⁴ However, he predicted that ¹ ±abarsç, Majma` al-Bayjn 9:118; al-Majlisç, op cit, 20:334, 350.

For further information regarding the °udaybiyah Truce, see A'mad Miyinjç, Makjçb al-Rasîl 1:275, 287; Mu'ammad °amçdullîh, Wathj'iq, pp. 66, 68.

² Naÿr ibn Muzîim, Waq`at `iffçn, pp. 508-509; ±abarsç, op cit, pp. 97; Ibn Wîîl, Tjçkh al-Ya`qçbç 2:179; al-Daynawarç, al-Akhbjr al-±iwjîl, pp. 194; Ibn al-Athçr, al-Kjmil fç'l-Tjçkh 3:32; °alabç, op cit, pp. 708.

³ al-Majlisç, op cit, 20:350.

⁴ al-Wjçidç, al-Maghjzç 2:607; Ibn Hushjm, al-Sçrah al-Nabawiyah 3:331; Tjçkh al-±abarç 3:97; °alabç, al-Sçrah al-°alabiyyah 2:706. The explicit opposition of some Muslims to the Holy Prophet's resolution was a sign of obstinacy on their part towards him. This issue this truce would carry numerous political and social benefits for Muslims some of which were the following:

(1) The enemy recognized Muslims and their creed through signing the truce. Before that, the unbelievers had never confessed Islam as an independent religion. Moreover, they always worked and wished for destroying this religion.

(2) The invulnerable wall between Muslims was broken by this truce. Due to opening a free passage between Mecca and Medina and the communications between the two parties, many unbelievers became Muslims after they had listened to the reasoning of Islam. The number of converts was more than the number of Muslims up to that point.¹ It is worth noting that the Holy Prophet's followers during this journey numbered no more than 1800, but two years later and during the conquest of Mecca, the number was more than ten thousand. Considering this favorable situation for Muslims, Imam al-`jdiq says,

"Two years after the °udaybiyah Truce, Islam was almost the prevailing religion of Mecca."² was repeated several times by some of them and this was the source of many bitter events in the history of Islam. This is in contrast with the view that Muslims should be obedient to God's commands. God says in this regard: "And it behooves not a believing man and a believing woman that they should have any choice in their matter when Allah and His Apostle have decided a matter; and whoever disobeys Allah and His Apostle, he surely strays off a manifest straying." (Qur'jn 33:36)

¹ Ibn Hushjm, op cit, 3:336; ±abarç, op cit, 3:81; °alabç, op cit, 2:721.

² ±abarsç, lîlm al-Warj, pp. 98; al-Majlisç, Bi'jr al-Anwjir 20:363.

(3) Before the ʿudaybiyah Truce, the enmity and aggressions of Quraysh had not given a chance to the Holy Prophet to propagate his ideology inside and out side the Arabian Peninsula. After that, the Holy Prophet could liquidate the surroundings of Medina and dispatch several missionaries to different territories. Inviting the world leaders to Islam could take place only after the ʿudaybiyah Truce.

(4) This truce indirectly led to the seizure of Mecca because, in accordance with its forth paragraph, the alliance of tribes with Quraysh or Muslims was a matter of free choice and the tribe of Khuzj`ah allied with Muslims. However, Quraysh attacked this tribe and thus breached the truce causing the Holy Prophet to seize Mecca.

Regarding such bright results, the ʿudaybiyah Truce can be seen as a great victory for Muslims. S̥rah al-Fat̥ was revealed to the Holy Prophet when he was on his way to sign on this truce.¹ God called this treaty as a clear victory.²

¹ Ibn Sa`d, op cit, 2:104, 105; Ibn Hushim, op cit, 3:334; ʿabars̥, ʿl̥m al-Warj, pp. 98; ʿalab̥, op cit, pp. 714.

² “Surely, we have given to you a clear victory. (48:1)

SECTION FIVE
FROM THE UNIVERSAL INVITATION TO THE DEPARTURE OF THE HOLY PROPHET

- Chapter One:
Universal Invitation to Islam
- Chapter Two:
The spread of Islam
- Chapter Three:
The Farewell Pilgrimage and the Demise of the Prophet

CHAPTER ONE

Universal Invitation to Islam

The Holy Prophet's Universal Mission

Although the faith of Islam appeared in the Arabian peninsula among the Arab nation and the Holy Prophet was an Arab, Islam was not a local faith that is restricted to the Arab nation. To prove, the Holy Qur'ān addressed neither Quraysh nor the Arab nation; Rather, it addresses all people. In some verses that order Muslims to perform certain tasks and responsibilities, the Holy Qur'ān addresses them as believers. From the very beginning of his mission throughout his invitation to Islam in Mecca, the Holy Prophet declared that his mission was a universal issue. Besides, the Holy Qur'ān is dealing with universal issues on many occasions, such as the following:

Say: O people! Surly I am the Apostle of Allah to you all. (7:158)

And We have not sent you but to all the men as a bearer of good news. (34:28)

And it is naught but a reminder to the nations. (68:52)

It is nothing but a reminder and a plain Qur'ān that it may warn him who is alive. (36:69-70)

He it is Who sent His Apostle with guidance and the religion of truth, that he might cause it to prevail over all religions. (9:33)

And We have not sent you but as a mercy to the

All these holy verses were revealed in Mecca; a fact demonstrating that the general invitation to Islam took place from the very initial stages. However, despite these authentic reasons, some European scholars, such as Goldziher, have claimed that Mu'ammad's widespread faith only took place later on and that his very initial instructions did not go farther than the needs of the ignorant Arabs of his time.¹ This claim is too worthless to require evidence.

The Start of the Universal Invitation

If the Holy Prophet did not take any step for the spread of Islam outside the Arabian Peninsula during his stay in Mecca and several years after his Hegira, this was due to the enmity and aggression leveled at him by Meccan unbelievers, the Jews and other enemies. However, after the convention of ʿUdaybiyah Truce that brought about a temporary relief from the aggressions of Quraysh and a relative calm over Mecca, the Holy Prophet wrote several letters to the kings and governors of different countries inviting them to his Faith. In one day only, he wrote six letters to al-Najshī, the king of Abyssinia, Caesar of Rome; Khosrow Parviz of Iran, al-Muqawqas of Egypt, ʿIrith ibn Abʿ-Šimr al-Ghassānī of Damascus, and Hawdhah Ibn ʿAlʿ of Yamāmah, as well as many other kings and governors.² These letters were written in Dhī'l-ʿijjah of the sixth year of Hegira or Mu'arram of the seventh. Of course, this was just the beginning of the universal invitation to Islam. Moreover, from that day on and up to his last day of life, the Holy Prophet continued writing letters to the different countries of the world.¹ The content of all these letters was identical and all of them were written in a simple, explicit and decisive style. However, reactions of the world leaders were not identical.

¹ Mu'ammad al-Ghazzālī, the Trial of Goldziher the Zionist, pp. 79-80.

² Ibn Sa'd, al-ʿabaqāt al-Kubrī 1:258-262.

Conquest of Khaybar

Khaybar consisted of several castles. Its people were engaged in agriculture and animal husbandry. Due to its good agricultural capacities, it was referred to as the wheat store of °ijz.² Its people also enjoyed good economic prosperity. The great goods and ammunitions which fell in the hands of Muslims after the collapse of the castles witness to this issue. The very structure of the castles was strong and enduring and the number of their troops was in thousands.³ For this reason, they considered themselves strong enough to stop the attacks of Muslims.¹

¹ Miyinjē, Makjēb al-Rasēl 1:31. Ibn Hushjm, in al-Sērah al-Nabawiyyah 4:254, states that the Holy Prophet sent ten letters to the rulers and kings of the world. According to Tjrekh al-Ya`qēbē 2:66-67, the Holy Prophet's letters were thirteen. Mas`ēdē, in al-Tanbēh wa'l-Ishrif pp. 236-237, states that they were six. A contemporary researchers, namely A'mad `jbirē Hamadjnē, in his book of Mu'ammad wa-Zimjmdjrn, the Holy Prophet's letters were only two or three!

² al-Wjqidē, al-Maghjzē 2:434; Ibn Hushjm, al-Sērah al-Nabawiyyah 4:360.

³ al-Wjqidē, op cit, pp. 637-703. Al-Ya`qēbē states that the number of these letters was twenty thousand (2:46).

¹ al-Wjqidē, op cit, pp. 637.

The Jews of Khaybar made use of any chance available to try to destroy the newly built Islamic government as their city was turned into a permanent center for conspiracies against Islam. Having been defeated in Medina, the chiefs of Banf'l-Naær joined Khaybar to cooperate with them against Islam.

In the sixth year of Hegira, Salljm ibn Abē'l-uqayq, one of Banf'l-Naær's chiefs who had obtained the leadership of the Jews of Khaybar through cooperation with the tribe of Ghašafjn and other infidel tribes, gathered a great troop to fight against Muslims. After he was killed by Muslims due to plotting conspiracies against them, people of Khaybar appointed Usayr ibn Zjrim as their leader.¹ This man, too, engaged himself in aggression and provocation of tribes against Muslims.²

To eradicate the previous signs of enmity, the Holy Prophet dispatched a group under the supervision of `Abdulljh ibn Rawjlah to the newly appointed leader to secure his consent for peace. The new leader, together with `Abdulljh and a group of Jews, was on his way to Medina to talk to the Holy Prophet. However, on the way, he changed his mind and tried to kill `Abdulljh. Due to this confrontation, he and his company all were killed.³ In this way, the Holy Prophet's peaceful plans became null and void.

A contemporary historian states that in addition to

¹ According to Ibn Hushjm, al-Sērah al-Nabawiyyah 4:266, the name was Yusayr ibn Rizjm.

² Ibn Sa`d, al-ābaqjt al-Kubrj 2:91-92.

³ Ibn Hushjm, op cit, 4:266-267.

these conspiracies, Muslims anticipated that the Jews of Khaybar who had already incurred the hostility of Muslims might be used by the Iranian or Roman empires to prepare for an attack against Islam as a compensation for the defeat and failure of Banī-Qaynuqī', Banī'l-Naḍr, and Banī-Quray'ah.¹

After the convention of the ʿUdaybiyah Truce through which the Holy Prophet was at ease regarding the dangers from the south, he, together with fourteen Muslim warriors, headed to the north to disarm the Jews of Khaybar. That was in the beginning of the seventh year of Hegira. He chose such a direction for his involvement as to cut the relations of Ghaṣafīn, the powerful ally of Khaybar, with the people of Khaybar depriving them of any cooperation with each other.² Using the tactic of surprise, all the castles and strongholds of Khaybar fell to Muslims and the Jewish chiefs presumed predicament with dawn.

The encounter was unequal; warriors of Khaybar were in their stronghold, they had the doors firmly closed and through their guards on the towers and high walls hindered any Muslim approach. In one attack, fifty Muslim warriors were wounded.³

Besides, the warriors of Khaybar had sufficient supplies, but Muslims felt short of supplies as the war continued. Finally, with great hardships on the part of Muslims, the castles fell one after another. However, the last castle, called Qimf, which was supervised by the famous Jewish hero named Mar'ab, continued to defend itself and Muslim warriors were unable to capture.

¹ Muḥammad ʿasanayn Haykal, ʿayit Mu'ammad, pp. 386.

² al-Wiqidī, op cit, pp. 634.

³ Al-Wiqidī, op cit, pp. 646.

One day, the Holy Prophet gave the banner to Abī-Bakr and the next day to ʿUmar with some troops to attack the castle, but they both failed.¹ Seeing this, the Holy Prophet declared:

“Tomorrow, I will hand this banner to one who, with God's support, will capture this castle; one who is loved by God and His Apostle and God and His Apostle love; he is not a quitter.”

That night, every Muslim desired that he would be given the banner. When dawn came, the Holy Prophet asked, “Where is ʿAlī?” They replied, “He is suffering a severe eye-ache and he is now at rest.” The Holy Prophet summoned ʿAlī and cured his eyes. Submitting the banner to ʿAlī, the Holy Prophet ordered him, “Move towards them; as soon as you arrive at their castle, invite them to Islam and remind them of their rights. I swear to God that to conduct one person to the truth is better for you than having red-haired camels.”²

¹ ʿabarī, Tjrkḥ al-Umam wa'l-Mulḥ 3:93; Ibn Hushīm, al-Sḥrah al-Nabawiyyah 4:349; Ibn Kathīr, al-Bidjyah wa'l-Nihjyah 4:186.

² The Holy Prophet's statement and Imam ʿAlī's mission were reported with some differences in the following reference books: ʿaʿī/ al-Bukhjrī 1:5; ʿaʿī/ Muslim 15:76-177; Ibn Saʿd, al-ʿabaqīt al-Kubrī 2:110-111; Shaykh al-ʿadīq, Kitāb al-Irshīd, pp. 311; Tjrkḥ al-ʿabarī 3:93; al-Qanadīzī, Yanībīʿ al-Mawaddah 1:47; Ibn al-Athīr, al-Kmil fī'l-Tjrkḥ 2:219; Ibn ʿAbd al-Barr, al-Isḥīb 3:36; al-ʿakīm al-Naysībī, al-Mustadrak ʿAlī'l-ʿaʿī/ayn 3:104; Ibn Hushīm, al-Sḥrah al-Nabawiyyah 3:349; Ibn ʿajar, al-ʿawjīq al-Muʿriqah, pp.

Imam `Alç headed for the mission; he could kill Mar'ab through a heroic encounter in which Imam `Alç showed a unique bravery. He then could conquer that castle.

Attacking the castles of Khaybar, which were centers of conspiracy against Islam, shows a number of important matters some of which are as follows:

(1) This shows that the Holy Prophet enjoyed an effective management when he chose the quite suitable person to this mission.

(2) He used effective military tactics, such as the principle of surprise and the gathering of information.

(3) Imam `Alç showed such a unique bravery that none else had.

Imam `Alç's self-sacrifice and bravery in this war was so great that the Holy Prophet appreciated it and praised him for his vigor and stamina, declaring his precedence before all other Muslims.

Muslims also remembered this praise on many occasions. For instance, when he came to power, Mu`jwiyah ordered everybody to curse Imam `Alç openly. Sa`d ibn Abç-Waqqi¥ abstain from carrying out this order. When Mu`jwiyah asked for the reason, Sa`d answered,

"I will never curse him, because I remember that the Holy Prophet mentioned three of his virtues, which I wished I could have only one of them. (1) In one of the wars [i.e. Tab£k], the Holy Prophet appointed him as his successor in Medina. `Alç asked, 'Do you leave me with women and children in town?' The Prophet answered, 'Do you not like to be my successor in the same way as (Prophet) Aaron was the successor of (Prophet) Moses, except that there will be no prophet after me?' (2) In the war of Khaybar, the Prophet declared, 'I will submit the banner to a person who loves God and His Apostle and God and His Apostle love him.' On that day, every one of us wished to gain such a prestige. The Prophet then ordered his men to summon `Alç. `Alç came, while he was suffering from a bad eye-ache. The Prophet rubbed his eyes with his own saliva. Suddenly, `Alç's pain drove off and he received the banner from the Holy Prophet. God caused the castle to be conquered through `Alç. (3) When it was arranged for the Holy Prophet to enter into Mubjhalah [mutual cursing] with the Christian priests of Najrîn, this verse was revealed to him: 'Say: Let us call our sons and your sons and our women and your women. (3:61)' The prophet thus called `Alç, Fjšimah, °asan and °usayn and declared, 'O God, these are my Household.'"¹

121; al-Wiqidç, al-Maghizç 2:635; Ibn Wîl, Tjrkçh al-Yaq£bç 2:46; Ibn Kathçr, al-Bidjyah wa'l-Nihjyah 4:186; al-Sçrah al-°alabiyyah 2:733-736; Shaykh al-£sç, al-Amjleç, pp. 380.

¹ - a/ç/ Muslim 15:176.

Sa`d ibn Abç-Waqqi¥ (belonged to Ban£-Zuhrah) was one of the early converts to Islam at the age of seventeen (Al-±abaqjt al-Kubrj 3:134) or fourteen (al-Sçrah al-°alabiyyah 1:434) in Mecca. In Medina, he was considered one of the great figures of Muhjjir£n. He was among `Alç's political rivals and one of the members of the six-member council who was set to select a caliph after `Umar's assassination. He refused to vote for `Alç (Ibn Abç'l-°adçd, Shar' Nahj al-Balighah 1:188). After the assassination of `Uthmjin, Imam `Alç was elected by all Muslims except a few group among was Sa`d who rejected to pay homage to Imam `Alç (Mas£dç, Mur£j al-Dhahab 2:353; Ibn al-

Referring to that epoch-making war, Imam `Alç says, "We were faced with a mountain of men and military ammunitions; their castles were invincible and their number was huge. Their heroes left the castles each day, asking for warriors. Any one of us who arrived at the battlefield was killed. When the fire of war was blazing and the enemy was asking for warriors to duel with; and when our troops were suffering from fright and fear; and they were looking at one another in a timid way, I was asked to go on the scene. The Prophet asked me to rise and attack the castle. I went forward and confronted their hero, killing him on the spot; I did the same thing with others. I made many of them retreat. Then, like a lion chasing the prey, I followed them until they took shelter inside the castle. Then they closed down the gates. I tore off the gate and entered the castle alone... I had nobody to help except for God..."¹

The people of Khaybar surrendered after the fall of the last castle and the war terminated. The casualties of the troops of Khaybar reportedly were forty-three² and the number of the martyrs was twenty-eight.³

The Fate of the Jews of Khaybar

Upon their surrender, the Jews of Khaybar asked the Holy Prophet to permit them to stay on their lands for cultivation. He agreed on condition that they should yield Athçr, al-Kjmil fç'l-Tjrçkh 3:191). Despite his situation from Imam `Alç, he had to confess these three unmatched virtues of `Alç.

¹ - adfçq, al-Khi¥jl, pp. 369, chapter 7.

² al-Majlisç, Bi'jr al-Anwjr 21:32.

³ Mu'ammad Ibrjhem ^ayatç, the History of the Prophet of Islam, pp. 473-475.

half of their yearly produce to the Islamic government¹ and that they should leave when the Holy Prophet wished so.² This treaty was in effect until the reign of `Umar when they took part in some conspiracies against Muslims. For this reason, `Umar banished them to Damascus.³

Fadak

After the fall of Khaybar, the Jews of Fadak surrendered with no resistance and entered into a treaty with the Holy Prophet like the one with Khaybar. Since Fadak was captured with no fight, half of its revenue went to the Holy Prophet.⁴

¹ al-Wiqidç, al-Maghjzç 2:690; Yiqft al-°amawç, Mu`jam al-Buldjn 2:410.

² Ibn Hushjm, al-Sçrah al-Nabawiyyah 3:352.

³ Yiqft al-°amawç, op cit, pp. 410; al-Buljdharç, Futç' al-Buldjn, pp. 36-37.

⁴ al-Buljdharç, op cit, pp. 42; Ibn Hushjm 2:352; Ibn al-Athçr, al-Kjmil fç'l-Tjrçkh 2:224; al-Wiqidç, op cit, 2:707; Yiqft al-°amawç, op cit, 4:236; Qsim ibn Salljm, al-Amwjl, pp. 16.

CHAPTER TWO

The spread of Islam

The war of Mu'tah

After the ʿUdaybiyah Truce, the Holy Prophet started his universal mission and invited the heads of governments of the world to his faith. Among the countries of those days, the Roman Empire and the Iranian Empire enjoyed high standards of living. Having acquired some information regarding the Prophet's mission, Caesar of Rome had the will to accept Islam; but when he revealed his intentions, he was resisted by the Christians and the Roman army; therefore, he had to withdraw his decision.¹ This shows that the commanders of the Roman army had a hostile attitude towards Islam. We could find the root of the Mu'tah war with this view.

In order to spread his faith outside the Arabian Peninsula, the Holy Prophet dispatched ʿġrith Ibn ʿUmayr al-Azdī to carry a letter to the King of Buḡrj (Damascus).² That was in Jum̃dġ al-ḥġ, the eighth year of Hegira.

Shuraḃḃl ibn ʿAmr al-Ghassġnġ, the governor of Damascus appointed by the Roman emperor,¹ arrested the Holy Prophet's courier and, having known the nature of his mission, killed him at the village of Mu'tah. This event saddened the Holy Prophet greatly.²

Although the murder of one person could not be considered good reason to start war, the murder of the Holy Prophet's representative, which was against ethical codes, was in fact a sort of military threat on the part of the governor of Damascus vis-à-vis the peaceful invitation to the Holy Prophet's faith. He therefore decided to send a troop over there. This movement could be interpreted as a sign of military power.

Based on these facts, the Holy Prophet dispatched to Mu'tah an army of three thousand troops under the commandership of Ja'far ibn Abġ-ḥġlib,³ Zayd ibn ʿġrithah and ʿAbdullġh ibn Rawġlah respectively.⁴

¹ ʿalabġ, op cit, 2:786.

² al-Wġqidġ, al-Maghġzġ 2:755; Ibn Sa'd, Al-ḥabaġġt al-Kubrġ 2:128.

³ Ja'far ibn Abġ-ḥġlib, having lived in Abyssinia for several years, returned to Medina in the seventh year of Hegira. After the conquest of Khaybar, he met the Holy Prophet there. The Holy Prophet was so delighted with Ja'far's return that he said, "I do not know which news is more delightful; Ja'far's return or the conquest of Khaybar!" See al-ʿġkim al-Naysġḃġr's al-Mustadrak ʿAlġ'l-ʿa'ġ'ayn 2:624. For further information, refer to Ibn Sa'd, al-ḥabaġġt al-Kubrġ 4:35, Ibn al-Athġr, Usd al-Ghġbah 1:287; Ibn ʿAbd al-Barr, al-Isġ'ġb 1:210; Abġ'l-Faraj al-ʿġfahġnġ, Maġġtil al-ḥġlibġyġn, pp. 30; Ibn Kathġr: al-Bidġyah wa'l-Nihġyah 4:206.

⁴ ḥabrisġ, lġġm al-Warġ, pp. 107. Although some reports state that Zayd had taken the commandership of the Muslim army during that battle before Ja'far, some Shġ'ite narrations (according to ḥabarsġ) show that Ja'far was the first commander, as is confirmed by some

¹ Zaynġ Daġġn, al-Sġrah al-Nabawġyyah 2:170-171; ʿalabġ, al-Sġrah al-ʿalabġyyah 3:289-290.

² ʿalabġ writes: "The Holy Prophet sent a letter to Hercules, the Roman emperor, who resided in Damascus at that time." See al-Sġrah al-ʿalabġyyah 2:786.

The Islamic troops faced the one hundred thousand troops of Rome near the village of Mu'tah. The three Muslim commanders bore the banner in turn and they all were martyred. Then, the Muslim troops elected Khilid ibn Wal'ed as the commander-in-chief. Using special tactics, he frightened the enemy and then issued the command to retreat to Medina.¹

Al-Wiqidi records that the martyrs of this war were eight² but Ibn Hushim records them as twelve.³ In some contemporary records, it is written that they were seventeen.⁴ The tombs of these martyrs rest next to the city of Mu'tah;⁵ each one of the commanders has a magnificent shrine with a dome. Next to the tomb of Ja'far, there is built a handsome mosque.⁶

details of the event. See Sub'inç, Furğh Abadiyyat 2:291-293. A narration reported by Ibn Sa'd deals with this issue. (Al-ʿabaqit al-Kubrî 2:130). For further information, refer to Ja'far Murtaqî's Dirîsîjt wa-Bu'êth fê'l-Tîrêkh wa'l-Islîm 1:210 and the following pages.

¹ Ibn Hushim, al-Serah al-Nabawiyyah 4:19-21; ʿabarç, Tîrêkh al-Umam wa'l-Mulêk 3:107-110; al-Wiqidç, op cit, 2:755-769; Ibn Sa'd, op cit, 2:128-130; ʿalabç, op cit, 2:787-793; ʿabarsç, Ilîm al-Warî pp. 102-104; Zaynç Daîjn, op cit, 2:68-72; al-Majlisç, Bi'îr al-Anwîr 21:50-63; ʿÊsç, al-Amîlç, pp. 141.

² al-Maghîzç 2:769.

³ Al-Serah al-Nabawiyyah 4:30.

⁴ Mu'ammad Ibrîhîm ʿyatç, the History of the Prophet of Islam, pp. 501.

⁵ This city is situated in Jordan, in the southern province of Karak, which is 135 Kilometers away from the capital Amman.

⁶ Ja'far Sub'inç, A report of a journey made to Jordan (Mu'tah, the land of Memories), Lessons from the School of Islam Magazine, year 38, Issue No. 7, Mehr 1377 ASH.

The conquest of Mecca

One of the articles of the ʿudaybiyah Truce was ceasefire between the infidels and Muslims. The Holy Prophet made use of the tranquility and took big strides: he sent different missionaries to all countries of the world and enacted his universal mission; he either disarmed the enemies residing around Medina or convened treaties with them. In the meantime, Khaybar, which was the center of conspiracies, collapsed altogether.

The Quraysh breach of truce

After two years, the ʿudaybiyah Truce was broken by Quraysh. According to the fourth paragraph, any tribe was free to join either the Muslims or Quraysh. At that time, Khuzi'ah made a treaty with Muslims and Banî-Bakr allied with Quraysh.¹

In the eighth year of Hegira, Banî-Bakr attacked Banî-Khuzi'ah at nighttime. In this confrontation Quraysh allied with Banî-Bakr, killing a group of the soldiers of Khuzi'ah. This was a breach of the ʿudaybiyah Truce.² Following the chief of Khuzi'ah's request for assistance,

¹ Prior to Islam, these two tribes were on terms of enmity (Ibn Hushim, al-Serah al-Nabawiyyah 4:310). Since that time, Banî-Khuzi'ah were the allies of ʿAbd al-Muṣṣalib (al-Wiqidç, al-Maghîzç 2:781).

² Ibn Hushim, al-Serah al-Nabawiyyah 1:33; al-Wiqidç, al-Maghîzç 2:783; Ibn Wîṣîl, Tîrêkh al-Ya`qûbç 2:47.

Ibn Hushim writes, "An individual from Banî-Khuzi'ah was killed in this attack." (4:33) However, al-Wiqidç and Ibn Sa'd mention that twenty individuals were killed in this event. (al-Maghîzç 2:784; Al-ʿabaqit al-Kubrî 2:134).

the Holy Prophet announced a general mobilization¹ and decided to attack Mecca. In order for Quraysh not to know the Muslims' plan and to surprise them in an attack so that Mecca could be captured with no bloodshed, the Holy Prophet concealed his destination² and ordered his men to watch the Meccan roads³ asking God to keep Quraysh unaware of his plan.⁴

The Holy Prophet, with an army of ten thousand soldiers, headed for Mecca.⁵ His tactic was successful. The spies of Quraysh were kept in the dark up to the moment when Muslim troops were stationed at the gates of Mecca.

`Abbīs, the Holy Prophet's uncle, lived in Mecca up to that year. As he was heading for Medina, the Islamic troops were heading for Mecca. He met the Holy Prophet at al-Ju'afah and returned to Mecca with him. At the last night of the stationing of the Muslim troops outside the gates of Mecca, `Abbīs saw Abġ-Sufyġn outside the city and took him to meet the Holy Prophet.⁶ Observing the Islamic troops, Abġ-Sufyġn became frightened. The Holy Prophet pardoned him and declared, "Anybody who takes sanctuary in the Kaaba, stays at home or takes shelter at

¹ al-Wġqidġ, op cit, pp. 744-800; Ibn Sa`d, op cit, 2:135.

² al-Wġqidġ, op cit, 2:746-802; Ibn Sa`d, op cit, 2:134.

³ al-Wġqidġ, op cit, 2:787-796; Ibn Sa`d, op cit, 2:134.

⁴ Ibn Hushġm, op cit, 4:34; Ibn Sa`d, op cit, 2:134; Tġrġkh al-Ya`qġbġ 2:47.

⁵ Ibn Hushġm 4:42, pp. 63; Ibn Sa`d, op cit, 2:135; al-Wġqidġ, op cit, 2:801.

⁶ Ibn Hushġm, op cit, pp. 42, 44, 46; al-Wġqidġ, op cit, 2:817-819.

Abġ-Sufyġn's house is unharmed."

Prior to the arrival of the Islamic troops in Mecca, Abġ-Sufyġn informed the people of the Holy Prophet's amnesty. This plan helped the lack of bloodshed and the surrender of the city; so, Mecca collapsed. Only in one section of the city where some obstinate people continued resisting were some people killed.¹

Arriving at Mecca, the Holy Prophet circumambulated the Kaaba while he was riding on a camel and hitting with his cane the idols which had been fastened to the Kaaba with tins, saying,

The truth has come and the falsehood has vanished; surely, falsehood is a vanishing thing. (17:81)

It is well-known for historians and narrators, Imam `Alġ then climbed upon the Holy Prophet's shoulder and destroyed the big idols.² Imam al-ġġdiq states that the idol

¹ The casualties were between fifteen and twenty-eight. See Ibn Hushġm, op cit, pp. 50; al-Wġqidġ, op cit, 2:825; Ibn Sa`d, op cit, 2:136.

² Ibn Hushġm, op cit, 4:49; al-Wġqidġ, op cit, 2:832; Ibn Sa`d, op cit, 2:136. Also see Shaykh al-ġġġġ, al-Amġġġ, pp. 336; al-Sġrah al-`alabiyyah 3:30; Zaynġ Dallġn, al-Sġrah al-Nabawiyyah 2:102; Qasġalġnġ, al-Mawġhib al-Ludaniyyah 1:322; Ibn ġawġs, al-ġarġ'if 1:80-81; Ibn Shahrġshġb, al-Manġqib 2:135-136; Zamakhsharġ, Tafġġr al-Kashshġf 2:244.

Allġmah Amġnġ has reported this event from forty-one Sunni narrators. (al-Ghadġr 7:10-13). On the basis of some reference books (such as: al-Khawġrzmġ's al-Manġqib, Farġ'id al-Simġayn, Yanġbġ` al-Mawaddah, and Tadhkirat al-Khawġrzmġ) and in accordance with some narrations recorded in Biġ'ġr al-Anwġr, this event had taken place one year prior to the Emigration and had taken part at night without letting Quraysh know about it. Most probably, the event might have happened which Imam `Alē destroyed was Hubal. On the Holy Prophet's order, this idol was buried under the Banf-Shaybah Gate, one of the entrances to the Kaaba. Therefore, it is recommended that people enter the Kaaba from this gate.¹

The Prophet's General Amnesty

Although Quraysh and other infidels did not stop hostile attitudes towards Muslims since the advent of Islam as they plotted all sorts of disagreements, pressure, aggression and wrongdoing; and although the Holy Prophet, being in full command, could have taken revenge, he declared a general amnesty,² saying, "I am in both ways.

The ascent of `Alē over the Holy Prophet's shoulders has been mentioned by some poets, such as Ibn al-`Arandas al-`illē, a poet of the ninth century, who composed the following:

`Alē's ascent on A/mad's shoulders was more a great virtue and a lofty point of honor for `Alē. This virtue is different from being a relative of the prophet.

In the same way, Ibn Abē'l-`adēd, in one of his elegies, which is related to Mecca's conquest, composed the following:

You have ascended on the loftiest shoulders which were surrounded with the Qur'jn-reciting angels. You have climbed the shoulder of the best of God's prophets; the shoulder of the dearest and holiest person who has ever lived on the earth.

See Mu'ammad Ibrjħm^ayatē, the History of the Prophet of Islam, pp. 524-530.

¹ Al-`urr al-`amīlē: Wasj'il al-Shē`ah 9:323, Narration 1.

² The number is recorded to have been between eight and ten. (Ibn Hushjīm, al-Sērah al-Nabawiyyah 4:51-53; al-Wjīqidē, al-Maghjzē 2:825; Ibn Sa'd, Al-`abāqīt al-Kubrj 2:136.) However, some of them were pardoned by the Holy Prophet.

repeating the statement of my brother, (Prophet) Joseph: There shall be no proof against you this day, Allah may forgive you, and He is the most Merciful of the merciful. (the Holy Qur'jn 12:92) Go, you are free now.¹

Having surrendered with humiliation and expecting a severe revenge by the Holy Prophet, the unbelievers of Quraysh were highly moved by this great pardon of the Holy Prophet. Next to the Kaaba, he addressed people, saying,

"God has consecrated Mecca from the very beginning of creation. This place shall remain holy and sacred until the Resurrection Day. No Muslim is allowed to cause bloodshed on this land nor is he or she allowed to cut a tree from this place. No one is allowed to do a wrong thing to it now or from now on. Let those who are present tell those who are absent..."²

Upon the conquest of Mecca, the Holy Prophet convened a contract with Meccan women with the following stipulations:

"Do not associate aught with Allah, do not steal, do not commit fornication, do not kill your children, and do not bring a calumny which you have forged of yourselves and do not disobey the Holy Prophet."³

¹ `alabē, al-Sērah al-`alabiyyah 3:49; Zaynē Dal'jn, al-Sērah al-Nabawiyyah 2:48.

² Ibn Hushjīm, op cit, 4:58; Ibn Wjīl, Tjrkħ al-Ya`qēbē 2:50; al-Wjīqidē, op cit, 2:844, with some alterations of words.

³ Sayyid Mu'ammad `usayn `abjšabj'ē, al-Mēzjn fē Tafsēr al-Qur'jn 19:246. This contract was convened after the revelation of the following holy verses:

O Prophet! When believing Women come to you giving you a pledge that they will not associate aught with Allah, and will not

Some well-known figures, who later gained high positions, accepted Islam during the conquest of Mecca. Among them were Abū-Sufyān and his son Mu'awiyah.

Due to the hard living conditions of people, God ascribes a moral superiority to Muslims prior to the conquest of Mecca:

And what reason do you have that you should not spend in Allah's way? And Allah's is the inheritance of the heavens and the earth; not alike among you are those who spent before the victory and fought and those who did not: they are more exalted in rank than those who spent and fought afterwards, and Allah has promised good to all; and Allah is aware of what you do.

The Outcomes of the conquest of Mecca

Mecca was the center of plotting conspiracies against Islam. For this reason, its collapse was the start of a great movement in the history of Islam. This event put an end to idolatry. The different Arab tribes were waiting for the conquest of Mecca and the conversion of Quraysh to Islam. When Mecca collapsed and Quraysh accepted Islam, the representatives of different Arab tribes came to the Holy Prophet accepting Islam.¹ Except for two tribes, namely Hawẓin and Thaqəf, all other tribes accepted steal, and will not commit Fornication, and will not kill their children, nor commit a calumny which they have forged of themselves, and will not disobey you in what is good, accept their pledge, and ask forgiveness of them from Allah; surely Allah is Forgiving, Merciful. (60:11)

Because the content of this treaty was the same as that of the first 'Aqabah, it is sometimes called bay'at al-nisj' (the pledge of women).

¹ Al-Nuwayrī, Nihjyat al-Irab 3:11.

Islam.¹ Among these tribes that accepted Islam were Qushayr ibn Ka'b², Bihilah,³ Tha'labiyyah,⁴ 'udj',⁵ Banū-Asad⁶, Baliy,⁷ 'Udhrah,⁸ Thumjlah⁹ and 'uddjān¹⁰ all of whom came to meet the Holy Prophet, announcing their acceptance of Islam. After a war between Hawẓin and 'ij'if that took place after the conquest of Mecca, the representatives of the strong tribe of Thaqəf who were equal to Quraysh in military strength came to see the Holy Prophet and put forward some pre-conditions for their conversion to Islam. Although the Holy Prophet rejected their preconditions, they accepted Islam unconditionally.¹¹

The War of 'unayn

After the conquest of Mecca that took place in Ramaḍān,¹² the Holy Prophet stayed in this city for two

¹ Al-Sḡrah al-'alabiyyah 3:61.

² Ibn Sa'd, Al-ṭabaqāt al-Kubrī 1:303.

³ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 307.

⁴ Op cit, pp. 248; al-Nuwayrī, op cit, pp. 37.

⁵ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 326.

⁶ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 292; al-Nuwayrī, op cit, pp. 38.

⁷ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 330; al-Nuwayrī, op cit, pp. 89.

⁸ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 331; al-Nuwayrī, op cit, pp. 83.

⁹ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 352; al-Nuwayrī, op cit, pp. 103.

¹⁰ Ibn Sa'd, op cit.

¹¹ al-Wajīdī, al-Maghjz 1:966.

¹² al-Wajīdī, al-Maghjz 3:889; ṭabarī, Tārīkh al-Umam wa'l-Mulūk 3:125. Other reference books state another date for the conquest of Mecca.

weeks¹ arranging its affairs. He ordered people to break their idols that they kept at their houses.² He dispatched some agents to destroy the idol-houses around Mecca.³ During this time, he was informed that Hawjzin, supported by the tribes of Thaq̣f, Naẓr, Jusham, and Sa'd ibn Bakr together with a group of Banī-Hilāl under the command of Mjlik ibn `Awf al-Naẓṛ were planning to attack Mecca.⁴ They gathered at a place called Awṣis. Having made sure of this information, the Holy Prophet sent a spy to study the situation. It was clear that the army of Hawjzin was on its way to Mecca.⁵

At this time, the Holy Prophet decided to use his usual military tactics in taking the initiatives and depriving the enemy of any chance to attack. For this purpose, he appointed `Attiḅ ibn Usayd as the governor of Mecca⁶ and he left to face the enemy with twelve thousand soldiers, ten thousand of whom were previously with him and two thousand of the newly converted Muslims.⁷ He

¹ al-Wj̣qiḍ, op cit, pp. 125; Qasṣaḷṇ, al-Mawjhib al-Ludaniyyah 1:216.

² Ibn Wj̣ṣiḷ, Tj̣ṛekh al-Ya`q̣lḅ 2:50.

³ Qasṣaḷṇ, op cit, pp. 227; al-Nuwayṛ, Niḥyat al-Irab 2:280-281; Ibn Sa'd, al-ṭabaq̣t al-Kubṛj 2:145-147.

⁴ Ibn Husḥjṃ, al-Ṣerah al-Nabawiyyah 4:80; ṭabaṛ, Tj̣ṛekh al-Umam wa'l-Muḷk 3:126.

⁵ Ibn Husḥjṃ, op cit, 4:82; ṭabaṛ, op cit, 2:127; al-Wj̣qiḍ, op cit, 3:893.

⁶ al-Wj̣qiḍ, op cit, pp. 889; ṭabaṛ, op cit, pp. 127.

⁷ Ibn Husḥjṃ, pp. 83; ṭabaṛ, op cit, pp. 127; Ibn Sa'd, op cit, 2:150; ṭabaṛ, I'ḷjm al-Waṛj, pp. 113; Tj̣ṛekh al-Ya`q̣lḅ 2:52.

put Banī-Sulaym in front of the army.¹ On the way, some Muslim troops, due to their great number, became haughty, declaring that they would never be defeated.² However, the result was the reverse and, as God has mentioned in the Holy Qur'ān (9:25), the great number did not produce any result.

Under the darkness of dawn, the Muslim army headed for unayn³ but the warriors of Hawjzin who had hidden behind cliffs and in the valleys of unayn suddenly charged at the Muslims.⁴ This sudden attack bewildered the Muslims. First, Banī-Sulaym retreated and fled the scene.⁵ Following them, others escaped. Only Imam `Aḷ and a few others remained beside the Prophet and fought bravely.⁶

According to Shaykh al-Muf̣ḍ, only nine individuals of Banī-Hj̣shim, one of whom was Imam `Aḷ, stood next to the Holy Prophet. `Abḅs ibn `Abd al-Muṣṣalib stood to the Holy Prophet's right, al-Faḍl ibn `Abḅs to the left and Imam `Aḷ in front of the Holy Prophet unsheathing his sword and fighting bravely.⁷

¹ al-Wj̣qiḍ, op cit, pp. 843; Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 150.

² al-Wj̣qiḍ, op cit, pp. 889; Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 150; ṭabaṛ, op cit, pp. 113; Shaykh al-Muf̣ḍ, Kiṭjb al-Irsḥjd, pp. 74.

³ unayn was a valley, near Dhu'l-Maj̣z in a distance of three nights away from Mecca.

⁴ Ibn Husḥjṃ, op cit, pp. 85; al-Wj̣qiḍ, op cit, pp. 845; ṭabaṛ, op cit, pp. 128; ṭabaṛ, I'ḷjm al-Waṛj, pp. 14; al-Majliṣ, Bi'̣jr al-Anẉjr 21:169; Shaykh al-Muf̣ḍ, op cit, pp. 75.

⁵ al-Wj̣qiḍ, op cit, pp. 897; Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 150.

⁶ al-Wj̣qiḍ, op cit, pp. 900; Ibn Wj̣ṣiḷ, Tj̣ṛekh al-Ya`q̣lḅ 2:52.

⁷ Kiṭjb al-Irsḥjd, pp. 74; concerning Imam `Aḷ's bravery during this

Having noticed the flight of Muslims, the Holy Prophet, who had always been a symbol of patience, endurance, perseverance and bravery, did not show any sign of weakness; he stood steadfastly in the battlefield. Addressing the escapees, he said, "O people! Where are you fleeing? Come back; I am the Prophet of God; I am Mu'ammad ibn `Abdu'llah." He then asked `Abbās to call at people and remind them of their pledges. With a loud tone, `Abbās cried out, "O people of the Tree Pledge; O people of Šfrah al-Baqarah; to where are you escaping? Remember your allegiance with the Holy Prophet."¹

Due to the Holy Prophet's perseverance and calling at the escapees to return, Muslims gradually returned, gathered around the Holy Prophet and resisted the enemy. In a short time, the banner-bearer of the enemy was killed by `Alī and through Divine assistance, the army of Hawjzin was severely damaged. Four thousand captives, twelve thousand camels and a lot of booties were soon in the hands of Muslims. After the war, the Holy Prophet freed the captives on the request of the chiefs of the defeated tribes who embraced. This war caused the Muslims four martyrs.

Referring to the initial failure of Muslims and their victory in the light of Divine assistance, the Holy Qur'an says,

Certainly Allah helped you in many battle fields and on the day of °unayn, when your great numbers made you vain, but they availed you nothing and the earth was, see Shaykh al-±fš's al-Amjil, pp. 574-575.

¹ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 151; Ibn Wjīl, Tjrkħ al-Ya`qfħ 2:52; al-Majlis, Bi'jr al-Anwjr 21:150.

became strait to you not withstanding its spaciousness, then you turned back retreating. Then Allah sent down His tranquility upon His Apostle and upon the believers, and sent down hosts which you did not see, and chastised those who disbelieved, and that is the reward of the believers. (9:25-26)

The War of Tabk

Although the two super powers of those days, i.e. the Roman Empire and Iran were in continuous conflict with each other, they could not tolerate the emergence of a third power; that is Islam. It was natural for the Romans to be unhappy with the Muslims' victory in Mecca and the Hawjzin's defeat at °unayn.¹ Taking these factors into consideration and with regards to the victory of the Romans in Mu'tah, the expectation of a Roman military movement against Muslims was real. In the ninth year of Hegira, the traders who crossed the route between Medina and Damascus informed the Holy Prophet that Hercules, the Roman Emperor, was preparing an army to attack Medina.² The Holy Prophet took it seriously.

Because of its military supremacy, the Roman Empire was the most pernicious enemy of Islam.³ According to a report, Hercules had allied with some Arab tribes like Lakhm, Judhm, `amilah and Ghassjn, his military

¹ The Romans were neighbors to the northern part of the Arabian peninsula on the Damascus side.

² al-Wjqid, al-Maghjz 3:440. Ibn Sa'd, al-±baqt al-Kubrj 2:165; Qasšaln, op cit, pp. 346; °alab, al-Sfrah al-°alabiyyah 3:99. This report was forged by the Nabataean tradesmen who also carried oil and flour to Medina (al-Wjqid, op cit, pp. 989-990).

³ al-Wjqid, op cit, pp. 990.

pioneers had advanced as far as Balqī',¹ and the emperor himself resided in Homs.²

This report reached the Holy Prophet at a time when it was extremely hot³ and it was the harvest season. People were lived under harsh conditions and life became unbearable.⁴ The Holy Prophet called for general mobilization and asked people of Mecca and the nomads for financial assistance.⁵ Contrary to his previous military expeditions which were kept secret to the last moment, this time the Holy Prophet announced his military target to be Tabūk⁶ so that the troops could prepare themselves for the hardships of the journey.⁷

Despite their hard conditions, Muslims gave

¹ al-Wiqidī, op cit, Ibn Sa'd, op cit.

² Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 166.

³ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, Qasṣalīn, op cit; °alabī, op cit, ±abarī, Tjrekḥ al-Umam wa'l-Mulūk 3:142.

⁴ al-Wiqidī, op cit, pp. 992; ±abarī, op cit; °alabī, op cit; Ibn Hushīm, al-Sḥrah al-Nabawiyyah 4:159.

⁵ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, al-Wiqidī, op cit, pp. 990-991; Qasṣalīn, op cit, 1:347; °alabī, op cit, Ibn Hushīm, op cit, pp. 160, ±abarsī, Ilīm al-Warj, pp. 122.

⁶ Tabūk was a famous place located between Medina and Damascus (Qasṣalīn, al-Mawjhib al-Ludaniyyah 1:346; Zaynī Dālīn, al-Sḥrah al-Nabawiyyah 2:125). It is 540 kilometers away from Medina. It took a traveler twelve nights to reach there. (Mas'ūdī, pp. 235). In those days, it was on the border of the Roman-occupied territories in Damascus where Christians used to live. Today, Tabūk is one of the cities of Saudi Arabia near the Jordanian borders and the terrific sign on the northern side of Medina shows 600 Kilometers to Tabūk.

⁷ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 165-167; al-Wiqidī, op cit; Qasṣalīn, pp. 346; ±abarsī, op cit, °alabī, op cit, pp. 99; Ibn Hushīm, op cit, pp. 159.

generously¹ and thirty thousand troops,² together with ten thousand horses³ and twelve thousand camels,⁴ were ready to move. However, the hypocrites not only refrained from taking part in the battle with no valid reasons⁵ but also discouraged people to go claiming that it was so hot.⁶ A verse was revealed to the Holy Prophet reprimanding their situation. (the Holy Qur'ān 9:81) Other Muslims unjustifiably did not join the Muslim troops and the Holy Qur'ān called them those who left behind and blamed them. (the Holy Qur'ān 9:81) Others, too, were deprived of taking part in the battle due to their lack of ammunitions. (the Holy Qur'ān 9:87, 93)

Imam `Alī; the Holy Prophet's successor in Medina

On those days, Medina was in a delicate and sensitive state. While Muslim troops were headed for a long mission, the hypocrites, despite their having nominally accepted Islam, disobeyed the Holy Prophet's orders and stayed in Medina. `Abdullāh ibn Ubayy had gathered a great number of proponents around himself.⁷ In addition to the hypocrites, there was the worry and fear concerning the beaten and defeated enemies of Islam in Mecca, its vicinities and the nomads living around

¹ al-Wiqidī, op cit, pp. 991; ±abarī, op cit, 3:142.

² Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 166; al-Wiqidī, op cit, pp. 996, 1002; Qasṣalīn, op cit, pp. 349; °alabī, op cit, pp. 102.

³ al-Wiqidī, op cit, pp. 1002; Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 166.

⁴ Mas'ūdī, al-Tanbēh wa'l-Ishrīf, pp. 235.

⁵ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, pp. 165-166; al-Wiqidī, op cit, pp. 995.

⁶ al-Wiqidī, op cit, pp. 993; Ibn Hushīm, al-Sḥrah al-Nabawiyyah 4:160; Qasṣalīn, op cit, pp. 342.

⁷ al-Wiqidī, op cit, pp. 995; Ibn Hushīm, op cit, 4:162.

Medina. Thus, it was crucial for a strong man to protect the newly established Islamic state while the Holy Prophet was away. For this purpose, the Holy Prophet appointed Imam `Alç as his successor, telling him, "In order to manage the affairs of Medina, either you or I should be present."¹

Regarding this event, Mas`£dç writes:

"It is advisable to say that the Prophet appointed Imam `Alç as his successor in Medina so that he could control those who opposed participating in the Prophet's military mission."

Imam `Alç used to take part in all campaigns and battles of the Prophet² and acted as a standard-bearer.³ The hypocrites, however, spread the rumor that the Holy Prophet let `Alç stay in Medina because he no longer loved him! Having heard this rumor, Imam `Alç became upset; he took his sword and attended the Holy Prophet's presence at al-Jurf.⁴ He rephrased the hypocrite's claim and complained about the whole situation. The Holy Prophet replied:

"They are liars! You are my successor. Return and act as my successor. Are you not happy that your position to me is the same as (Prophet) Aaron's position to (Prophet) Moses except that there will be no prophet after me?"⁵

¹ Shaykh al-Mufçd, Kitjb al-Irshjd, pp. 82; ±abarsç, I'lm al-Warj, pp. 122.

² Ibn `Abd al-Barr, al-Isc`jb 3:34; °alabç, al-Sçrah al-°alabiyyah 3:104; Qas£aljn, al-Mawjhib al-Ludaniyyah 1:348.

³ Ibn `Abd al-Barr, op cit, pp. 27; Ja'far Murtaçj al-`amilç, al-`a'ç' min Sçrat al-Nabç al-A`am 4:193-196.

⁴ Al-Jurf is a place three miles away from Medina.

⁵ Ibn Hushjm, al-Sçrah al-Nabawiyyah 4:163; °alabç, al-Sçrah al-

However, Shaykh al-Mufçd accounts for this event in the following manner:

"My brother; Go back to your position, because nobody else, except for you or me, can govern Medina. You are my representative—from among my family members—on the citizens of my city and my nation. Are you not satisfied that your position to me is the same as (Prophet) Aaron's position to (Prophet) Moses except that there will be no prophet after me?"

Ibn `Abd al-Barr al-Qurşubç, a Sunni scholar of the fifth century, writes:

The Holy Prophet appointed `Alç as his successor during the war of Tab£k; he was elected to be the Holy Prophet's successor for his family and for the people of the city, telling him, "Your position to me is the same as Aaron's position to Moses... etc."

On the words of al-Bukhrç and Muslim, the Holy Prophet likened `Alç to Prophet Aaron in relation to Prophet Moses.¹

This epoch-making statement of the Holy Prophet, which is called 'adçth al-manzilah (Narration of Position) is a clear proof of Imamate. Although this statement is uttered only on a specific occasion, Imam `Alç used to °alabiyyah 9:104).

¹ `a'ç' al-Bukhrç 6:304; al-Maghjzç, chapter 95, pp. 857; `a'ç' Muslim 15:175. The Holy Prophet's words on `Alç can be found in the following reference books: al-Mawjhib 1:348; al-Istç`jb 3:34; al-Bidjyah wa'l-Nihjyah 5:7 and 8:77; Musnad A/mad 1:179; Kanz al-Ummjl, h. 14242, 32881, 36572, `a'ç' al-Tirmidhç, chap. 21, h. 3730; al-Tanbçh wa'l-Ishrjf, pp. 235; al-`awj`iq al-Mu'riqah, pp. 121; al-I£jbah 2:509 No. 5688; Zaynç Da'lljn's al-Sçrah al-Nabawiyyah 2:126; Murçj al-Dhahab 3:14; Amjç by Shaykh al-±£sç, pp. 599.

resemble Prophet Aaron in all cases of his associations with the Holy Prophet.¹

Hardships and obstacles on the way

Despite all these obstacles, the army of Islam left Medina, but as it could be predicted; Muslims encountered a lot of hardships concerning the long distances to be covered, the meager number of horses,² the extreme heat and scarcity of water. For this reason, this war, in the history of Islam, is called *war of hardship*³ or the miserable army.⁴

In any case, the army of Islam arrived at the land of Tabūk. There was no trace of the Roman army. The whole report of the Roman army had been false.⁵ This rumor had been fabricated to bring forth worry in the Islamic territory.⁶

¹ Despite this clear set of argumentations, among Sunni scholars, such as °alabç and Ibn Taymiyah, have doubted the authenticity of these narrations. For further information about the authenticity of this narration and similar ones, refer to al-Ghadër 3:197-201; I'qîq al-°aqq 5:133-234; Leadership from Islamic Point of View by Ja'far Sublîñç, chapter 15.

² There was one horse for every three men.

³ Ibn Sa'd, Al-±abaqît al-Kubrî 2:167; Qasşalîñ, al-Mawjhib al-Ludaniyyah 1:346; °alabç, op cit, 3:106.

⁴ °a'çî' al-Bukhîrç 6:308; Mas'£dç, al-Tanbçh wa'l-Ishrîf, pp. 235; Qasşalîñ, op cit, pp. 346. This name and title is taken from the Holy Qur'îñ 9:117.

⁵ Al-Wîqidç, al-Maghîzç 3:1990-1991.

⁶ °alabç, op cit, pp. 99.

The Holy Prophet's treaties with local governors

The Holy Prophet stayed twenty days in Tabūk¹ during which he convened treaties with the governor of Aylah and the people of Jarbî' and Adhru'. They were obliged to pay tributes. After a military expedition, the powerful king of Dawmat al-Jandal surrendered and had to pay tribute.²

The war of Tabūk took place in the ninth year of Hegira³ and some aspects of it are reflected in Sçrah al-Tawbah, which mainly deals with the hardships and weaknesses of some Muslims at the time of mobilization and the sabotages of the hypocrites. The famous issue of masjid æîrîr, or a mosque to cause harm and for unbelief, coincided with the war of Tabūk. (the Holy Qur'îñ, 9:107)

The consequences of the war of Tabūk

Although no military confrontation happened during this hard and intolerable mission, it had some significant consequences some of which are dealt with here:

(1) During this journey, the Holy Prophet, through convening peace treaties with the tribes and the governors of the borderlines of °îjîz and Damascus, could secure the tranquility of this region and guarantee that they would not cooperate with the Roman emperors.

(2) Through this military expedition, the commanders of the Muslim army became familiar with the hardships of this region; they learnt how to face such hardships. Likewise, they learned the techniques of military expeditions against the super powers of those days. That is why the first location that the Islamic army could conquer after the demise of the Holy Prophet was the land of Damascus.

¹ Ibn Sa'd, op cit, 2:166, 168; al-Wîqidç, op cit, pp. 1015.

² ±abarsç, I'îjm al-Warî, pp. 123; Qasşalîñ, op cit, pp. 350; ±abarç, Tîrçekh al-Umam wa'l-Mul£k 3:146.

³ Ibn Sa'd, Al-±abaqît al-Kubrî 2:165; Ibn Hushîm, al-Sçrah al-Nabawiyyah 4:159; °alabç, op cit, pp. 49; Qasşalîñ, op cit, pp. 346.

(3) In this call for general mobilization, true believers could be distinguished from hypocrites and laggard ones. A sort of distinction took place in the Muslim troops.¹

(4) The boost in the military prestige of the Muslims brought forth the Arab's inclination to Islam and their representatives' readiness to show obedience.

The spread of Islam in the Arabian Peninsula

The conquest of Mecca and the war of Tabūk were pivotal in the spread of Islam in the Arabian Peninsula. The Tabūk expedition was a great maneuver in which the Muslims' military prestige was boosted and everybody could realize that Islam had reached such a status that it could confront the world's super powers. The political and military consequences of this maneuver were so great that, upon the Holy Prophet's return to Medina, the chiefs of many Arab tribes who had refrained from turning to Islam up to that time entered Medina and announced obedience. The number of these chiefs who entered Medina to meet the Holy Prophet was so great that the ninth year of Hegira is termed Sanat al-Wuḡḡ (Year of Delegation).²

¹ Jaʿfar Subḷiṇḡ, Furḡḡh-e-Abadiyyat 2:403-404.

² Ibn Hushḡm, al-Sḡrah al-Nabawiyyah 4:205. Biographers of the Holy Prophet's life have amassed a list of these treaties enumerating

Disavowal of Unbelievers Announcement

Upon the conquest of Mecca, the foundation was laid for the propagation of monotheism and the uprooting of idols and other superstitions. Most of the city-dwellers and villagers refrained from idol-worshipping and turned to Islam. However, few ignorant individuals were not ready yet to dispense with their cultures and it was hard on them to accept the creed of the Holy Prophet. On the other hand, although the Holy Prophet had performed ʿUmrah several times, he had not yet had a chance to perform pilgrimage in the true sense of the word and away from the superstitions which were part of that ceremony in older days. Since the conquest of Mecca, two kinds of treaties were held between the Holy Prophet and the unbelievers:

General treaties

These treaties stipulated that everybody had the right to perform the ʿajj and nobody should be deprived of it. In the sacred months, everybody must enjoy security and nobody should be bothered.

Long-termed treaties with Arab tribes

After the expedition of Tabūk,¹ some verses of the Holy Qurʾān were revealed to the Holy Prophet ordering him to stay away from the unbelievers and to follow the instructions revealed to him. These verses say:

This is a declaration of immunity by Allah and His Apostle towards those of the idolaters with whom you made an agreement. So go about in the land for four them as sixty; see Al-ʿabaqit al-Kubrj 1:291-359; The History of the Prophet of Islam by Muḡammad Ibrḡḡm ʿyatḡ, pp. 609-642.

¹ Ibn Hushḡm, al-Sḡrah al-Nabawiyyah 4:190.

months and know that you cannot weaken Allah and that Allah will bring disgrace to the unbelievers. And an announcement from Allah and His Apostle to the people on the day of the greater pilgrimage that Allah and His Apostle are free from liability to the idolaters; therefore, if you repent, it will be better for you, and if you turn back, then know that you will not weaken Allah; and announce painful punishment to those who disbelieve. Except those of idolaters with whom you made an agreement, then they have not failed you in anything and have not backed up any one against you, so fulfill their agreement to the end of their term; surely, Allah loves those who are careful of their duty. So when the sacred months have passed away, then slay the idolaters wherever you find them, and take from captives and besiege them and lie in wait for them in every ambush, then if they repent and keep up prayer and pay the poor – rate, leave their way free to them; surely Allah is Forgiving, Merciful. (9:1-5)

The Prophet's special envoy and representative

After the revelation of these verses, the Holy Prophet taught part of the first verses of this s̄rah to Ab̄-Bakr and instructed him to recite them to the pilgrims on the Feast of Sacrifice (ʿ«d al-Aṣṣ/ġ). As Ab̄-Bakr headed for Mecca, the Holy Prophet received a revelation instructing that these verses should be recited to people by either the Holy Prophet himself or one belonging to him. Having received this message, the Holy Prophet ordered Imam ʿAl̄ to head for Mecca and take this mission from Ab̄-Bakr. Imam ʿAl̄ took the Holy Prophet's camel, headed for Mecca and gave the message to Ab̄-Bakr. Having carried out the orders, Ab̄-Bakr returned to Medina offended; when he presented himself before the Holy Prophet, he said, "You had assumed me capable of doing this mission; but very soon you put me aside. Have you received any order from God regarding this issue?" The Holy Prophet replied, "God has ordered me to carry out this command either in person or by one who belong to me."

Announcement of Disavowal and Warning

On the tenth of Dhu'l-°ijjah, Imam ʿAl̄ entered Mecca and recited S̄rah al-Tawbah to the public.¹ He then informed everyone of the Holy Prophet's warning:

- (1) God and His Apostle dislike the unbelievers.
- (2) No unbeliever is allowed to perform the °ajj from next year on.
- (3) Nobody is allowed to circumambulate the Kaaba with naked body.²
- (4) For the coming four months, the unbelievers are allowed to return to their native lands. After the expiration of these four months, there will not be any truce for any unbeliever except those who are in contract with the Holy Prophet. Their treaties are valid up to their deadlines.

¹ This event, with some variations, has appeared in the following reference books: Tj̄r̄kh al-Umam wa'l-Mul̄k 3:154; S̄rat Ibn Hush̄m 4:190; al-K̄mil f̄' l-Tj̄r̄kh 2:291, Majma` al-Baȳn 5:3; Tadhkirat al-Khaw̄j̄, pp. 57; al-Bid̄yah wa'l-Nih̄yah 537-38 and 7:358; R̄f̄' al-Ma`j̄n̄; Tafs̄r al-Man̄j̄r 10:157.

² Circumambulating the Kaaba with naked body was one of the signs of the religious corruptions of the infidels. It had its roots in Quraysh's control over the Kaaba.

From that year on, no infidel performed the °ajj ceremonies; and no one did so naked.³

Parallel to correspondence with the governors of the world, the Holy Prophet wrote a letter to the bishop of Najrīn.⁴ Praising the God of Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac and Jacob, the Holy Prophet asked the bishop and his

² ±abarç, Tjŗekh al-Umam wa'l-Mulķk 3:154; Ibn al-Athŗ, al-Kjmil fŗ'l-Tjŗekh 2:291.

³ Ibn Hushjm, al-S̥rah al-Nabawiyyah 4:191; Ibn al-Ath̥r, al-Bid'iyah wa'l-Nih'iyah 5:37.

⁴ Najrīn is one of the Yemenite centers next to Mecca. (al-°amawç, Mu`jam al-Buldīn 5:266).

Abē'l-Fidī (672-732 AH) in, *Taqwīm al-Buldj*n, pp. 127 writes: "Najrīn is a small town with palm-groves; the distance between Mecca and Najrīn is about a twenty-day journey." This town might have developed in the following centuries, because Zaynç Da'līn (1231-1304 AH) writes: "Najrīn is a large city, near Mecca, on the way to Yemen, consisting of seventy three villages." (al-S̄rah al-Nabawīyyah 2:144). As the maps of Saudi Arabia shows, Najrīn is now one of the cities of that country, near the borders with the Yemen.

followers to stop worshipping people, start worshipping God, leave allegiance to people and accept loyalty and allegiance of God; lest they should pay a special tax or be prepared for a war.¹

According to some narrations, the Holy Prophet mentioned the following holy verse in his letter:

Say: O followers of the Book! come to an equitable proposition between us and you that we shall not serve any but Allah and (that) we shall not associate aught with Him, and (that) some of us shall not take others for lords besides Allah; but if they turn back, then say: Bear witness that we are Muslims. (3/64)²

Receiving the letter, the Bishop convened a session with religious personalities to discuss the issue, since the Christian scholars had known some prophesized features of the Holy Prophet. They therefore decided to send a convoy to Medina in order to meet the Holy Prophet and study his character.

Upon their arrival in Medina, headed by three religious personalities including the bishop himself, the Holy Prophet met them and invited them to Islam. He recited some verses of the Holy Qur'ān. The envoy replied, "We have been Muslims before you." The Holy Prophet said, "You are liars. There are three things which hinder you from being Muslims: you worship the Cross, eat pork, and assign a child for God."

Then, the topic of Jesus being God or God's servant

¹ Ibn Wajīl, Tijrēkh al-Ya`qūb 2:70-71; al-Bid'iyah wa'l-Nihayah 5:53; Bi'jr al-Anwār 2:285; al-Wathī'iq, pp. 34; 'Alī Aḥmadi, Makjūtib al-Rasūl 1:175.

² Sayyid Ibn al-ʿArabī, Iqbal al-ʿamal 2:311.

started. Relying on the miracles of Jesus Christ, such as giving life to the dead, knowing the unseen, healing the diseased, and, especially, being born with no father, Christians considered him God. The Holy Prophet insisted that Jesus was a human being—a fact that the Christians could not accept, entering into lots of discussions. Then, the Holy Prophet received this revelation:

Most certainly, they disbelieve who say: Surely, Allah - He is the Messiah, son of Marium. (5:17)

Surely, the likeness of Jesus with Allah is as the likeness of Adam; He created him from dust, then said to him, Be, and he was. This is the truth from your lord, so be not of the disputers. (3:60)

But whoever disputes with you in this matter after what has come to you of knowledge, then say: come to us call our sons and your sons and our women and your women and our near people and your near people, then let us be earnest in prayer, and pray for the curse of Allah on the liars. (3:61)

After the revelation of these verses, the Holy Prophet said, “God has ordered me to do mutual cursing with you if you do not become Muslims.”¹ They replied, “We have to think about it.” Then, they went back and started counseling. The bishop warned them that Mu‘ammad was God's Messenger and that to accept mutual cursing with him would bring about chastisement of God for them. However, they did not agree; rather, they insisted on mutual cursing (Mubjhalah). They decided that the next day would be the date of Mubjhalah. Then, the bishop said, “Look and wait to see how Mu‘ammad attends the session; avoid taking part in it if he accompany his family members with him, because this means that he believes in what he says or else he would not endanger the lives of his near relatives. However, if he comes with his followers, then take part and you will know that his claims are baseless.”¹

¹ °alabç, al-Sçrah al-°alabiyyah 3:235-236; Zaynç Da‘lîn, al-Sçrah al-Nabawiyyah 2:144; al-Majlisç, Bi‘jr al-Anwjr 21:347. `Allmah al-Majlisç has gathered all reports and narrations about the Holy Prophet's discussions with the missionary of Najrîn in volume 21 of Bi‘jr al-Anwjr, pp. 319-355.

The following day, the Holy Prophet came with `Alç, Fîšimah, °asan, and °usayn.² Looking at the Holy Prophet's company, the bishop asked, “Who are these?” He was told, “This is his cousin, the woman is his daughter and these two are her sons.”³ The bishop told his followers, “These are persons who if they ask God to cut a mountain, the mountain shall certainly be cut off. Do not enter in it lest you will be destroyed and there will remain no Christian on the earth.” The group dispensed with the mutual cursing⁴ and, on terms of a treaty, they had to pay tax.⁵

¹ ±abarsç, l‘lm al-Warj, pp. 129; Majma` al-Bayjn 2:452; al-Majlisç, Bi‘jr al-Anwjr 21:337.

² °alabç, al-Sçrah al-°alabiyyah 3:236; Zaynç Da‘lîn, al-Sçrah al-Nabawiyyah wa‘l-°thjr al-Mu‘ammadiyyah 2:144.

³ Ibn Wîšil, Tjrekh al-Ya`qEbç 2:72; ±abarsç, l‘lm al-Warj, pp. 129.

⁴ °alabç, op cit; Zaynç Da‘lîn, op cit; Zamakhsharç, Tafsçr al-Kashshif 1:193; al-Fakhr al-Rizç, Mafjtç‘ al-Ghayb 8:82; Sayyid Mu‘ammad ±abjšabiç, al-Mçzn fç Tafsçr al-Qur‘jn 3:231; al-Bayzîwç, Anwjr al-Tanzçl, pp. 74.

⁵ See Tjrekh al-Ya`qEbç 2:72; Al-±abaqjt al-Kubrij 2:358, Futç‘ al-Buldjn, pp. 75-76; al-Wathj‘iq, pp. 134-135; al-Sçrah al-Nabawiyyah wa‘l-°thjr al-Mu‘ammadiyyah 2:144; al-Sçrah al-°alabiyyah 3:236; Tafsçr al-Kashshif 1:191; Mafjtç‘ al-Ghayb 8:182; Al-Mçzn 3:232.

CHAPTER THREE

The Farewell Pilgrimage and the Demise of the Prophet

The Farewell Pilgrimage

The founder of °ajj, the most prominent politico-religious ceremony, was Prophet Abraham. In the second chapter of this book, we discussed the chaotic status of religion and the power and influences of Quraysh prior to the rise of Islam. We also mentioned that until the appearance of Islam, Quraysh and all unbelievers performed °ajj and `Umrah ceremonies. However, it was not °ajj in the true sense of the word. They had altered the Abrahamic °ajj and performed it in a defective form mingled with superstitions.

We should mention here that Quraysh called themselves *the true dwellers of God's shrine*¹ and since Mount `Arafāt territory is located outside the shrine, Quraysh, contrary to all unbelievers, would not go to `Arafāt in the °ajj seasons; rather, they would stay at al-Muzdalifah² from where they headed for Minā. On the other hand, the people of Yathrib used to put on the °ajj uniform (i/rjm) next to the idol Manāt, which was on the Mecca-Yathrib route at the seashore¹ and those who put the °ajj form on from there would not cross the distance between `afī and Marwah, which they had to cross seven times.² The unbelievers, contrary to the Abrahamic traditions, moved to al-Muzdalifah from `Arafāt prior to sunset.³

All these had contributed to the deformation of the true features of the Abrahamic °ajj and to its mixing with all sorts of superstitions.

With the revelation of the verse on the obligation of °ajj (22:27), the Holy Prophet informed the Muslims in advance and headed towards °ajj with great numbers of the people of Medina and nomads.⁴ He taught the Muslims the genuine Abrahamic °ajj for the first time. He insisted that Muslims should learn the ceremony very carefully.⁵ He used to say, "Take good care of all the rituals of °ajj because they are handed down to us by Prophet Abraham."⁶

During this journey, the Holy Prophet could abolish all the innovations of the unbelievers, especially those of Quraysh. Despite the fact that he himself was from Quraysh, he stayed at `Arafāt and then moved to al-

¹ al-Azraq, Akhbar Makkah 1:176; Ibn `Abd-Rabbih, al-Iqd al-Farid 3:313.

² al-Waqidi, al-Maghaz 3:1102; Zayn Daḥlān, al-Serah al-Nabawiyyah 2:143.

¹ Hushim Kalb, al-Aḥnām, pp. 13. Ibn Hushim, al-Serah al-Nabawiyyah 1:88; Ma'mūd Shukr al-ʿĪsā, Bulugh al-Irab 2:202.

² alab, al-Serah al-ʿalabiyyah 3:317.

³ al-Waqidi, op cit, 3:1104.

⁴ Shaykh al-Kulayn, al-Furḥ min al-Kif 21:390.

⁵ Ibn Sa'd, Al-ṭabaqāt al-Kubrī 2:181; alab, op cit, 3:327.

⁶ al-Waqidi, op cit, pp. 1104.

Muzdalifah.¹ This was an order issued by Allah, stating,
Then, hasten on from the place from which the people hasten on and ask the forgiveness of Allah; surely Allah is Forgiving, Merciful. (2:199)

After sunset, the Holy Prophet left `Arafāt.²

Due to its different aspects of significance, this pilgrimage is called by different titles: Farewell Pilgrimage (°ijjat al-Wadī`), the Islamic °ajj (°ijjat al-Islām) and the Conveyance Pilgrimage (°ijjat al-Balīgh).³

The Prophet's Historical Sermon

During his farewell pilgrimage on the day of `Arafāt, on the desert of `Arafāt, and among all pilgrims, the Holy Prophet delivered a very significant and historical sermon in which he spoke about important issues and declared specific recommendations. As the attendants testified to the sacredness of that month (Dhu'l-°ijjah) and the sacredness of that day (Yawm `Arafah), the Holy Prophet declared:

O people! Up to the day on which you will meet God, your blood and property are as sacred as this month and this day; making aggression against them is forbidden. The bloodshed at the era of negligence and ignorance could not be prosecuted at this time; furthermore, usury is forbidden now.

The Holy Prophet then considered as blasphemy the changing and delaying of the Forbidden Months.

¹ al-Wīqidī, op cit, pp. 1102; Zaynī Dallīn, op cit, 2:143; al-Majlisī, op cit, 21:392.

² al-Wīqidī, op cit, pp. 1104; al-Majlisī, op cit, pp. 379.

³ Zaynī Dallīn, op cit 2:143.

Concerning women's rights, he emphatically said,

Act kindly to women since they are God's assets in your hands and are made legal for you through Divine laws.

Let those who are present inform others that there shall be no prophet after me and there shall be no ummah after you, Muslims.

Towards the end of his speech, the Holy Prophet declared null and void the customs and ceremonies of the Ignorance Era.¹

A great virtue

Great scholars have pointed out that it was a great point of honor for these four persons; namely, `Alī, Fīšimah, °asan and °usayn to take part in that Mubjhalah together with the Holy Prophet. This is because this event showed that °asan and °usayn are the sons of the Holy Prophet and they, together with Imam `Alī, are his true life. Fīšimah, his daughter, was the only woman who had taken part in the ceremony of Mubjhalah and the word nisj' could only refer to her.

°arīshah is reported to have said that on the day of Mubjhalah, the Holy Prophet asked these four persons to gather under his black cloak. He then reciting this verse of the Holy Qur'ān:

Allah only desires to keep away the uncleanness from you, O people of the house, and to purify you a thorough purifying. (33:33)¹

¹ Ibn Hushīm, al-Sīrah al-Nabawīyyah 4:250-252; °alabī, al-Sīrah al-°alabīyyah 3:312; Ibn Sa'd, Al-°abaqāt al-Kubrī 2:186; al-Wīqidī, al-Maghīzī 3:1111; al-Majlisī, Bi'jr al-Anwār 21:380. It is worth mentioning that according to both Ibn Sa'd and al-Wīqidī, the Holy Prophet delivered this sermon at the desert of Minī.

Both Sunni and Shē'ite scholars unanimously agree that these four persons took part in Mubjhalah together with the Holy Prophet.² Emphasized this great virtue,

¹ Zamakhsharē, op cit. Fakhr Rjzē, without mentioning the name of `a'ishah, records this narration and adds, "Both Sunni and Shē'ite scholars consider this narration authentic." (al-Tafsēr al-Kabēr 8:82). Al-Shablanjē says, "Various reference books reckon this narration as valid." (Nēr al-Abẓjr, pp. 111).

² The following reference books deal with this same topic: Tafsēr al-Kashshj 1:193; Mafjtē' al-Ghayb 8:82; al-Durr al-Manthēr 2:231-233, as narrated by al-°jkim, Ibn Mardawayh, Abē-Na`ēm in al-Dalj'il; Muslim, al-Tirmidhē, Ibn al-Mundhir, al-Bayhaqē, in al-Sunan, and Ibn Jarēr; Tjrekh al-Ya`qēbē 2:71; Sharaf al-Nabē, pp. 262; al-Bayṗjwē, Anwjr al-Tanzēl, pp. 74; Nēr al-Abẓjr, pp. 111; Manjqib `Alē Ibn Abē-±jlib by Ibn Mardawayh, pp. 226.

However, the most detailed description of this report can be found in Sayyid Ibn ±awēs's Iqbjl al-A`mj 2:310-348.

Despite the existence of so many narrations concerning al-Mubjhalah, some historians, influenced by their prejudices, have manipulated the narrations adding or subtracting materials according to their whims and desires. For instance, al-Buljdharē, Ibn Kathēr and al-Shi`bē have omitted the name of `Alē from the narration. (See Futē' al-Buldjn, pp. 75, al-Bidjyah wa'l-Nihjyah 2:232.) °alabē and Zaynē Dailjn both have put the names of `a'ishah and °afYah among the participants; they have reported `Umar as having said, "If I wanted to partake in the Mubjhalah with those people (i.e. the Christians), I would let `Alē, °asan, °usayn, Fjšimah, `a'ishah and °afYah take part." (al-Sērah al-°alabiyyah 3:236; al-Sērah al-Nabawiyyah wa'l-°thjr al-Mu/ammediyyah 2:144-145). Al-Suyēšē narrates from Ibn `Asjkir that the Prophet invited Abē-Bakr and his children and `Alē and his children for Mubjhalah! (al-Durr al-Manthēr 2:333).

The effects of forging and distortion are so obvious in these narrations

Sa`d ibn Abē-WaqqjY is reported to have said, "When the verse of Mubjhalah was revealed to the Holy Prophet, he called `Alē, Fjšimah, °asan and °usayn, saying "O God, these are my Household."¹

Having reported the issue of Mubjhalah and `a'ishah's narration, al-Zamakhsharē says, "This issue is the most rationale for the virtue and righteousness of the Holy Prophet's Household."²

After narrating the event of Mubjhalah, al-Bayṗjwē, says, "This indicates the righteousness of the Holy Prophet and the virtue of his Household."³

In his book entitled Sa`d al-Su`ēd, Sayyid Ibn ±awēs writes, "Mu'ammad ibn al-`Abbjs ibn Marwjn, in his book of Mj Nazala min al-Qur'jn fē al-Nabē wa Ahli Baytihe, has narrated the event of Mubjhalah on the authority of fifty-one reporters among whom were grand companions of the Holy Prophet."⁴

At the end of this article, it is worth mentioning that there are disagreements concerning the year, month and day of the Mubjhalah.⁵

that we do not need for further explanation of the issue. It only suffices to mention that if the word nisj'anj included the Prophet's wives, why should only two of them, namely `a'ishah and °afYah were worthy of to take part in Mubjhalah?

¹ `a'ē' Muslim 15:176.

² Tafsēr al-Kashshj 1:193.

³ Anwjr al-Tanzēl, pp. 74.

⁴ Al-Majlisē, Bi'jr al-Anwjr 21:350.

⁵ For more information, see Makjtēb al-Rasēl 1: 179; Furēgh-e-Abadiyyat 2:441-445.

The Event of Ghaḍr and the introducing of the future leader

On his return from the Farewell Pilgrimage on the eighteenth of Dhu'l-°ijjah, and on the land of Ghaḍr Khumm¹ which is three miles away from al-Ju'afah, the following verse was revealed to Holy Prophet:

“O Apostle! Deliver what has been revealed to you from your Lord; and if you do it not, then you have not delivered His message (5:67)”

He therefore ordered the caravan of one hundred thousand pilgrims to stop on that arid land and in that extremely hot weather. Having performed the Noon Prayer, he climbed a high location and delivered a sermon in which he informed of his near death. Then, he asked the Muslims' views on his prophethood. Every one confirmed that he had perfectly conveyed the Divine Message. He then put stress on the Holy Book and his Household, recommending Muslims not to leave these two lest they would be misled. These two, he added, shall never depart one another until they join him on the Resurrection Day; therefore, Muslims should follow them closely.

Then, he took `Aḷ's hand, raised it and introducing him as the future leader of Muslims, saying:

“God is my Master and I am the master of the believers; so, anybody whose master is I, `Aḷ is now his master. O God, love and care for those who love and care for `Aḷ and be an enemy of those who are

¹ This was the final juncture of the pilgrims. The directions of the pilgrims of Egypt, Iraq and Medina were separated, each one taking their appropriate direction.

`Aḷ's enemies. O God, assist the friends of `Aḷ and make miserable the foes of `Aḷ. O God, let `Aḷ be in the pivotal center of righteousness.”

At this time, the following verse was revealed:

This day have I perfected for you your religion and completed My favor on you and chosen for you Islam as a religion. (5:3)

The perfection of religion has been thus declared through the appointment of `Aḷ as the successor of the Holy Prophet. After that, the Holy Prophet's companions congratulated `Aḷ for this sublime position.¹

This was a sketch of the significant and famous event at Ghaḍr Khumm which has been discussed in reference books from different dimensions.

`Alḷmah Aṃṇ, in his worthy book of al-Ghaḍr, has thoroughly dealt with this historic event. Here, we shall mention a few points:

(1) The event of Ghaḍr is the most significant document for Imam `Aḷ's Divinely commissioned leadership and succession to the Holy Prophet (Wiḷyah) although it was not the only document. In this book, we have alluded to the fact that the Holy Prophet, since the early days of his prophethood and on various occasions such as the event of calling his close relatives to the new faith, referred to Imam `Aḷ's Wiḷyah, because of the importance of leadership to the people's fate.

Because the succession to the Holy Prophet is a matter defined by none but God, we have seen that during the first years of his general and open invitation to Islam and at the time introducing Islam to the tribes and in an answer to the proposal made by the chief of Banī-`amir ibn Sī`idah, the Holy Prophet declared,

¹ Alḷmah Aṃṇ, al-Ghaḍr f̣ al-Kiṭb wa'l-Sunnah wa'l-Adab 1:10.

“My successor is decided by God alone. God will appoint anyone for this position that He desires.”

For many years, the Holy Prophet always laid emphasis on the question of his succession. He used to bring to light a certain personality, making sacrifices for Islam the criterion in selecting his successor. All these factors entail one conclusion, which is that Imam `Alī was such a unique person that he deserved to be the Holy Prophet's successor. If truth be told, none of the Holy Prophet's companions preceded Imam `Alī in virtuous features that prepare him to be the one and only successor of the Holy Prophet.

(2) The authenticity of the announcement of Imam `Alī's next leadership at Ghadīr Khumm is undeniable; therefore, some Sunni scholars confess to this issue.¹

As `Allīmah Amēnā has proved in al-Ghadīr, this historic event was reported by one hundred and ten companions of the Holy Prophet, eighty-four others, and three hundred and sixty Sunni narrators and scholars who recorded it in their books and confessed to its authenticity.¹ As a matter of fact, the event Ghadīr Khumm is the most famous and authentic of all events that took place during the Holy Prophet's lifetime.

¹ They only doubt the reference of this event to `Alī. For instance, in the international symposium for the recognition of Shī`ism, which was held in Istanbul, Turkey, with the participation of great scholars of Islamic countries and with the presence of a group of distinguished Muslim scholars of the Islamic Republic of Iran, Dr. Muḥammad Sa`īd Ramaḡīn al-Bēšā, one of the distinguished scholars of the University of Syria criticized the statements of one speaker who had denied the event of Ghadīr saying, “There is no doubt about the narration of Ghadīr and his participation in it. However, it does not pertain to Shī`ites...” This claim was answered by an Iranian scholar. See Congresses and Scientific Circles of `ayātullāh, pp. 21, 27.

Narrators have reported the event of Ghadīr Khumm and historians seem to have censored these narrators. Among historians, Ya`qūb has dealt with this event with a short description following the event of the Farewell Pilgrimage.² Although this event is not mentioned in

¹ Al-Ghadīr 1:14-15.

² Returning to Medina, the Holy Prophet traveled at night until he reached a place close to al-Ju'afah called Ghadīr Khumm. That was on the eighteenth of Dhu'l-`ijjah. Taking `Alī from the hand, the Holy Prophet delivered a sermon there in which he said, “Am I not superior to the believers than themselves?” The attendants answered affirmatively. He then said, “`Alī is now the master of him who has considered me as his master. O Allah, be the confidant of him who confides with `Alī and be the enemy of him who incurs the hostility of `Alī.” (2:102).

Contrary to what is commonly said, Mas`ūd has referred to this event to have taken place on the Holy Prophet's return from `udaybiyah:

On his return from `udaybiyah, the Prophet said to the Commander of the Believers `Alī ibn Abī-ṭlib (may Allah be pleased with him) at Ghadīr Khumm, “`Alī is now the master of him whose master was I.” That was on the eighteenth of Dhu'l-`ijjah. See al-Tanbīh wa'l-Ishrāf, pp. 221.

In Murāj al-Dhahab 2:245, counting the virtues of `Alī, the author refers shortly to the event of the Divinely commissioned leadership of Imam `Alī by saying,

Tjŗĉkh al-±abarĉ, which is supposed to have dealt with all historical events of Islam, the author has written a book on the verification of the event of Ghadĉr Khumm in a book entitled Kitjb al-Wiljyah.¹ This book existed up to eighth century—a fact confirmed by al-Najjshĉ (450 AH)² and Shaykh al-±ĉsĉ (385-460 AH).¹

Things due to which the companions of Allah's Messenger deserved favor are precedence to faith, migration, supporting Allah's Messenger, nearness to him, satisfaction, self-sacrifice for him, knowledgeability with the Holy Book and the Revelation, strife for Allah's sake, piety, asceticism, judicature, fair judgment, jurisprudence, and knowledge. In all these, `Alĉ (peace be upon him) had the biggest share and the greatest part. He was exclusively addressed by Allah's Messenger when he associated as brothers each two of his companions, saying, "You are my brother." Of course, Allah's Messenger is matchless and incomparable. He also addressed `Alĉ by saying, "Your position to me is the same as Aaron's position to Moses except that there will be no prophet after me." He also said, "Alĉ is now the master of him whose master was I. O Allah, support him who supports `Alĉ and antagonize him who incurs the hostility of `Alĉ."

¹ Ibn Shahrjshĉb, Ma`jlim al-`Ulamj', pp. 106; Ibn ±jwĉs, al-±arj'if; Ibn Biŗĉq, Uyĉn `i'j' al-Akhhj'r 1:157.

This book is referred to by other names, such as Kitjb al-Faŗj'il, adĉth al-wiljyah, and Kitjb Ghadĉr Khumm. These titles might have been taken by authors with regards to the content of the book. Some others have put the name of a special section of the book for the whole book. As we will see in the next footnote, al-Najjshĉ entitles it as al-radd `alj al-urqĉĉiyah (Refutations of `urqĉ's claims). `urqĉ ibn Zuhayr was one of leaders of Khawjrij. Most probably, the adoption of this title was to indicate and refer to the opponents of `Alĉ as apostates.

² Al-Najjshĉ, Fihrist Muĉannaf al-Shĉ`ah, pp. 225. In his book of Stating that the event of Ghadĉr Khumm too soon after the Farewell Pilgrimage, Ibn Kathĉr (774 AH) adds, "Abu Ja`far Mu`ammad ibn Jarĉr ±abarĉ, the historian, has shown interest in this adĉth and collected its wordings in a two-volume book."² He then mentions some ways of narrating this event as recorded by ±abarĉ.

He elsewhere writes, "The book of ±abarĉ which I saw is of two big volumes comprising the narrations related to the event of Ghadĉr Khumm."³

Ibn Shahrjshĉb (588 AH) writes, "±abarĉ wrote the book of Ghadĉr Khumm, in which he described this event; he gave it the title of Kitjb al-Wiljyah."⁴

Counting the number of narrators who reported the event of Ghadĉr Khumm, Ibn ±awĉs says, "Mu`ammad ibn Jarĉr, the historian, narrates the adĉth of Ghadĉr in seventy-five different ways. He wrote a separate book entitled adĉth al-Wiljyah."⁵

Ya'yj ibn `asan, known as Ibn al-Biŗĉq (523-600 AH) writes, "Mu`ammad ibn Jarĉr ±abarĉ, the author of Tjŗĉkh al-Umam wa'l-Mulĉk, has described the event of Ghadĉr Khumm through seventy-five sources. He devoted an entire book to it entitled Kitjb al-Wiljyah."

Iqbjl al-A`mjl 2:239, Sayyid Ibn ±awĉs refers to this name.

¹ ±ĉsĉ, al-Fihrist, pp. 281.

² It is worth mentioning that while Ibn Kathĉr mentions the event of al-Ghadĉr, he distorts its relation to `Alĉ.

³ Ibn Kathĉr, op cit, 11:147. This belongs to the events of the year 310 which coincides with ±abarĉ's death.

⁴ Ma`jlim al-`Ulamj', pp. 106.

⁵ Al-±arj'if 1:142.

The aforementioned scholars and historians have given us only a short report on Kitāb al-Wilāyah by ṭabarṭ. Others, such as Ibn Kathīr, have only referred to some narrations mentioned therein. Al-Qiṣṭ al-Nu`mān al-Maghribī al-Miṣrī (363 AH) is the only historian who has collected more than seventy-five of ṭabarṭ's narrations on Imam `Alī's virtues in a book he entitled Shar' al-Akḥbār fī Faṣḥ al-A'immah al-Aṣḥar. Through this way, he presented ṭabarṭ's narrations to the next generations.¹ He writes:

"This is an interesting book in which ṭabarṭ describes `Alī's virtues in detail."²

Mentioning ṭabarṭ's motive in writing this book,³ al-

¹ This book has been printed in three volumes in Qum by the Foundation for Islamic Publications in 1414 AH. In its first volume, page 130 on, ṭabarṭ's narrations are recorded.

² Op cit, 1:130.

³ Op cit, 1:130. His motive in writing this book was that he was informed that one of the experts in Baghdad has denied and rejected the event of Ghadīr, claiming that on the Prophet's return from the Farewell Pilgrimage, `Alī was not with him; rather, he was in Yemen. ṭabarṭ was extremely moved by this lie and denial; so, he wrote the book of al-Wilāyah to repudiate the view of that expert. In his book, he described the event of Ghadīr and confirmed its authenticity. (Shar' al-Akḥbār 1:130; Yiqṭī al-ʿamawī, Mu`jam al-Bulḍān 18:84-85). According to Ibn `Asḥīr and al-Dhahabī, the expert mentioned above was Abī-Bakr ibn Abī-Dīwān al-Sajistānī, the author of Sunan Abī-Dīwān. (Tijrēkh Madīnat Dimashq 52:197-198; Tijrēkh al-Islām, pp. 213; Tadhkirat al-ʿuffī 2:713).

Abī-Bakr Ibn Abī-Dīwān is accused of having hatred against `Alī (Tijrēkh Madīnat Dimashq 29:87; Māzīn al-ʿīdīl 2:434; Tijrēkh Baghdad 9:467-468).

Nu`mān adds:

In this book, ṭabarṭ has devoted one chapter to `Alī's successorship to the Holy Prophet. In this chapter, he mentions a ḥadīth that the Holy Prophet repeated before and after the Farewell Pilgrimage:

"`Alī is now the master of him who has considered me as his master. O Allah, be the confidant of him who confides with `Alī; and be the enemy of him who incurs the hostility of `Alī; and support him who supports `Alī; and disappoint him who disappoints `Alī."

"`Alī is the commander of the believers."

"`Alī is my brother."

"`Alī is my vicegerent."

"`Alī is my successor."

"`Alī is my representative on my nation after me."

"`Alī is superior in leadership over people after me."

All these instructions and their likes clearly prove that `Alī would be the successor of the Holy Prophet.¹

(3) The only spurious argument that some Sunni scholars have aroused against this issue mentionable doubt which is used concerning this issue is the purport of these prophetic instructions. For instance, al-Fakhr al-Rīzī and al-Qiṣṭ `Aṣud «jī have claimed the Arabic word mawlī that the Holy Prophet used to refer to Imam `Alī might have indicated friendship and help, but not leadership of the Muslim nation and succession to the Holy Prophet! In other words, by all these statements, the Holy Prophet only wanted to say that `Alī is his friend!

¹ Shar' al-Akḥbār 1:134-135. For more information on Kitāb al-Wilāyah, see Faṣḥ al-ʿAlī, by Rasūl Ja`fariyān, 34.

They further claim that the word mawlī is different in meaning from awlī, which means superior.¹

ʿAllīmah Am̄n̄, with a thorough research employing ample Qurʾānic witnesses and making use of morphological data and philological bases, has proven the futility of such a statement and has shown that it is very common in Arabic to use the word mawlī in the sense of awlī, meaning superior. For instance, in the following holy verses, the lexical item mawlī cannot have any other sense except that of walī; that is successor and man of authority:

So, today ransom shall not be accepted from you nor from those who disbelieved; your abode is the fire; it is your friend, and evil is the resort. (57:15)

Therefore keep up prayer and pay the poor-rate and hold fast by Allah; He is your Guardian; how excellent the Guardian and how excellent the Helper. (22:78)

That is because Allah is the protector of those who believe, and because the unbelievers shall have no protector for them. (47:11)

Nay! Allah is your patron and He is the best of the helpers. (3:150)

Say: Nothing will afflict us save what Allah has ordained for us; He is our patron. (9:51)

He calls upon him whose harm is nearer than his profit; evil certainly is the guardian and evil certainly is the associate. (22:13)

In the aforementioned verses, the word mawlī is taken to be guardian. Likewise, all traditionists and scholars of

¹ Al-Ghad̄r 1:350, 354, 356.

Muslim jurisprudence have unanimously agreed that the word mawlī has been mentioned in definite ʾad̄ths to denote guardian.¹

ʿAllīmah Am̄n̄ has found twenty-seven different meanings for the word mawlī proving that this word may be used to denote lie, blasphemy or indecenty.² He then presents the claims and reasoning of fourteen distinguished Sunni scholars who have not taken the true sense of this word as used by the Holy Prophet in the sermon at Ghad̄r Khumm. For example, Shams al-D̄n Ab̄ʿl-Muʿaffar Sib̄ Ibn al-Jawz̄ ʾanaf̄ (511-654 AH) writes:

“Biographers unanimously believe that the event of Ghad̄r Khumm took place on the Holy Prophet's return from the Farewell pilgrimage on the eighteenth of Dh̄ʿl-ʾij̄jah in the presence of one hundred and twenty thousand companions during which the Holy Prophet declared, ‘ʾAl̄ is now the master of him who has considered me as his master.’

He then mentions ten probable meaning for mawlī nine of which he discards and only one he accepts citing as proof a verse in S̄rah al-ʾad̄d in which the word mawlī is used in a sense proving the Imamate of and acceptance of obedience to Imam ʾAl̄. Moreover, Arab poets, such as ʾass̄n̄ ibn Th̄bit, have used this word to denote the same meaning involved.

¹ For instance, the Holy Prophet is reported to have said, “The matrimonial contract of any woman that is married before obtaining the permission of her mawlī (guardian) is void.”

² Al-Ghad̄r 1:367-370.

Witnesses and signs

The Holy Prophet's sermon at Ghaḍer Khumm comprises a number of signs and witnesses confirming that the word mawli has not been used to exclusively indicate befriending with Imam `Aḷ.

(1) The order of halting at that place and in that extremely hot weather, which was issued to one hundred thousand Muslims, is not appropriate for the announcement of an insignificant issue like recommending them to love Imam `Aḷ. As a matter of fact, brotherly terms among Muslims and caring for one another had now become so common among Muslims that the Holy Prophet did not need to announce it under such circumstances.

(2) As an introduction to his sermon, the Holy Prophet foretold the imminence of his passing away. This issue is strongly connected to the issue of the next leadership and succession to him. Besides, it has nothing to do with the recommendation of bearing love for `Aḷ ibn Aḅ-jlib.

(3) The Holy Prophet asked the attendants to witness that he was closer to them than their own selves; and they did. Immediately after that, he declared that `Aḷ would be closer to them than their own selves. This shows that he wanted to confirm a special position for `Aḷ; that is `Aḷ being his successor.¹

¹ According to a narration reported by A'ṣad ibn 'anbal Musnad A'mad 1:119 and Ibn al-Atḥr's Usd al-Gḥbah 4:28, the Holy Prophet said, "Am I not superior to the believers than their own lives? Aren't my wives their mothers?"

It is completely clear that when he refers to his wives as the mothers of the believers, the statement that is confirmed in verse 6 of Ṣrah al-

(4) After the sermon, the attendants congratulated Imam `Aḷ. Of course, such congratulation could not be for any reason except appointing `Aḷ as the next leader and the successor to the Holy Prophet.

(5) After the Holy Prophet's announcement of the next leader, the Holy Qur'in proclaimed the perfection of religion and the completion of the Divine Grace. Of course, these two things have nothing to do with the recommendation of bearing love for `Aḷ ibn Aḅ-jlib.

(6) 'asṣ ibn Tḥbit, the Holy Prophet's poet and a famous literary personality of those days, was present at Ghaḍer Khumm. After he had been permitted by the Holy Prophet, 'asṣ composed a poem in which he used the same statements of the Holy Prophet's sermon. He thus used the word mawli to express Imam `Aḷ's Imamate and next leadership.

In one of his letters to Mu'wiyah, Imam `Aḷ demonstrated that he was appointed as the mawli of Muslims by the Holy Prophet during the event of Ghaḍer Khumm.¹

A'ẓib is uttered to strengthen his prophethood. His reference to his status as superior to the lives of Muslims shows that he wanted to emphasize his own prophetic position and later on `Aḷ's position.

It is worth mentioning that Ibn Katḥr considers its source as dubious, without presenting any reason whatsoever. (al-Biḍyah wa'l-Niḥyah 5:211). This is while its first narrator, i.e.; `Abd al-Ra'ṃn ibn Aḅ-Layḷ has been confirmed by Sunni scholars as trustworthy. Besides, this ḥaḍth has been narrated by many others. (see al-Ghaḍer 1:177-178).

¹ For a complete list of these signers and witnesses, see al-Ghaḍer 1:370-385; Leadership in the Eyes of Islam, Ja'far Suḅṇ, pp. 234-

(7) Connecting the Holy Prophet's announcement of Ghadḥr Khumm to Imam `Alḥ's journey to Yemen prior to the Farewell pilgrimage, Ibn Kathḥr claims that `Alḥ, during that journey, stopped his companions to divide the booties among themselves prior to giving them to the Holy Prophet. This incident, Ibn Kathḥr claims, made his friends feel that they were offended.¹ For this reason, the Holy Prophet, at Ghadḥr Khumm, praised `Alḥ for his loyalty and justice and showed how much respect he had for him. In this way, Ibn Kathḥr contends, the Holy Prophet eradicated people's bad feelings towards `Alḥ!

This reasoning, however, does not have any firm basis, because in the event of `Alç's journey to Yemen, the Holy Prophet, on his first visit to those who were with `Alç, answered their criticism against `Alç by saying,

“Do not complain against `Alc. By God I swear, `Alc is firm in the way of obeying God; he is brave and audacious in this regard.”²

With the firm and decisive statement, the case was over for those who listened to the Holy Prophet. It is therefore nonsense to think that three hundred³ of those people were still at odds with `Alø and the Holy Prophet had to repeat it once more in front of one hundred thousand 238.

¹ For further information, see al-Wiqidġ, al-Maghjzġ 3:1081; al-Bidjyah wa'l-Nihjyah 5:208-209.

² Nihjyat al-Irab 3:168; al-Bidjyah wa'l-Nihjyah 5:209; Ibn `Asjir, Tjrekh Madenat Dimashq 1:386.

³ Historians and biographers mention the number of the troops under Imam `Alç's mission to Yemen as three hundred. See al-Wiqidç, al-Maghjzç 3:1019; al-`abaqjt al-Kubrj 2:169.

Muslims.

(8) Another doubt is aroused in the following way: If the Holy Prophet had appointed `Alç at Ghadçr Khumm as his successor, the Companions would not have opposed to `Alç's manners and statements. This is because, the discussion goes on, the Holy Prophet's companions were sincere people; they had always been ready to sacrifice for Islam. It should be mentioned that the Holy Prophet's demise took place nearly seventy days after the announcement of Ghadçr; thus, they say, the memories were still fresh.

To answer, we should be aware that a research of the events at the time of the Holy Prophet clearly shows that even some of the Holy Prophet's grand companions at times disobeyed him; so, disobedience to `Alġ was justified. Whenever the Holy Prophet's commands contrasted their personal wishes or tribal and political inclinations, the companions tried to stop him from carrying out that decision. Sometimes, they refused to carry out these commands; and very often, they made oppositions. They objected to the Holy Prophet when he agreed to the ʿudaybiyah Truce. They objected and disobeyed his order of dispatching the troops of Usġmah. They disobeyed him in the final hours of his blessed life when he ordered them to bring him a pen and an inkpot. Besides too many other objections and disobedience to the Holy Prophet's acts and ordered, books of history of Islam are full of such events.

Sayyid Sharaf al-Døn al-M£sawç has gathered all these cases in a book he entitled al-Na¥ wa'l-Ijtihad.

In addition, several verses of the Holy Qur'an emphasize obedience to the commands of the Holy Prophet, considering it part of faith. Others warn people against disobeying him. These verses prove that such cases of disobedience had actually taken place:

Therefore, let those beware who go against his order lest a trial afflict them or there befall them a painful chastisement. (24:63)

O you who believe! Be not forward in the presence of Allah and His Apostle, and be careful of your duty to Allah; surely Allah is Hearing, Knowing. (49:1)

And know that among you is Allah's Apostle: should he obey you in many a matter, you would surely fall into distress. (49:7)

And it behooves not a believing man and a believing woman that they should have any choice in their matter when Allah and His Apostle have decided a matter; and whoever disobeys Allah and His Apostle, he surely strays off a manifest straying. (33:36)

And We did not send any apostle but that he should be obeyed by Allah's permission' and had they, when they were unjust to themselves, come to you and asked forgiveness of Allah and the Apostle had also asked forgiveness for them, they would have found Allah oft returning to mercy, Merciful. But no! By your lord! They do not believe in reality until they make a judge of that which has become a matter of disagreement among them, and then do not find any resistance in their hearts as to what you have decided and submit with entire submission. (4:64-65)

O you who believe! Obey Allah and His Apostle and do not turn back from Him while you hear. (5:20)

Although the Holy Prophet tried hard to remove the evil aspects of tribal prejudices and rivalries which were the source of all kinds of calamities during the Ignorance

Era, the cultural aspects of the tribes still prevailed in society, demonstrating occasionally. As an example, as soon as the Holy Prophet passed away, the people of Aws and Khazraj enlivened their tribal inclinations.¹ Thus, it was clear that some political figures of Quraysh would be rivals to Banġ-Hġshim and they would never tolerate a government headed by Banġ-Hġshim.

There are disagreements among scholars concerning the time of the revelation of the holy verses appertained to the Holy Prophet's declaring Imam `Alġ's Imamate and succession to him. However, several documents prove the revelation of these two verses at Ghadġr Khumm.²

The contents of these two verses show that they should have been revealed for an important topic, such as the succession to the prophethood. For instance, verse No. 3 of Sġrah al-Mġ'idah puts emphasis on four topics, which are only related to the issue of Imamate:

a) The infidels who wrongly assumed that Islam was dependant on the Holy Prophet only and by his demise, it would come to an end are now despairing. However, with the adoption of a strong, just and distinguished man such as `Alġ, it was clear that Islam would be ever-lasting.

b) Islam has been ultimately perfected. It could not have reached such perfection without the continuation of leadership.

c) The asset of guidance has been completed through the continuation of leadership.

¹ Ibn Qutaybah al-Daynawarġ, al-Imġmah wa'l-Siyġsah, pp. 24-25.

² For further information, see al-Ghadġr 1: 214, 247.

d) God has accepted Islam as the perfect religion.¹

The Brigade of Usimāh

Zayd ibn ʿirithah was one of the three commanders of the Muslim troops that fought in the Battle of Mu'tah in which the Muslim army was defeated by the Romans and three commanders together with some soldiers were martyred.

A year after that, the Muslim army went forward as far as the land of Tabʿk, but no armed conflict took place. As a result of these consequences, the Holy Prophet always worried about a war with the Romans who were aggressive and powerful.

Upon his return from the Farewell Pilgrimage and arrival at Medina, the Holy Prophet ordered an army headed by Usimāh, son of Zayd ibn ʿirithah, to advance as far as the land of Ubnj,² where his father had been martyred, and to fight the Romans. He then gave the banner to Usimāh along with orders and instruction. Usimāh betook himself al-Jurf³ as headquarter at which troops would gather.⁴ Chief personalities of Muhjir and Anʿjir, including Abʿ-ʿBakr, ʿUmar, Abʿ-ʿUbaydah

¹ For further information concerning this and also data related to the distance between the abovementioned two verses (in Sfrah al-Miʿidah) and the fact that what comes in the latter part of the 3rd verse deals with forbidden meats and not related to the issue of succession, see Tafsir Namānah 4:263-271.

² A location in Syria between ʿAsqalīn and Ramlah, close to Mu'tah. See ʿalabʿ, al-Sfrah al-ʿalabiyyah 3:227.

³ A place three miles away from Damascus.

⁴ Ibn Saʿd, Al-ʿabaqit al-Kubrj 2:190; ʿAbd al-Qidir Badrjīn, Tahdhīb Tjrekh Dimashq 1:121; Zaynʿ Daʿlīn, 2:138; ʿalabʿ, op cit, pp. 227.

ibn al-Jarrjī, Saʿd ibn Abʿ-Waqqiʿ,¹ ʿAbd al-Raʿmīn ibn ʿAwf, ʿallah, al-Zubayr, Usayd ibn ʿuʿayr, Bashʿr ibn Saʿd,² Saʿd ibn Zayd,³ Qatīdah ibn al-Nuʿmīn and Salamah ibn Aslam were among these troops.⁴

When the Holy Prophet was dispatching the army, he was in good health. However, the next day, he came down with fever which culminated in his death. On his death-bed, the Holy Prophet was informed that some of the troops did not accept Usimāh's commandership claiming that he was too young. While he was completely weakened by illness, the Holy Prophet came to the mosque to encourage people to join Usimāh, saying:

What is that I hear about your objection to Usimāh's commandership? You are objecting to his commandership in the same way you did to his father. I swear to God, Zayd deserved commandership and so is his son.⁵

¹ Ibn Saʿd, op cit, pp. 190; ʿalabʿ, al-Sfrah al-ʿalabiyyah 3:227; Zaynʿ Daʿlīn, al-Sfrah al-Nabawiyyah wa'l-ʿthjr al-Mu'ammadiyyah 2:138.

² Ibn Abʿ-ʿl-ʿadʿd, Shar' Nahj al-Balighah 6:52.

³ Ibn Saʿd, op cit, pp. 190; ʿAbd al-Qidir Badrjīn, Tahdhīb Tjrekh Dimashq 1:121.

⁴ Ibn Saʿd, op cit, pp. 190; al-Miqrʿzzʿ, Amta' al-Asmij' 2:124; Tahdhīb Tjrekh Dimashq 1:121.

⁵ Ibn Saʿd, op cit; al-Miqrʿzzʿ, op cit, 2:124; Zaynʿ Daʿlīn, op cit; ʿAbd al-Qidir Badrjīn, op cit; ʿalabʿ, op cit, pp. 228; According to ʿaʿʿ/ al-Bukhjr and ʿaʿʿ/ Muslim, the words of the Prophet were:

If you impugn his commandership, you have already been impugning his father. By Allah I swear, he was very suitable for leadership. He was one of my dearest people. This one is also my

In his final days, the Holy Prophet was in a distressing position. Most of the time, he was unconscious. When he regained consciousness, he asked about Uṣmah's army. He was told that the troops were readying themselves to move. The Holy Prophet said,

“Help Uṣmah's army. May God curse those who lag behind this army.”¹

His ailment lasted for two weeks;² yet, this army did not move. This event is a clear indication of the cases of disobedience manifested by some Muslims to the Holy Prophet's distinct orders.

The Prophet's Supreme Objective

Concerning the Holy Prophet's trial to dispatch Uṣmah's troops, there are important points to consider:

(1) In the mobilization of this army, the leadership was given to a young man who was less than twenty years old to fight against the most powerful army of those days away from the center of the Islamic government.

(2) In this army, senior commanders and grand Companions were put under the command of Uṣmah, the young. They considered themselves prestigious and expected greater ranks in that army.

(3) Although the Holy Prophet knew about his imminent death, as he had referred to this issue in the sermon of Ghaḍr, and that the dark, heavy clouds of dearest one after his father.

See ʿa/ʿ/ al-Bukḥṛ 6:326, H. 9; ʿa/ʿ/ Muslim 15:195.

¹ Muḥammad ibn ʿAbd al-Kaṛm al-Shahrisṭni, pp. 29.

² Ibn Ẉḥīd, Ṭj̣ṛḳh al-Ya`q̣ḅ 2:178.

disastrous events were hovering over the heads of Muslims, he sent the Muslim army to a far land and asked the grand personalities of Muḥj̣ṛ and Aṇṣ̣ṛ to join it on this mission. Considering the excellent managerial capacities of the Holy Prophet, we can never doubt that he had a great objective in mind to achieve.

Taking these notes into consideration, we can conclude that, in addition to carrying out military actions against the Romans to remove their danger, the Holy Prophet aimed at following two other objectives:

a) By appointing Uṣmah as the head of the army, the Holy Prophet wanted to make Muslims realize that the most important point in management and leadership is the leader's expertise and merits, but not his age. Hence, age has nothing to do with merits and capacities. For this reason, he replied to their objections by saying, “Zayd was a good leader, so is his son.”

Through this formal position, the Holy Prophet confirmed Uṣmah's merits and objected to the proposals of those who wanted to take age and racial issues into consideration. Wasn't this insistence on the Holy Prophet's side done to pave the way for ʿAḷ's succession?

b) The Holy Prophet wanted ʿAḷ's rivals to be away from Medina at the time of his demise. For this very reason, he ordered the chief personalities of Muḥj̣ṛ and Aṇṣ̣ṛ to join that army and leave Medina. He wanted ʿAḷ to have control over things in the absence of his rivals who would not be able to do anything when they would see `Alç in power.¹ For this reason, some personalities delayed the movement of the army waiting for the Holy Prophet's demise.

The Unrecorded Will

On Thursday (four days prior to his demise), the Holy Prophet who was bedridden ordered,

"Bring me paper and pen so that I will write something saving you from going astray forever."

One of the attendants said, "He is under severe pain; he is hallucinating! We have Qur'ân; it suffices us." Disagreement took place among the attendants; some accepted the statement of this person and others wanted to carry out the Holy Prophet's orders. There was now commotion. Then they asked the Holy Prophet, "Should we carry out your intentions?" he replied,

"After what has been done? Leave me alone; my pain is better than what you ascribe to me. Leave me alone."

Narrators have reported this catastrophic event with little differences; yet, the sequence of the events is the same.²

We can now understand what the Holy Prophet had in mind. He wanted to appoint `Alç as his successor in a written form so that Muslims would not encounter any hardships after his demise. Some of the attendants had already concluded the matter; therefore, they exerted all possible efforts to prevent the Holy Prophet from writing down that document and from declaring his final will.

¹ From the improper analysis that Ibn Abç'l-°adçd puts on this issue, we understand that this Shç'ite analysis has always been a controversial issue among historians.

² `a'ç' al-Bukhîrç 1:120; al-Maghîzç, pp. 317-318; `a'ç' Muslim 11:89; Al-±abaqî al-Kubrî 2:242; Ibn Abç'l-°adçd, Shar' Nahj al-Balîghah, quoted from Abç-Bakr al-Jawharç, Kitjb al-Saqçfah.

Considering this event with much pain, `Abdu'llah ibn `Abbîs used to say: "How disastrous that Thursday was! The Prophet asked for pen and paper to write something saving Muslims from going astray, but those present ones did not listen."

This issue is one of the principles of the history of Islam; it was told and retold several times in the past; therefore, we shall not say anything more; rather, we ask the gentle reader to refer to the reference books mentioned in the footnotes.¹

The Demise of the Great Leader of Islam

After twenty-three years of spreading the Divine Mission, and after tremendous amount of hardships and insurmountable obstacles, the Holy Prophet passed away on Monday the twenty-eighth `afar, in the eleventh year of Hegira² after fourteen days of ailment.³ He was buried in his small residing-place next to the mosque that he had established. Later on, when the mosque was rebuilt by some caliphs, his sacred shrine was located in its eastern section.

¹ For example, see the following sources: Ibn ±awßs, al-±arî'if fç Ma`rifat Madhjhîb al-±awî'if 2:431-435; Sharaf al-Dçn al-Mçsawç, al-Na¥ wa'l-Ijtihîd, pp. 162-177; Ja`far Sublîñç, Furçgh-e-Abadiyyat 2:493-500; Musçafîvi, al-°aqî'iq fç Tjrçkh al-Islîm wa'l-Fitan wa'l-A'djth, pp. 129-135; Yçsuf Qulayñç, pas az ghurçb 1:38-53; Mu'ammad °asanayn Haykal, °ayt al-Nabç, pp. 501; `a'ç' Muslim commentary of al-imjm al-nawawç 11:84-93.

² Mu'ammad Bîqir al-Majlisç, Bi'îr al-Anwîr 22:514; the date of the prophet's demise is reported differently in some sources. See op cit, pp. 514-521; Ibn Sa`d, al-±abaqî al-Kubrî, 3:272-274; al-Sçrah al-°alabiyyah, 3:454.

³ Ibn Wîðîl, Tjrçkh al-Ya`qçbç, 2:178.

Several years after Hegira, economic conditions improved for the Holy Prophet and Muslims and the revenues of the treasury became well-managed. Besides, the Holy Prophet's superficial power and spiritual influences increased. Despite all that, the Holy Prophet's life pattern did not change in comparison with his past; he preferred to have a simple life in his residing-place next to the mosque. He neither amassed wealth nor obtained a usual home. The bed where he rested was made of leather with linen made of date-palm leaves.¹ He used to pray on a mat and that was the place he rested. At times, the effect of the straws could be seen on his sacred body.² Towards his end, he ordered to distribute among the needy some Ḍen̄jrs left from the treasury and kept by one of his wives.³

He lived a simple life and passed away in a simple residing-place. However, when he passed away, there was left a great religion, there remained a Divine and holy Book and a nation, God-loving and dynamic. There had been established a new civilization in the history of the world.

A Perspective on the New Community of Muslims

Upon his residence in Medina, the Holy Prophet took advantage of a free space and appropriate social conditions to lay the stone for an Islamic society and to overcome, yet gradually, all hindrances and obstacles. He gave the Muslim nation (ummah) an independent religious and political identity and spread the Divine Messages. At the time of his demise, he believed that he had fulfilled his mission and gained bright and brilliant successes. However, there were some issues in the society of those days requiring discussions:

¹ °alabç, al-Sçrah al-°alabiyyah, 3:454.

² Ibid.

³ Ibn Sa`d, Al-°abaqjt al-Kubrj, 2:237-239.

(1) In the light of Islamic instructions, the Holy Prophet could unite the diverse tribes of Arabs who were always at odds with one another with the common bonds of faith, belief and brotherly care. He could make a unified nation out of scattered tribes. With the assistance of such people, he could establish in Medina a Divine government under his own leadership.

In this government, he could find solutions for the unsolved issues through consultation with people. Everybody was free to express his/her ideas and to criticize. For the first time and in the light of Islam, the Arab nation could experience such unity, power and spiritualism. However, the continuation of this success needed a powerful leader to guide people politically and spiritually.

(2) At the time of the Holy Prophet's demise, idolatry was more or less uprooted in the Arabian Peninsula. Although there was no military victory for Islam beyond the borders of the Arabian Peninsula, the Holy Prophet's universal invitation to Islam had reached the ears of the governors of the world's countries of those days. However, inside the Arabian Peninsula, some of those who had converted to Islam on the final days of the Holy Prophet's life, (especially those who had turned to Islam after the conquest of Mecca and the Battle of Tabuk, had only superficially accepted the new faith that had not yet penetrated into their souls. The Holy Prophet never found a chance to send religious missionaries among them for cultural purposes. Most of them had even not seen the Holy Prophet face to face. Only their chiefs had some contact with him. So, with the temporary weakness in the power of Islam, their return to blasphemy was probable. This situation made the continuation of the Islamic leadership even more pertinent so that the cultural work of the Holy Prophet could have continued.

(3) Although the death of `Abdullah ibn Ubayy, the head of the Hypocrites, in the ninth year of Hegira caused this dangerous group to lose some of their previous solidarity, they were around and inside Medina. They were always waiting for an opportunity to attack Muslims. In addition to the hypocrites who were considered internal enemies, there were two other external dangers for the newly-established government of Islam: the Iranian empire and the Romans. There were lots of signs for their enmity and negative attitudes towards Islam.

This vicious triangle made the Holy Prophet so concerned that he had to find solutions. This issue too made the presence of a strong leader absolutely necessary.

(4) Prior to the advent of Islam, the social life of the people inside the Arabian Peninsula was heavily reliant on the tribal system, which was based on racial and familial bonds. The social effects of such a system, including the blind tribal prejudices, nonsensical prides, revenge tacking and conflicts, had made life miserable for them.

Through hard working and boundless attempts, the Holy Prophet annihilated such a system and put the common faith for the common blood or the common race, in the light of Islam's unifying instructions and the word of monotheism. In this way, he was to a great extent able to eradicate the tribal system. All this was the result of Islam, the Holy Qur'an and the Holy Prophet's Mission.

However, history shows that the cultural remnants of this arrogant and ignorant age still remained in the hearts and souls of these people who manifested their tribal thinking as soon as they found it possible. However, the Holy Prophet, with his skill and vigor, always tried to stop this trend; he did not let it turn into a crisis. This once again showed the vulnerability of Islamic unity in those days. An example of this is the tribal inclinations between two distinguished groups of Muslims in the event of the Saqifah immediately after the demise of the Holy Prophet.

These worries clearly depicted the duties of the great leader of Islam in those days and the whole issue was a great test to show who was after the unity of Islam and would sacrifice everything for that unity on the one hand and who would insist on the cultural aspects of the Ignorance Era on the other hand.

(5) After his migration to Medina, the Holy Prophet was both the religious and political leader for Muslims. He undertook these two missions simultaneously so much so that Muslims would listen to his words, perform the congregational prayers, and be so absorbed by his spiritual charisma that they would rub the water of his ritual ablution on their faces, participate in the military campaigns, slay the enemies, ready themselves to martyrdom, be appointed by him as governors of provinces, and carry out negotiations on his behalf with his political opponents. After his demise, it was not enough for his successor to be a political leader; rather, he had to perform the political leadership together with religious leadership so that he would be able to fill the Holy Prophet's empty place on the strength of his thorough awareness of the Islamic knowledge.

